Mr. Whitney's Fortune.
Trinity Church Buys.
Welcome, Jupe Culotte.
Leaving the Corpse.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE late Payne Whitney left a fortune of $178,983,655, and was not one of this country's VERY rich men.

Any one of a dozen in New York could buy all he had without missing the money. It's a prosperous country.

OTHERS have died leaving bigger fortunes than Mr. Whitney and arranged not to have the amount known. One rich man almost disinherited his son, cut him off with a million dollars. But the other children, to "prevent facts coming out," settled.

Nobody cares how much money a man has if he earns it honestly and uses it properly. Payne Whitney was a good citizen when he lived, generous and just. Now he leaves $45,000,000 to charity and his widow $57,000,000. Good arrangement.

TRINITY CHURCH CORPORATION of New York City owns the beautiful old church and graveyard at the top of Wall street. There the fortunate at noon can thank providence for their winnings. At the other end of the street there is a convenient dock from which they can jump if it goes the other way.

IN a deal "involving more than $20,000,000," Trinity Church has purchased more real estate on Seventh avenue, in Manhattan.

IF the founder of Christianity lived in New York with its East Side slums and worried mothers, and if he had $20,000,000, would he buy more real estate, or what would he do?

THE jupe culotte is coming. The French word jupe means "skirt" and culotte means "trousers."

Paul Poiret, who knows fashions, says that jupe culotte will soon cover the lower half of lovely woman from Peking to Palm Beach. It will be a sort of compromise between trousers and skirt. A partition for each leg.

WOMAN will be like the ornithorhynchus, the animal half way between bird and mammal.

You might think she would go from the jupe culotte all the way to real trousers, but you don't know her.

She will flounce back, in all probability, to hoopskirts on her legs and waterfalls on her head, as like as not.

HAVE you ever heard of Arthur Cutten? La Salle street, Chicago, and Wall street, New York, know him. He buys stocks, and up they go, and his saying is, "I know when, and where, to leave the corpse," meaning that he knows when to get out.

BUT even such a genius of the ticker has his surprises. Last spring, when Montgomery-Ward stock sold for $150, Mr. Cutten said to a friend, "Buy Montgomery-Ward. In three years you'll see it selling at 250." Yesterday Mr. Cutten saw it selling at nearly 450. You never can tell what will happen in this country except that you know it will be something surprising.

IN Omaha 50,000 men, one in each family of homes, remain awake all night, guarding their homes against a maniac murderer at work in the city.

The criminal, said by alienists to be a maniac in the last stages of paresis, with a murder mania, has killed three, fatally injured a fourth and dangerously wounded another with a hatchet. Dreadful anxiety, keeping 50,000 men awake all night, reminds us how much we owe to the generally law-abiding character of human beings, and especially to the instinct of self-preservation, largely responsible for men's obedience to law.

TWO HUNDRED years ago the famous Captain Cook was born.

The average man who likes things that exist now is interested in the fact that a turtle given by Capt. Cook to the Queen of Tonga, 150 years ago, is still alive.

THE British admire Captain Cook as one of their bravest explorers and value him especially because it was he that piloted General Wolfe up the St. Lawrence when he took Quebec.

Britons, with their great empire north of us, have reasons to be grateful to Cook for that piloting.

IN an ants' nest, when the queen dies or is about to die, there is great agitation. Ants mourn, crowd about the body of the queen, often two or three hundred times bigger than the small worker ant. But soon another queen starts laying eggs, and the old queen is forgotten.

And so it is among human beings.

KING GEORGE has a cold. Doctors give out formal bulletins which frighten England. They know that wouldn't be done for an "ordinary" cold. There is great agitation—as great as in the ant nest.

If the worst should happen, which kind Providence forbid, the Prince of Wales would take his father's place, and the British empire would go on the same as ever.

KING GEORGE, however, represents in the British empire more than the average king. He has been absolutely devoted to the British people and to his duties.

His death would be a real loss.

STOCK MARKET TO BE CLOSED SATURDAY

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The New York Stock Exchange will close tomorrow (Saturday) by order of the board of governors, it was announced shortly after noon today.

The curb exchange also announced it would close Saturday.

The unexpected and drastic action of the exchange governors was taken at a special noon session, which was called when it became obvious that the new measures of relief provided for the purpose of relieving the great market jam had utterly failed.

Although there is precedent for the closing of the Saturday market, similar action having been taken last spring, it was pointed out today that the underlying motives are contrastingly different. Whereas the market was closed on Saturday last spring to enable the brokers to catch up with their bookkeeping after several frenzied sessions, today's action was taken in order to give the market an opportunity to "regain its sanity" and to recover something of its orderliness and clarity.

MARKET DEMORALIZED

The wild, reckless cyclone of speculating that has hit the exchange from all sections of the country has completely demoralized the market, it was said, as well as inflicting almost insurmountable physical problems.

The strenuous measures taken by the exchange governors to end the orgy of blind, plunging trading may be followed by other restrictions, it was intimated, when announcement was made that the Federal Reserve Bank also had called an emergency session for this afternoon when other relief measures may be instituted.

RIOTOUS SESSION

Another riotous "bull" movement carried prices of about a dozen issues up $5 to $30 in the first hour of trading today, but around midday ran into heavy profit-taking which reduced most of the gains $1 to $10.

Case Threshing jumped $30.50 a share to a record price at $515, then fell back to $506. Wright Aero shot up $19 to a new peak price at $239,

BOOTLEG CZARISM LAID TO FORNEY

Alfred W. Forney, so-called slot machine monarch serving six months in jail, dictated the purchase of whisky by the German Beneficial Union No. 23, 1707 Lowrie street, Twenty-fourth Ward, warning "buy from Thomas Johnson and you're better fixed and you don't know what'll happen if you don't."

This was testified today by George Wolfram, president of the society, in United States Court during the trial of 46 defendants charged with conspiracy in an extensive liquor traffic on the North Side.

Forney telephoned, Wolfram said, and asked, "Do you want some slot machines?" Upon Wolfram's agreement, he said, Forney sent the slot machines to the club and also delivered his ultimatum concerning the club's liquor supply. The warning was heeded, according to the witness.

Wolfram also identified checks said to have been given Johnson and indorsed by Edward L. Horigan and Harry Glick, defendants on trial.

The Troy Hill Liedertafel, dispensing whisky and beer at its bar, was closed the last Sunday in November, 1926, by Police Lieut. James Callahan, with an injunction to "get on the right side of the fence." Its officers visited Justus Schroedel, Republican chairman of the Twenty-fourth Ward and superintendent of county buildings, seeking to reopen, and were referred by him to Thomas "Peezer" Wills, district chairman and watchman of county buildings, and the club reopened the following Sunday, it was testified.

This testimony was given by officers of the club. They said Wills declared that if they bought "the stuff everything will be O. K.," and thereafter, beginning that night, when a 30-gallon delivery was made, they purchased their moonshine through Wills at $6 a gallon and "good stuff" at $80 a case, the club officers said.

The same prices were paid Johnson by the beneficial union, Wolfram testified. He said he delivered checks to Johnson in payment for the liquor on a monthly account, and that Johnson also supplied beer at $45 a barrel. He identified the checks, indorsed by Johnson, first made payable to "cash" and, after a mysterious telephone call, payable

CARS RUN AGAIN ON BAD HILL IN HOMESTEAD

Street car operation was resumed at noon today on the Amity street hill in Homestead, where a car ran away Tuesday and injured 60 persons and another got out of control Wednesday evening, with the result that a girl was injured. A crew of 35 men had been busy since yesterday removing from the street the asphalt which is said to have made the rails slippery and caused the accidents.

The Major Accidents Committee of the Pittsburgh Railways Company went over the ground yesterday with Burgess John Cavanaugh of Homestead. Burgess Cavanaugh insisted that no more cars be operated on the dangerous grade until safety could be guaranteed. In the meanwhile the railways company had stopped running cars on the hill, but had placed buses in service to transfer passengers across the hazardous stretch.

CLEAN RAILS OF ASPHALT

The loose asphalt on the recently paved street has been scraped from the rails and flanges, J. M. Loftis, of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, said today, and from the street for a distance of 18 inches on each side of the rails.

The Major Accidents Committee, accompanied by William White, president of the local street car men's union, and a veteran motorman himself, went over the Amity street hill this morning, examined the street car tracks carefully, and concluded that it was safe to resume operations.

C. B. Shaffer, sales representative in this district for the American Tar Products Company, said today that the Pittsburgh Railways Company had made a mistake in saying that the rails had been made slippery by tar. Asphalt was used in the paving operations, not tar, he declared. He asserted further that tar is skidproof, and that there is no tar in asphalt.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—John Arthur Wilson, of Milwaukee, whose researches are likely to result in the adoption by New York City of his plans for a model refuse disposal plant, will receive the Chandler Medal, awarded annually by Columbia University, it was announced today by Prof. Ralph H. Gen. William Booth's Condition Unchanged

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Gen. William Bramwell Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, passed a restful night. His condition today was otherwise unchanged.

KING GEORGE'S CONDITION SERIOUS; LUNG AFFECTED

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—After a restless night, King George today had developed further congestion in one lung, but was able to obtain a little rest this afternoon.

This fact was considered as a hopeful development and it was stated in a quarter close to royal circles that the king's illness, while serious, should not be regarded in any way as alarming.

The Prince of Wales, heir apparent, now on a tour in East Africa, is being kept informed of the progress of his Majesty's illness.

SON VISITS KING

The Duke of York, the only son of King George now in England, returned from his hunting lodge at Naseby this morning and this afternoon went to Buckingham palace to visit his father. After receiving a report of the king's condition, he planned to return to Northamptonshire tomorrow.

Queen Mary, who officiated in the king's place at several public functions yesterday, will shortly be joined by her daughter, Princess Mary, who will come to Buckingham palace for the present.

Although he will spend the week-end at Chequers, Premier Baldwin, who left Glasgow this morning for London, will be accessible should there be any necessity for his presence in connection with the King's illness.

BATESVILLE, Ark., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Mrs. W. A. Mrs. Oldfield was on her way to Washington today after burial of her husband here yesterday, but friends here said she agreed to consider the suggestion that she become a candidate for the unexpired short term. They also said that leading candidates for the full term beginning next March to which Mr. Oldfield was elected two weeks before his death had agreed not to offer for the short term.

FIVE INJURED IN BLAST AT NEW CASTLE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 23.—Five persons were injured and property damage, estimated at $20,000, was caused at noon today by explosion of a tank of acetylene gas used by welders employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The tank let go a moment after the gang of workmen had left it on a side track to go for their noonday meal. The blast wrecked the boiler department and part of the machine shops of the Pennsylvania Engineering Company, nearby, and shattered windows in business houses and homes for half a mile.

Miss Della P. Vaughn, 30, a stenographer for the Carnegie Steel Company, on her way home for lunch, was about 200 feet from the scene when the explosion knocked her down. Two Carnegie mill workmen a few feet back of her, William Connelly and Raymond Young, were hurled to the street and their clothing was torn by the force of the blast. Alec Crossman and John Barge, employes of the Engineering Company, were injured. All five were sent to hospitals, suffering from shock, lacerations and bruises.

The cause of the blast is not known. Joseph Frengle, gang foreman, said the gas supply from tank to torch had been shut off.

MYSTERY WOMAN DENIES BARRYMORE IS DIVORCED

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A telephoned warning to the marriage license bureau from an unidentified woman who insisted that John Barrymore still is legally bound to his second wife, and the apprehensions of a father about his daughter's future as the mate of the stage and screen star today threatened to come between Barrymore and his intended bride, Dolores Costello.

When Barrymore appeared, Tuesday, and applied for a license to wed Miss Costello, 22-year-old film star and daughter of the screen veteran, Maurice Costello, he declined to explain where and when his second wife, Blanche Oelrich Barrymore, obtained a divorce.

CLAIMS DIVORCE

Later, however, he issued a statement saying that such a divorce had been granted and that Mrs. Barrymore No. 2, who writes under the pen name of Michael Strange, was "abroad" at present.

After it had become known that the mysterious woman had attempted to halt the issuance of the marriage license, Costello revealed that in the past he had objected to the attention which Barrymore had been paying to his daughter, but said that he had "forgiven both of them" when the girl disclosed that she expected to wed the 41-year-old actor.

"As long as it ended up in a wedding it was all right with me," Costello said.

Film industry's commentators also recalled that Mrs. Costello never

KIDNAPED PATRON, $1,000 FOUND

Three armed robbers dashed into the First National Bank of Trafford shortly after it opened this morning, held up four employes and escaped in an automobile, driven by a fourth gangster, taking $18,000.

Leaving the bank, they kidnaped O. M. Kimmell, borough assessor and Pennsylvania Railroad yardmaster, who had spread the alarm.

Less than two hours later, Duquesne police picked up an auto containing two of the alleged robbers and Kimmell and recovered $1,000. The prisoners gave their names as Paul Fucci, 22, and Patrick Trader, 21.

USE STOLEN CAR

One of the bandits left the car in Olympia Park and a second alighted at Fifteenth and Walnut street, McKeesport. Both are said to have hailed taxicabs, one going to South Twenty-second street, and the other to the downtown district of Pittsburgh. Immediately upon learning this, County Detectives James C. O'Brien, Albert Shedlock and John Burke communicated with local detective headquarters and a search of the South Side and downtown districts was begun.

Two men answering the description of the same pair of fugitives were taken by state police at Adamstown, near Greensburg, for questioning. The two arrested in Duquesne also were taken to the Greensburg barracks.

County Detective John Burke revealed that the men for whom they are searching are William David, 32, Detroit, and a man known as Eddie, 29, of Wheeling, W. Va. They are the brains of the gang, detectives say.

Davis and "Eddie," it is said, have been stopping at the Shamrock

Trafford Suspect Not So Tough Behind Bars

Old Man Remorse came pushing, his way through the cell bars of the Duquesne Police Station today and found Patrick Trader, 21-year-old bank bandit suspect.

And Patrick cried.

With his arms stretched above him and his hands tightly clenching the cold rods of iron, the youth stood sobbing audibly. His head was pressed tightly against the cell door. And his eyes sought refuge on the grim floor of the cell room.

In the adjoining cage, Sam Fucci, 22, fellow-bandit, nonchalantly answered questions thrust at him by a state policeman investigating the Trafford bank robbery.

WILKINS FIRST TO FLY PLANE OVER ANTARCTIC

Commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic Expedition.

DECEPTION ISLAND, Antarctica, Nov. 23.—(By radio via 6-ARD, San Francisco Examiner short-wave station, San Francisco, Cal.)—The first airplane flight ever made in the Antarctic was made yesterday by Lieut. Ben Eileson and Wilkins flying a Lockheed plane. Mild weather has melted snow on the landing field so tests were made with wheels.

Ice in the middle of the harbor, although surrounded with water, is still solid and will serve for the take-off with skis and heavy loads when weather permits. Temperature was just below freezing.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—Another conquest of man over nature has just been recorded in faraway Antarctica—"way down at the bottom of the world."

For the first time in the history of aviation, man-made wings have flown over the snow and ice-bound vasts of the Antarctic regions, according to word received here from Capt. Sir George Hubert Wilkins, commander of the Wilkins-Hearst Antarctic expedition.

Two California-made planes, the Los Angeles and the San Francisco, have been sent soaring over iagram illustrates the system by which er Rittman, Carnegie Tech professor, roleum wastes into coal and recovers oline than any previous refining process. The secret of the process' success lies in the mile of pipe in the still, which keeps the solids in the petroleum waste in a liquid condition so that the whole batch can be handled automatically without high labor costs.

HOW WASTE IS MADE INTO GASOLINE

DREAMS OF PERFECTION

This is Dr. Rittman, photographed at his desk in a Tech laboratory. He invented four years ago new processes for "cracking" oil, by which refiners were able to double the yield in gasoline. He is hopeful that soon the process can be extended to make a reality of the refiner's dream—the complete conversion of petroleum into motor fuel. At present, much heavy oil is produced by the refineries. It is an unprofitable product, because there is no market for it.

This diagram illustrates a system which accomplishes just the reverse of what the Rittman process does. It is the Bergius retort, which converts coal into petroleum for the production of gasoline. Last year, Germany made 12,000,000 gallons of gasoline by this process.

This is the originator of the coal-gasoline process, Dr. Friedrich Bergius, German savant and probably the best-known chemist in the world today. A gentleman adventurer of science, Bergius has spent millions of his private fortune in his researches.

FIRST FLIER CONQUERS ANTARCTIC

virgin horizons surrounding the South Pole territory, the noted explorer's dispatch revealed. The flights, first ever made in the Antarctic, were satisfactory and brought the expedition one step nearer its great adventure, the "big jump" from the Atlantic to the Pacific side of the Antarctic ice barriers and the high mountainous polar plateau.

Capt. Wilkins' dispatch, dated November 21, read:

"WHALER HEKTORIA, DECEPTION ISLAND, VIA PORT STANLEY, FALKLAND ISLANDS.—Both Lockheed planes performed splendidly on first Antarctic flight. Regards to all —Shrek, Penzoil, Richfield and papers. "WILKINS."

he last word from Capt. Wilkins, sent to the Hearst papers, stated that the two Lockheed planes had been unloaded from the whaler Hektoria, now stationed at Deception Island, near Graham Land, and that test flight would be made as soon as motors and skils had been adjusted.

READY TO EXPLORE

The radio-cable dispatch to the Lockheed company shows that both planes had been taken in the air and that Capt. Wilkins now is ready to make the first exploration flights as soon as the weather is favorable.

Plans of the expedition called for preliminary survey flights by both machines into Graham Land. The object of these flights is to chart the unknown coast line of Graham Land and establish a supply base, some 500 miles south of Deception Island, from where the Los Angeles, flagship of the expedition, can make the 2,200-mile flight to Ross Sea, on the Pacific side of the Antarctic territory.

The fact that Capt. Winkins found the performance of both planes up to his expectation leads his Los Angeles friends and associates to believe that only weather conditions are delaying the famous explorer from the next step of his expedition.

The Los Angeles, the Lockheed plane that crossed over the "top of the world" on its now famous North Pole flight, will carry Capt. Wilkins and his friend and companion, Lieut. Carl Ben Eileson. The other plane, christened "San Francisco," with Pilot Joe Crossan and Mechanic Porter, will help carry supplies and gasoline to the Graham Island depot and remain there as a rescue ship while the Los Angeles is winging its way over the "bottom of the world," across the South Pole.

Capt. Wilkins planned to make at least two flights from Deception Island to the Graham Land base. Both planes were to be equipped with skis, although wheels and pontoons were supplied for changed conditions.

So far, judging by the last dispatch from Capt. Wilkins, the expedition has been ahead of its schedule, and all indications are that the next few weeks will record aerial conquest of the storm-swept, mysterious continent of Antarctica.

Capt. Wilkins decided to call his first plane "The Los Angeles" in recognition of the financial support promised him here by individuals and organizations interested in the scientific side of the expedition. The second plane was named "San Francisco" after Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco and members of the Board of Supervisors and prominent citizens of the northern city indicated their desire to give financial aid to the project.

Capt. Wilkins had to leave California before the financial plans could be carried out, but was promised that support would come later.

"Sherck" (CQT) mentioned in the radio-cable is George Sherck, friend and close associate of Capt. Wilkins. The others mentioned have helped finance the Wilkins expedition.

Pgh. Scientist Reverses Process and Changes Petroleum to Coal!

Europeans have led in the effort to produce gasoline synthetically from coal, but it remained for a Pittsburgher, Dr. Walter F. Rittman, of Carnegie Institute of Technology, to reverse the process and produce coal from petroleum, the basic source of gasoline.

Dr. Rittman has made a very useful form of coal from petroleum wastes. But that achievement is only incidental in the process he described today to the international conference on coal now in session here. In addition, he has shown oil refiners how they can obtain a still greater yield of gasoline from petroleum.

GASOLINE FROM COAL

In Europe, where natural oil supplies are scarce, Dr. Friedrich Bergius, the German savant, has perfected a process for making gasoline from low grade coals. Under great pressure at high heat he adds hydrogen to the unsaturated hydrocarbons of liquefied coal and produces petroleum, which can be "cracked" into gasoline. His process, scientists agree, mimics the means by which nature produced petroleum, and by which she liberally endowed the United States with natural oil supplies.

In abundance of petroleum supplies America is far ahead of Europe. But the refiners of those supplies found a problem on their hands in the form of petroleum wastes, the residues of stills in which, as they believed, the ultimate in gasoline had been extracted from the raw petroleum.

SEEKS WASTE UTILIZATION

Dr. Rittman set to work to make use of those troublesome wastes, for which there was practically no market. Other research workers had suggested still further distillation. But that process left in the "cooking" stills a gummy mass of coke, which had to be removed by hand at high cost in manual labor. The labor costs nullified whatever benefits resulted from the increased gasoline production.

The problem was to keep the coke in liquid form until it could be removed from the stills. Rittman accomplished that by using almost a mile of pipe in the retort. As the petroleum wastes passed through that mile of pipe the coke was carried along by the gases and liquids formed and it issued from the discharge pipe in liquid form. But before that vent was reached the oils and vapors had been drawn off and condensed into a light oil of which two-thirds was gasoline.

LOW IN ASH CONTENT

The coal was poured into settling basins, where it solidified into a black pitch-like mass, rich in volatile matter and very low in ash content. Because of that low ash content it can be carbonized into excellent metallurgical coke, and can be sold readily. In the coking process it produces the by-products customary to such operations—ammonia, tar and alcohols—and it is very useful in the cement trade, where it can be used without previous preparation.

Dr. Rittman explained the process, he said, with some trepidation before a scientific congress mainly devoted to the problem of producing gasoline from coal. But he foresaw, also, that it was a contribution to the realization of that dream of all good oil refiners—the total conversion of petroleum into gasoline, so that, as long as may be, America's automobiles, and there are 30,000,000 of them now, may not go thirsty.

American business men work themselves to death.

This is the country of opportunity.

MR. JONES had everything any man could want, and more. But he liked work and kept at it, in spite of illness and doctors' warnings.

Young gentlemen who think the world doesn't appreciate them may learn something from the experience of George H. Jones when he was a boy working in a chair factory at Carthage, N. Y.

He reported for duty at 6 in the morning and was all through at 6 o'clock in the evening. For 12 hours' work he got 25 cents.

He worked as hard as he knew how then for three cents an hour, and as hard as he knew how, later, for thousands of dollars an hour. That's why he earned the thousands of dollars.

"The King passed a restless night, his temperature remaining at 101. There is a slight extension of the mischief in his lung, but His Majesty's strength is maintained."

THIRD DOCTOR CALLED

Later Lord Dawson again visited King George, but no further bulletin was issued and a new one was not expected until this evening.

The King's medical advisers, who spent an hour and a half with him this morning, planned to return to the palace late this evening when it was expected that a further bulletin would be issued. Unless unforeseen circumstances should develop, nothing further is likely to be announced before then.

One development of the royal patient's case this morning was the announcement that a late visit of the King's physicians to his bedside last night was prompted by a desire to make certain bacteriological investigations. This, it was explained, is customary in all cases of microbic infection. It is understood that a third physician who called at the palace at the time was a distinguished bacteriological specialist.

Record Mortgage Filed in Mercer

MERCER, Pa., Nov. 23.—The largest mortgage filed in Mercer county in 1928 is that in favor of the Cleveland Trust Company as trustee in the sum of $4,000,000 given by the Davison Coal and Coke Company on their properties in Mercer and Allegheny counties. The Mercer county property is located in Sharpsville. A similar mortgage is recorded in Allegheny county.

TWO CAPTURED AFTER ROBBERY

Hotel for several weeks. They met Fucci and Trader in a downtown pool room and befriended the boys.

The prisoners said that last night Davis stole the automobile, then notified them to be ready for a "job" at 6 o'clock this morning. Plans for the robbery were discussed, they said, in Davis' room in the hotel last night. Fucci and Trader remained at the hotel during the night and this morning the quartet left for Trafford.

Davis is described as being 5 feet 5 inches tall, 165 pounds, wore brown suit, black soft hat, blue topcoat and tan shoes.

"Eddie" wore a checkered cap, blue topcoat over a blue suit and tan shoes.

Detectives learned that the men separated in McKeesport, Eddie boarding a taxicab and alighting a short time later at the Baltimore and Ohio depot in McKeesport. Davis continued to the South Side of Pittsburgh.

Three clerks were in the bank when the trio of robbers entered, leaving another of their gang at the wheel of their auto, a Hudson sedan, License D 6,134, reported stolen in Pittsburgh last night.

Running back of the counter the bandits began to scoop up the money. While they worked Kimmell entered to make a deposit.

Fred J. Schucha, 25, of Wilmerding, clerk, with a gun at his back held by a robber who crouched below the counter, was forced to accept Kimmell's deposit. Schucha wrote in the pass book:

"Bank is being held up. Spread the alarm."

Without betraying emotion, Kimmel left the bank, dashed across the street to the office of the burgess and spread the alarm. He returned to the bank as the robbers were leaving. They forced him into their car and drove away.

Police of the state, county and nearby towns were notified and every road was covered. Shortly before 11 o'clock Duquesne police picked up the bandits' car.

It contained Kimmell and two men he said were part of the robber gang. Kimmell told Duquesne police that two of the robbers had alighted in McKeesport. The two men in the car had $1,000 with them. Kimmell was held until he proved his identity and was released.

There were four persons in the bank when the robbers entered, Cashier B. W. Carlson, his assistant, Ruth Whitney, Barbara Peacock, a clerk, and Schucha. It was at this juncture that Kimmell entered.

Druggist Weyandt, who fired at the fleeing robbers, obtained the license number, and it was flashed to all police agencies. The license number, D 6,134, had been issued to Cornelius R. Buchanan, 5001 Baum boulevard. He had reported his car stolen last night.

PICK UP TRAIL QUICKLY

When Duquesne police were given a description of the car Motorcycle Officer Anthony Straits, with Patrolman William Downey in the side car, sped to the McKeesport Bridge. There they picked up the robbers' car and trailed it to Grant and Duquesne avenues, Duquesne. A red light held up traffic and the two officers leaped from their motorcycle and covered the occupants with revolvers.

One man was at the wheel driving, the other in the rear seat guarding Kimmell. Only the robber in the rear seat had a revolver. The men offered no resistance when arrested.

County detectives immediately searched a room which Fucci occupies in the Shamrock Hotel, Wylie avenue, and also a house at 44 Boyd street, where Trader said he resided.

H. T. Wynn, treasurer of the bank, after questioning the employes gave police their joint version of the robbery.

Carlson said he was talking in a telephone booth when the three robbers entered. All three, he said, drew revolvers and ordered the clerks to be silent. One robber came to the telephone booth and ordered Carlson out.

While this bandit kept his gun trained on the workers, the other two scooped up the money.

Kimmell told police that the robbers after leaving Trafford drove through Pitcairn and into Wilmerding where they struck the Lincoln highway, and followed it to East McKeesport. There they turned off and drove to McKeesport. In McKeesport two of the robbers alighted.

Kimmell, in charge of County Detective James Reddington, and accompanied by state police, went to McKeesport to search for the two missing robbers.

Cashier Carlson declared the robbers acted so quickly that it was impossible for bank clerks to use the tear gas bombs which are kept in the bank for an emergency. He said the bank had been open only a few minutes when the robbers entered and the clerks were covered with revolvers before they knew what was happening.

LIQUOR MURDER JURY INDICTS 3

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Three men were indicted for murder, first degree, by the grand jury reporting yesterday on the shooting of Irving Washburn, Federal prohibition agent, in a gun battle here July .

Those indicted were Barbero Zullo, Joseph Zullo, his brother, and Vincent Bonaventura. Barbero Zullo and Bonaventura were arraigned and pleaded not guilty. Joseph Zullo was listed as a fugitive after the shooting.

BULGARIA ASKS U. S. FOR AID

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The police guard protecting members of the cabinet was doubled today in the fear that Ivan Michailoff, leader of the belligerent faction of the Macedonian revolutionary party, might carry out threats to march on Sofia with his wild cohorts and slay them.

The entire country was apprehensive lest Bulgaria be plunged into civil war. A violent conflict between opposing political factions last night added to the fears of the people.

Athanase Buroff, foreign minister, in a statement to the Associated Press, appealed to the United States to rescuee Bulgaria from its present internal crisis. It is felt generally that Bulgaria's pitifully small army would be almost powerless to cope with a widespread uprising. King Boris, who has striven constantly to bring about peace, is deeply disturbed.

Reports were current today that Michailoff himself was in Sofia, at the bedside of his wife, Mencia Carniciu, who is dying of tuberculosis.

Rich, 35, who gave his address as the First National Bank Building, was riding alone in the other machine. The two drivers were arrested on reckless driving charges.

PHILA. SAFETY HEAD OUT; NEW CHIEF IN

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Mayor Harry A. Mackey announced today that he had accepted the resignation of Harry C. Davis, director of the Department of Public Safety, and had appointed as his successor Lemuel B. Schofield, first assistant district attorney. Davis' resignation was forecast when the special grand jury investigating bootlegging uncovered corruption in his department.

Since the start of the grand jury investigation, policemen, captains, inspectors and an assistant superintendent of police, named "unfit to hold any public office" by the grand jury, have been discharged or suspended. Some police officers have stood trial, charged with bribery and extortion, and are serving prison sentences. Schofield, in many of these trials, prosecuted the men.

Davis has been criticized for the condition of his department and Judge Edwin C. Lewis, who began the grand jury investigation, strongly intimated that he should resign or be asked to resign.

BARRYMORE IS WARNED

had joined in her husband's objections to Barrymore.

The anonymous voice over the telephone warned the bureau not to issue Barrymore a license "because he hasn't a final decree from his second wife yet."

Commenting on the charge, Costello said, "I certainly don't like the looks of things now."

"It doesn't put anyone in a very good light,'" he added.

"I think he ought to clear up the situation."

Costello was referring also to Barrymore's repeated evasion of questioners and curt refusals to amplify or explain his declaration that his second wife had obtained a divorce.

Miss Costello refused to comment on the turn of affairs other than to say that she believed her promised husband was free to marry her.

The woman who called the marriage bureau was believed by attendants there first to have visited the office. A fashionably dressed woman called at the bureau to examine Barrymore's license application and affidavit. Shortly afterward the anonymous telephone call was received. An attendant informed the caller that to institute an investigation required the submission of a written and signed complaint, whereupon the woman ended the telephone conversation.

In face of Barrymore's reticence, the film colony today was recalling the "fishing" trip he made to Mexico several months ago. He stayed there for some time, and it was pointed out that Mexican divorces are easy and quick to obtain.

While all this activity is in progress, Barrymore's yacht, Mariner, is lying in Los Angeles Harbor, ready, if the actor so chooses, for a wedding or a honeymoon.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Virgil Litzinger, accused gangster and gunman, was arraignd in Federal Court yesterday on charges of complicity in the $133,000 Grand Trunk mail train robbery last winter.

A trus bill reported voted by the grand jury named Litzinger for the slaying of Clarence Glenn, who was shot and killed in a saloon three years ago.

After spending three years as a fugitive from justice Litzinger surrendered to police and Federal authorities.

Litzinger claimed he had just returned from England where he had spent the last three years, offering that as an alibi for the various charges against him. He was held under $100,000 bonds. No date was set for a trial.

CAPTAIN'S HEROISM PRAISED

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—The first women witnesses to take the stand in United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle's inquiry into the sinking of the Vestris were scheduled to testify at the resumption of the inquiry today. They are Mrs. Earl F. Devore and Mrs. Norman K. Batten, wives of the two automobile racing drivers who were lost in the disaster.

LAUDS CAPT. CAREY

A vivid picture of Capt. William J. Carey's last actions as he stood alone—a heroic figure—on the hurricane deck of the sinking Vestris, wrapped in a long black overcoat, without a life preserver and hoarsely shouting orders to his men was given in an affidavit read today at the federal inquiry seeking to fix the blame for the disaster which cost 110 lives.

The affidavit was that of a British citizen, Edward Miles Walcott, a business man of Leguiar, British Guinea, who was a first-class passenger on the ship. It was obtained by the British consul general in New York and forwarded to United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, who read it at the hearing before Commissioner O'Neill this morning.

"My last recollection of the captain alive was just as the ship was sinking," Walcott deposed. "He was on the hurricane deck giving directions regarding the handling of lifeboat No. 6, which had been stove in.

"Capt. Carey was shouting. His voice was hoarse. On the last order his voice broke . . .

"After the ship sank I saw his body floating in the water. He wore nol ive preserver."

Other witnesses who may testify today include Mrs. Cline F. Slaughter, of Chicago, and Capt. Heasley, Marine superintendent of the Lamport & Holt line, which owned the Vestris.

BRITISH TESTS BETTER

Out of the mass of conflicting testimony yesterday came the constructive suggestion that the British regulations governing the inspection of lifeboats, which require inspectors to lower the boats to the water's edge and perform definite tests before placing their stamp of approval on them, be adopted instead of the American regulations in American ports. Capt. William A. Bambra, former commander of the Vestris, declared yesterday if the British regulations regarding the inspection of lifeboats had been in effect here many of the Vestris casualties would be alive today.

U. S. MAY CHANGE

Government inspectors have admitted at the Department of Commerce inquiry in the customs house that the lifeboats of the Vestris were not lowered into the water during the New York inspection. It was considered probable today that the British regulations will be adopted in American ports.

COURT DISINHERITS BABY IN DETROIT HOAX

MRS. MYRON L. BOYER

Seeking to "hold her home together," Mrs. Myron L. Boyer, Detroit, had a few-days-old child taken into her home, five years ago, and she told her husband it was their baby.

DODE ALFRED BOYER

Today, Dode Alfred Boyer, 5, after a long legal fight, has been ruled not the son of Myron L. Boyer by Detroit courts and his name ordered stricken from birth records showing him as the son of Myron L. Boyer. Thus the child has been disinherited from sharing in the benefits of the $3,500,000 fortune of Joseph A. Boyer, his "grandfather," adding machine manufacturer.

JOSEPH A. BOYER

This is the "grandfather" who wanted to benefit a grandson and specifically said in creating the fund that it was not to be an adopted child. Now, Dode has been adopted by Mrs. Myron L. Boyer. Myron L. Boyer brought the suit.

MINE KILLING IN JURY'S HANDS

Following the charge of Visiting Judge D. U. Arird, Warren and Forest counties, in Criminal Court this morning, the jury is considering its verdict in the murder case of five striking miners of Indian township, tried for the slaying of Mike Yarsavage, a nonunion miner, in the cemetery at Walter's chapel March 5.

The defendants are Joseph Bassetti, John Micklow, Sam Koneski, John Koneski and Fred Simonetti. Four others indicted with the five were acquitted on verdicts directed by the court at the conclusion of the trial, upon motion of Assistant District Attorney George Haggerty, who prosecuted the case.

He stated that the state's evidence had not connected these four directly with the killing. They were Alex Simon, John Kubic, Louis Braznet and Julius Frank.

Character witnesses and the addresses to the jury of Attorney William H. Coleman for the defendants and Attorney Haggerty for the state occupied most of yesterday's session of the trial. Bassetti, who took the stand earlier in the day, entered a general denial to the charge, as had the other defendants on the day previous.

Foundry Fireman Falls Dead at Work

'HEIR TO BOYER MILLIONS' RENDERED WAIF BY COURT

DETROIT, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Five-year-old Dode Alfred Boyer yesterday was legally disinherited from sharing in the benefits of a $3,500,000 trust fund created by Joseph A. Boyer, multi-millionaire adding machine manufacturer, for the child in the belief that he was a grandson.

In a decision in suits to disinherit the child on the grounds that he had been falsely represented by Mrs. Laura M. Boyer, daughter-in-law of Joseph Boyer, as her son, Circuit Judge Arthur Webster voided the child's birth certificate as Joseph A. Boyer III, and held he was not legally entitled to the benefits of the trust fund.

BOY LOSES MILLIONS

The decision, in effect, means the loss of millions to the child, now the adopted son of Laura M. Boyer.

The decision was on a plea of the Security Trust Company, trustee of the fund, that it be given a decree relieving it of the obligation of paying over funds to the boy, and that the child no longer be recognized as the son of Myron L. Boyer, son of Joseph Boyer.

The court held that Joseph Boyer had expressly indicated in creating the fund that it was not to benefit an adopted child.

"FATHER" BROUGHT SUITS

Myron L. Boyer brought the suits, one to expunge the name of the child from the birth records of the state as his son, and the other to disinherit him, following discovery a year ago that Dode was not his real son.

The discovery was made through a nurse, Miss Mabel Barrett, who testified today that the baby represented as Boyer's had been taken by her into the Boyer home when it was a few days old. She said a physician had ordered her to take the infant there and told her Mrs. Boyer had obtained the child from a girl in Windsor, Ont.

Admitting the deception, Mrs. Boyer said she smuggled the infant into her home and represented him as her son to satisfy her husband's desire for a son and "to save her home." She is now estranged from her husband.

STRIP CITIZENS GRILLED BY JURORS

Light on alleged liquor law violations in the Strip was sought today by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, as the county grand jury probe neared the end of its ninth week.

Undismayed by failure to obtain worth-while evidence from Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh yesterday, the county prosecutor continued his quest for evidence by quizzing half a dozen witnesses from the Penn avenue district in addition to several Negroes of the Hill.

Meanwhile, county detectives, armed with 67 bench warrants, began scouring the county for that number of indicted persons who have failed to appear and give bond. Most of them are indicted on charges of violating the Snyder act or maintaining gambling devices. If they are unable to give bond, ranging from $2,000 to $5,000, when found, they will be jailed.

STRIP GROUP GRILLED

Among the witnesses called to testify were Dan Harvey and Russell Clatty, 1211 Penn avenue; Frank P. Manuel, 2735 Penn avenue; Joe Hannan, 2700 Penn avenue; Mrs. Stella Ziehimski, 3815 Penn avenue; Joe Stuka, bartender, 927 Liberty avenue; J. C. Kelly 927 Liberty avenue; James Rumph, 619 Krkpatrick street; Percival Tim, 2122 Wylie avenue; Catherine Gardner, 607 Protectory place, and H. T. McDonald, 1719 Arcena street. The last four named are Negroes, and were said to have been quizzed regarding lotteries.

Walsh was questioned about protected lotteries, this much Gardner admitted. Previous testimony had been understood to establish charges that there were lotteries being protected by police. Former Detective P. E. Moran had charged that he had been told to drop an investigation when he was almost ready to expose the workings of a big lottery.

"PROTECTION" QUIZ

Certain witnesses today are being questioned, it is reported, as to what they know of protection being offered operators of pools or lotteries. In addition the grand jury will hear from several men taken into custody yesterday when county detectives raided their alleged moonshine establishments in the city. The county force is continuing to make raids in the city, going out immediately after testimony is given about any specific place.

The inquiry included the borough of Glassport, where residents of the community have been asking for a cleanup. Reports had been made to Gardner that liquor was flowing freely and that many slot machines were operating in the borough.

TROPIC HEAT BEATS ON HOOVER

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN,
International News Service.

ABOARD U. S. S. MARYLAND (Via Arlington, Va., Radio Station), Nov. 23.—Steaming steadily southward along the Mexican coast at a speed of 17 knots an hour, the battleship Maryland, carrying President-elect Herbert Hoover to Central and South America on his Latin-American "good will" mission, today entered the Gulf of Tehuantepec and is expected to pass a point opposite the Mexican-Guatemalan boundary line this evening.

Mr. Hoover and his party are beginning to feel the effects of the terrific tropical heat now being encountered. It is almost impossible to remain below decks either night or day. Even the President-elect remained on the deck until midnight last night.

HEAT INTENSE

The heat waves circling about the ship last night were so intense that the rollers of the printing press used to put out the Maryland's newspaper, "The Evening Hurricane," melted. They became so soft that they were put into the refrigerator plant for several hours. They were then used but only enough copies of the paper for the Hoover party and the ship's captain could be turned out, so the other officers and the crew will be without their paper today.

Although Mr. Hoover will visit only one capital in Central America he will be greeted by the presidents of all four republics on which he will call from Sunday to Tuesday. At Amapala, Honduras, and La Union, Salvador, he will meet on Sunday the chief executives of those two countries. He will travel from Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, to the capital, San Jose, on Tuesday.

On Monday Mr. Hoover will be greeted at Corinto, Nicaragua, by President Diaz, President-elect Moncada and former President Chamorro. He will remain there during the day and an elaborate reception has been planned in his honor by the government of the country where American Marines have been preserving order, supervising an election and training a National Guard.

KILLED DRIVING FIRST TIME

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 23.—His first attempt to operate an automobile resulted in the death of Elmer Younkin, 36, of Confluence, killed near Wheeler when the machine he was driving was struck by a fast Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train. The man was told to wait in Capt. R. C. Bledsoe's machine. In attempting to start it he ran it on the railroad tracks, where the motor stalled. The train demolished the machine. A coroner's jury exonerated the owner of the machine and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

SMOKING ROOMS FOR WOMEN AND VENDING MACHINES PUT INTO STREET CARS

ETHEL CROUP IRMA McANULTY

And now to Pittsburgh trolley riders comes the "sampling machine," so-called by railways company officials because it gives the public an opportunity to sample products advertised nationally. The chewing gum vendors on the Crosstown cars, it is said, are the forerunner of automats which will serve most anything from needles to toothbrushes. Miss Ethel Croup and Miss Irma McAnulty help themselves to sweet chews on their way downtown.

DAGMAR PETERSON

The smoking car for women has become an actuality! Railways company officials have so long been embarrassed by the appeals of women who wish to smoke that interurban cars now have smoking compartments for women. Here, Miss Dagmar Peterson, Washington-bound, enjoys it.

FLORENCE KING HARRY YOUNG

Smoking compartments may once have reeked of heavy smoke and been "no place for a lady," but not now. Today, the air is clean and conversation runs to taffeta and organdies. Here Conductor Harry Young helps Miss Florence King to a light.

SHOT-RIDDLED RIVERMAN IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Suffering more than a score of bullet wounds received when he barricaded himself in his houseboat in the Ohio River and fought with police and peace officers, Louis Springer was reported in a critical condition in Sewickley Hospital today.

Seven charges, including assault and battery, resisting arrest, and pointing firearms have been lodged against Springer as a result of the gun battle, police say.

The shooting occurred Wednesday night when police went to Springer's houseboat to arrest Arthur Murphy, said to be Springer's friend. Murphy had been charged with pointing firearms in an information preferred by Chester Forsythe, of Forbes street. Murphy was arrested yesterday while at work on a dredge near Sewickley and was held for court by Justice of the Peace L. V. Gibb of Sewickley.

Mrs. Margaret Springer, wife of the wounded man, is held in the Sewickley jail in default of bail. Three accessory charges have been preferred against her, police say.

Alvaro Obregon, president-elect of Mexico. The magistrates have eight days in which to render a decision.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A dispatch to Universal Grafico from Tuxtepec, Oaxaca, says that a man giving the name Armando Rivas who has been arrested fits exactly descriptions of Manuel Trejo-Morales, from whom Jose De Leon Toral borrowed the pistol with which he shot General Obregon.

There has been a nation-wide search for Trejo-Morales since Toral's arrest, and until now it was believed he had escaped from the country.

SLAIN GIRL'S KIN GRILLED BY PROBERS

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 23—(A.P.)—Samuel Alley, father of Emma Alley, 16, who was found slain nearly a week ago, on the bank of a stream here, was questioned by detectives last night in the county jail. His son, Abraham, also was being detained in the County Detention Home, after being questioned.

Fred Alley, another brother of the slain girl, was said to be under questioning by the state police at the Butler barracks.

The father and Abraham Alley were taken into custody on a technical charge.

Detectives early today were investigating reports that persons residing near where the body was found saw a car without lights parked in the roadway the night of the killing. One of the neighbors was said to have used a flashlight to discover if anyone was in the car, and that a man at the wheel snapped on his lights and drove away.

BOOM COOLIDGE TO HEAD OIL INSTITUTE

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The New York Herald Tribune says a move to offer the presidency of the American Petroleum Institute to President Coolidge at the institute's annual meeting in Chicago December 3-6 has been started by officials powerful in the industry.

The New York Times quotes W. R. Boyd, Jr., assistant general secretary of the institute, as saying:

"The names of President Coolidge, Gen. Pershing, Vice President Dawes and Owen D. Young have been suggested in this connection, but nothing has been done about it and, so far as I know, the institute has not given the matter any consideration."

The American Petroleum Institute is the national trade organization for the oil industry. Heretofore the president has been selected from within the industry, E. W. Clark, of Los Angeles, being the incumbent.

The Twentieth Century Club presented Christine Miller-Clemson, contralto, and Earl Mitchell, pianist, in recital yesterday afternoon before a most appreciative audience. The club auditorium was most cozily arranged as a very comfortable music room at home, and did much to break the formality from which one suffers at all public concerts, and which detracts so seriously from the intimate character of a song recital.

The acoustics of this room are so far superior to most recital halls that Mrs. Clemson's voice responded at once with its best qualities. While her songs were those we have become accustomed to associate with this fine singer, all of them take on new glow under ideal conditions, and each time one listens. Not the least of Mrs. Clemson's virtues is her ability to sing among intimate friends, and yet, the moment she approaches her songs, to draw a magic circle about herself, out of which circle she never steps to project the message of her sincere art.

Earl Mitchell contributed his usual best, a fine musical support for any-one whom he accompanies.

Rays From Light Thrown On County's Graft Pool

Yesterday was Abie Berkowitz Day in Federal Court. From 10:[illegible] a. m. to 3 p. m. Abie sat comfortably in the witness chair and told details of what he called the North Side ring. This is an alert, medium-sized racketeer (at least he was in the racket) of 35 years or so. If you had to name one man responsible for this whole Federal investigation Abie would be that man.

Abie, so he tells, became tired of kicking in to the police and submitting to numerous raids ([illegible] 19—count 'em!). He went to the Federal Building and told the [illegible] prosecutors about it and the result: 167 indictments.

Abie testified that he quit buying moonshine from the Woods Run Police Station because he was being short-measured! He'd pay for a five-gallon can, let us say, and later discover the can held only three gallons. This was part of the testimony stricken out by Judge Gibson.

Abie apparently is a good-natured fellow. Just before he left the stand he said this: "I'm not angry with anybody. Friends with all. Whatever I say is the truth."

"Is your word as good as your check?" Defense Counsel Prichard, who once represented Abie, asked?

"I gave you cash, too," Abie retaliated.

Judge Gibson smiled. "Confine yourselves to the case," he admonished.

Prichard—When did you give Lieut. Lynch $20?

Abie—I don't remember, but I gave him $10 more, too.

Prichard—It's the twenty I want!

Abie—Lynch got it!

You may remember that the most popular exercise in the Allegheny City Gymnasium Club was rapping vigorously on the bar (one, two, three, four!) for the bartender. Now comes Mr. John Frederick Ruthenbach of the Trey Hill Liedertafel (a singing society) with a report on the many schooners of whisky and Chicago beer which, he doesn't [illegible], soothed the song-tired vocal chords of more than one bass.

We have had John Doe for years. Controller McGovern's probings gave us Nat Brown, the well-paid ghost of the county payroll. Joe Green, we know from this trial, was no more real than a calling card. And now add to your list of phantoms Jack Burke, identified yesterday as Elliott Donley, a defendant.

It was in January, 1928, that Little Abie might have sent this card to customers and friends:

"Mr. Abraham Berkowitz wishes to announce his retirement from the business of selling moonshine."

The philosophy of a bootlegger: It's better to pay $50 for police fund tickets than to pay $100 fine for a raid.—Abraham Berkowitz.

Abie said before he entered into the bootlegging industry he was in the installment business.

"What's the installment business," Counsellor Coll asked.

"I went from house to house selling clothes on the installment plan."

Abie said he had once been a fruit peddler.

"What kind of fruit did you sell?"

"Apples, potatoes, tomatoes—" Abie started, but the rest of his answer was drowned in a laugh.

Slain Bandit Victim Not Theater Manager

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Paul T. Pulliam, supervisor of a string of motion picture theaters here, who was shot and killed by bandits Tuesday night, was not the manager of the Fountain Square Theater as was first reported.

PIN THREAT ON FORNEY

to "Joseph Parks," bearing that indorsement and Johnson's.

John P. Faith, president, John F. Ruthenbach and John Fronhapfel, succeeding treasurers, and Albert Andrews, secretary, officers of the Trey Hill Liedertafel, testified regarding their dealings with Schroedel and Wills.

TESTIFIES ON CHECKS

Checks for liquor were made payable to "cash" and Ruthenbach said he delivered one check to Wills and Fronhapfel said he delivered checks to Johnson. All identified checks. A five-minute conversation between Schroedel and Ruthenbach at the engine house, where the officers had journeyed to see the ward chairman about reopening after the raid, was described, Ruthenbach testifying that he asked Schroedel what he was going to do about the reopening and was referred to Wills.

He said he saw Wills on Wednesday, when Wills told him if he would "buy the stuff everything will be O. K.," and that night the 30 gallons were delivered to the club. After reopening the following Sunday, Lieut. Callahan did not further molest the club, he testified. On cross-examination, the witness admitted that the club is still dispensing liquor.

For the first time since the trial started the name of Herman Bloedel, a defendant in the case, was mentioned. Joseph Gottan, of 817 Chestnut street, testified that Bloedel sold him beer for $45 a barrel, but that he quit buying from Bloedel to buy from Fred Stratman, former prohibition agent.

The testimony to date has involved five North Side ward chairmen in the alleged booze traffic. John P. O'Donnell, chairman of the Twenty-second Ward, gave the word for a saloon to open in that ward, and Robert Murray, chairman of the Twenty-third Ward, acted as the "go-between," according to testimony yesterday.

In previous testimony William Herd, chairman of the Twenty-first Ward, and State Assemblyman Samuel J. Grenet, chairman of the Twenty-seventh Ward, had been named by witnesses in connection with privilege.

The most sensational testimony of the trial was given yesterday by Abraham J. Berkowitz, of 3045 Preble avenue, regarded as the star witness of the prosecution. At the outset, he told of purchasing whisky from a storehouse in the Woods Run Police Station through an unidentified policeman, which testimony was afterwards ordered stricken from the record by Judge R. M. Gibson because it was too remote and did not connect any of the defendants with it.

Berkowitz, known as "Abie" and regarded as a prime instigator of the grand jury probe into conditions on the North Side after scores of raids and alleged persecution by police to exclude him from extensive liquor operations, named Police Inspector Charles Faulkner and described alleged dealings with police lieutenants, particularly Police Lieutenants John Lynch, Edward Arthur and Thomas Morgan.

Berkowitz testified he gave sums of money to these three lieutenants to prevent prosecutions. He also told of efforts to enlist the aid of Grenet and of an alleged visit to Grenet at the Fort Pitt brewery, the details of which he was not permitted to explain. On cross-examination he admitted saying he would "get even" with Lynch.

Charles Standfast, who formerly conducted a saloon at Sandusky and Robinson streets, who had previously testified that he purchased liquor from Benjamin Shor, one of defendants, was recalled yesterday to produce and identify checks in evidence of the liquor transactions, which he did.

Government Counsel Ralph H. Smith asked the witness if he had seen anybody before opening his saloon. Standfast explained that he had gone to Murray because he was chairman of the Twenty-third Ward, in which the witness had his residence. The saloon was located in the Twenty-second Ward. Standfast said that, accompanied by his brother, Murray and two others, after an engagement had been made, he went to "the squire's office on East Ohio street," where they met O'Donnell. Standfast asserted that Murray, in his presence, proposed to O'Donnell the opening of the saloon by Standfast and that O'Donnell asked Murray, "Are you for him?" and that when Murray replied, "Yes," O'Donnell said, "Go ahead." Standfast said he opened a week later.

STUDENT-KILLER GOING TO FUNERAL OF BOY HE SLEW

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—C. H. Westbrook, Howard College junior, was released last night on $2,500 bond on a charge of first degree manslaughter, in connection with the death of Montress Freeman, Birmingham Southern freshman, who was slain last night as the culmination of several weeks of rivalry between the two schools.

Westbrook left immediately for Gadsden, Ala., with his mother, where they will attend funeral services today for the slain youth.

H. A. Nelson, of Birmingham, testified at the inquest that Westbrook snapped a revolver once while pointed at the feet of the 230-pound freshman before sending a bullet through Freeman's chest when the latter advanced toward him threatening to shave Westbrook's head.

Head shaving has been employed frequently in the intense rivalry between students of the colleges which had come to be traditional in Birmingham prior to their annual football game, the next to be played Saturday.

Recognition was given to the request of Freeman's father, T. J. Freeman, a steel plant foreman at Gadsden, Ala., that the game be played as his son "would not want it cancelled."

TELLS JURY HE SOLD LIQUOR

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 23.—One of the most dramatic developments in Venango county's liquor court history took place when H. S. Marcy, on trial for possessing and selling liquor, suddenly admitted that he was a bootlegger, had been in the business for several years, had brought shipments from Erie and disposed of them to buyers in this vicinity. He declared that he quit the business weeks before Oil City officers raided his place. The jury was out [illegible] minutes and brought in a conviction.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

THE most persistent persons we know of are the operators and managers at WCAE. After failing to "get out" on a short antenna and various other tricks and devices designed to improve transmission, these people are determined to try again.

Although they played their trump card yesterday and Wednesday night when they used a short antenna, they still have hope that they may improve the transmitting conditions enough to reach the thousand and one listeners in the tri-state territory who are complaining to the Sun-Telegraph that "WCAE is lost in the jungles."

We had hope that the short antenna would help some. But apparently it did not help at all.

One fan wrote, "I had been hearing WCAE very faintly, but Wednesday night I didn't get them at all. Don't make things any worse. I really thought they couldn't be any worse until Wednesday night."

So WCAE is going to try again. This positively must be their last resort for there is no device or trick connected with the transmitting end of the game that they have not tried. The idea this time is to use the old antenna running north to south instead of east to west. Strange things often happen in this radio game but if this change in aerial direction does any good we will be most surprised.

The tone of the letters received by the Sun-Telegraph is changing just a little. The sentiment is very much against the new wave length for WCAE, but writers of the letters are engineers, radio amateurs and fans who have always taken the trouble to study wave-length changes thoroughly before making any criticism. These experienced men feel that the Federal Radio Commission should put WCAE back on its old wavelength of 461.3 meters. This would improve reception conditions in Pittsburgh a hundred per cent, they declare.

One of yesterday's contributors was J. B. Sprague, who several times has used an up-to-date, highly-sensitive receiving set in tests for the Federal Radio Commission.

Mr. Sprague writes:

"The lower bands are too crowded with stations within a short distance of each other. I am not a distance-hound, usually being content to listen to the local stations and to work for quality rather than distance; but I do think that a city of the importance of Pittsburgh (especially with reference to its services to the radio industry) is entitled to clear reception of all its four stations. It is a modest request. Why not give us a break?

"This is not the wail of the owner of an antiquated set. My DX reports in the past year have been of value to the Federal Radio Commission, as attested by a number of letters of thanks from that body."

With his antenna cut down to two feet, Mr. Sprague was still unable to get WCAE clearly. The station comes in with a whistling obbligato simply unbearable, he writes.

Every time we print a letter from a fan who favors the new arrangement for WCAE we get an influx of letters from complaining fans requesting details of the reception. While this department would like very much to be of service to these fans it is not practical in view of the large number of letters being received to write any answers at the present time. All comments should be addressed directly to the Radio Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

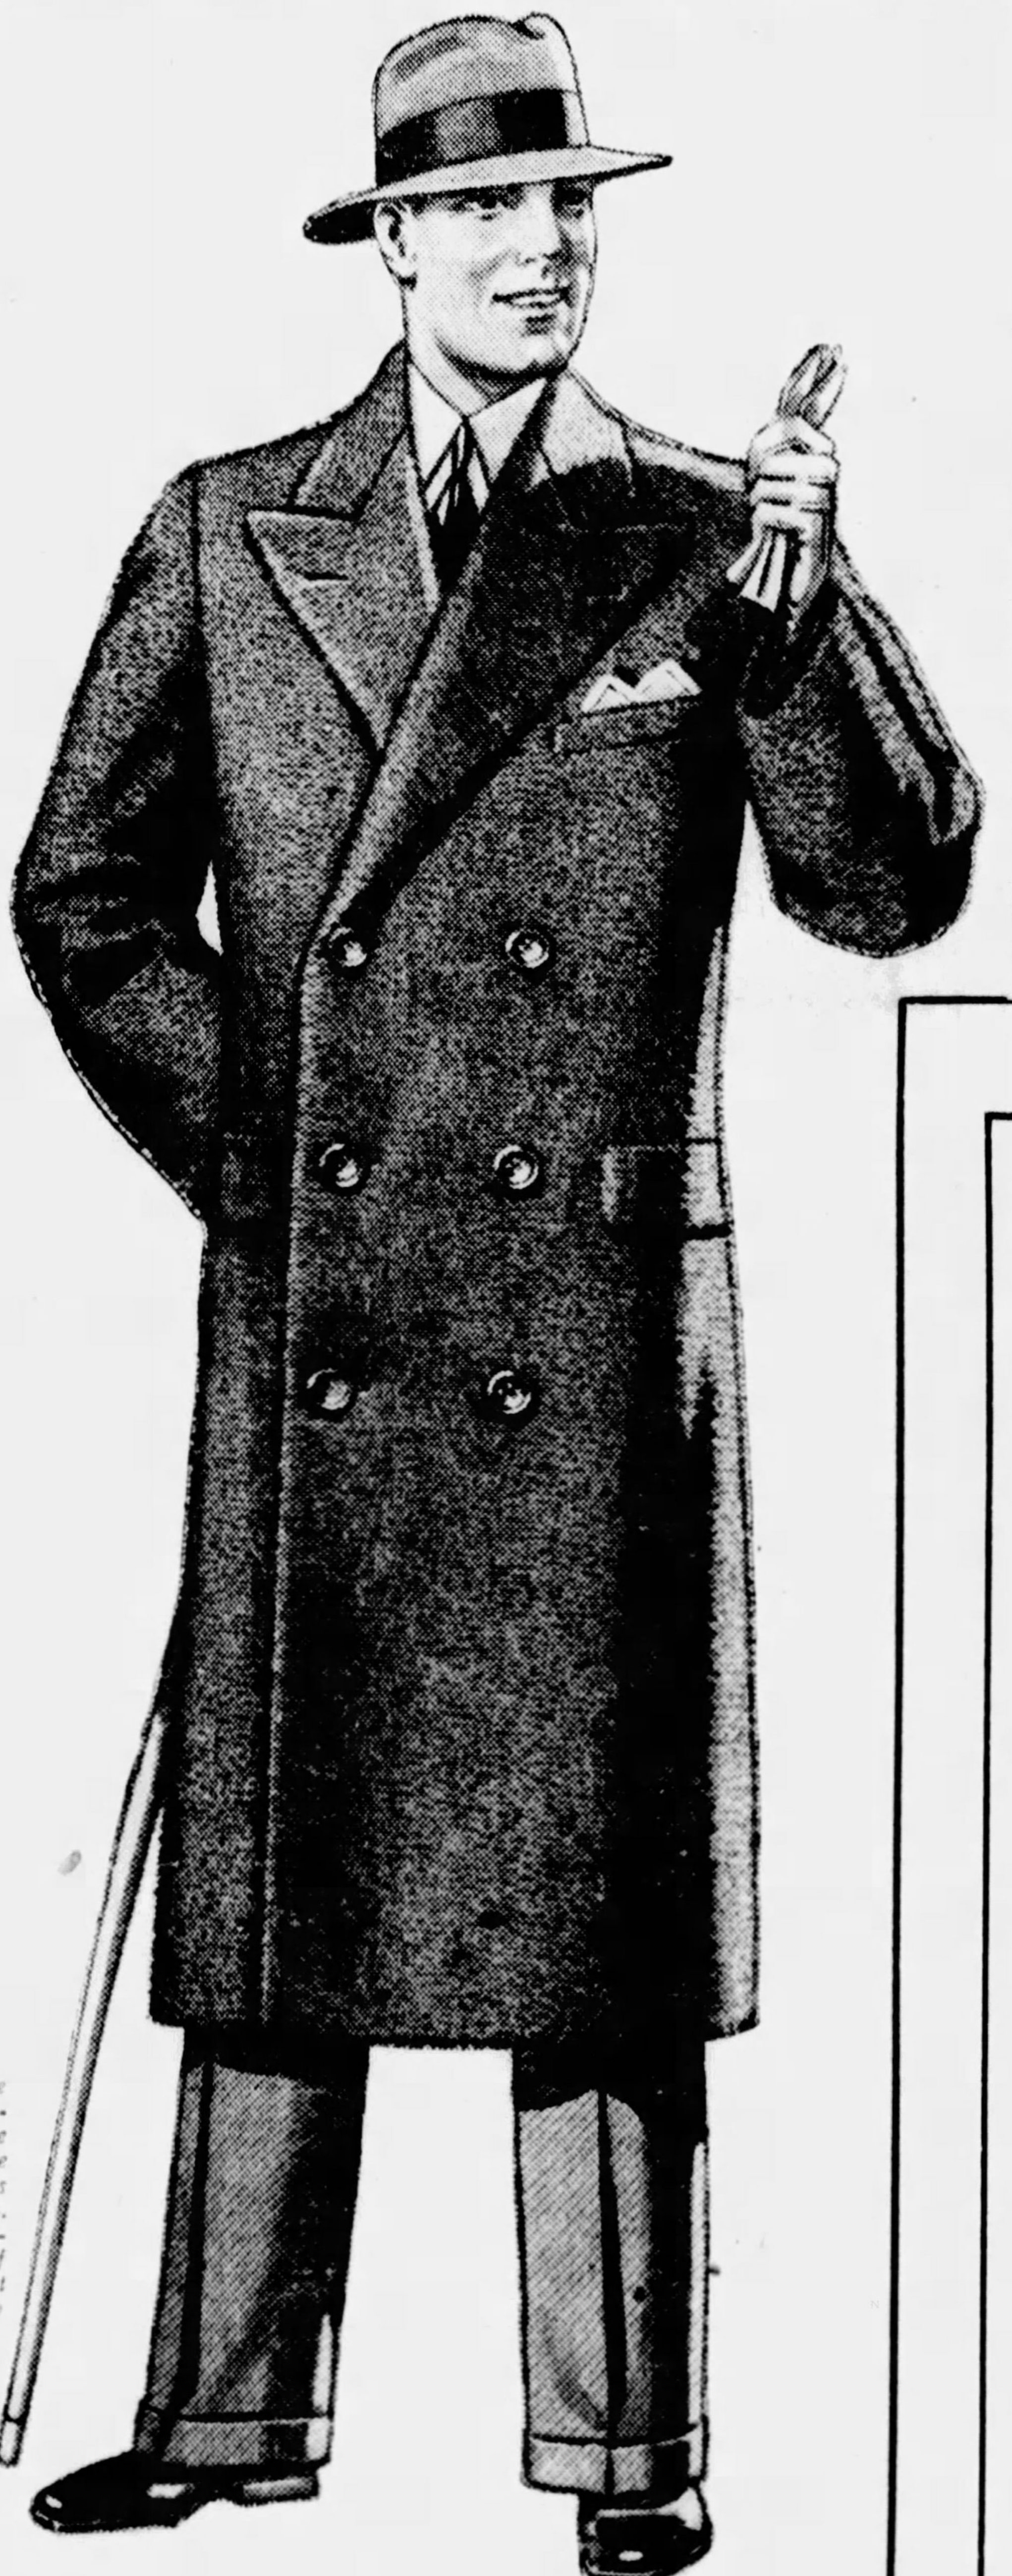
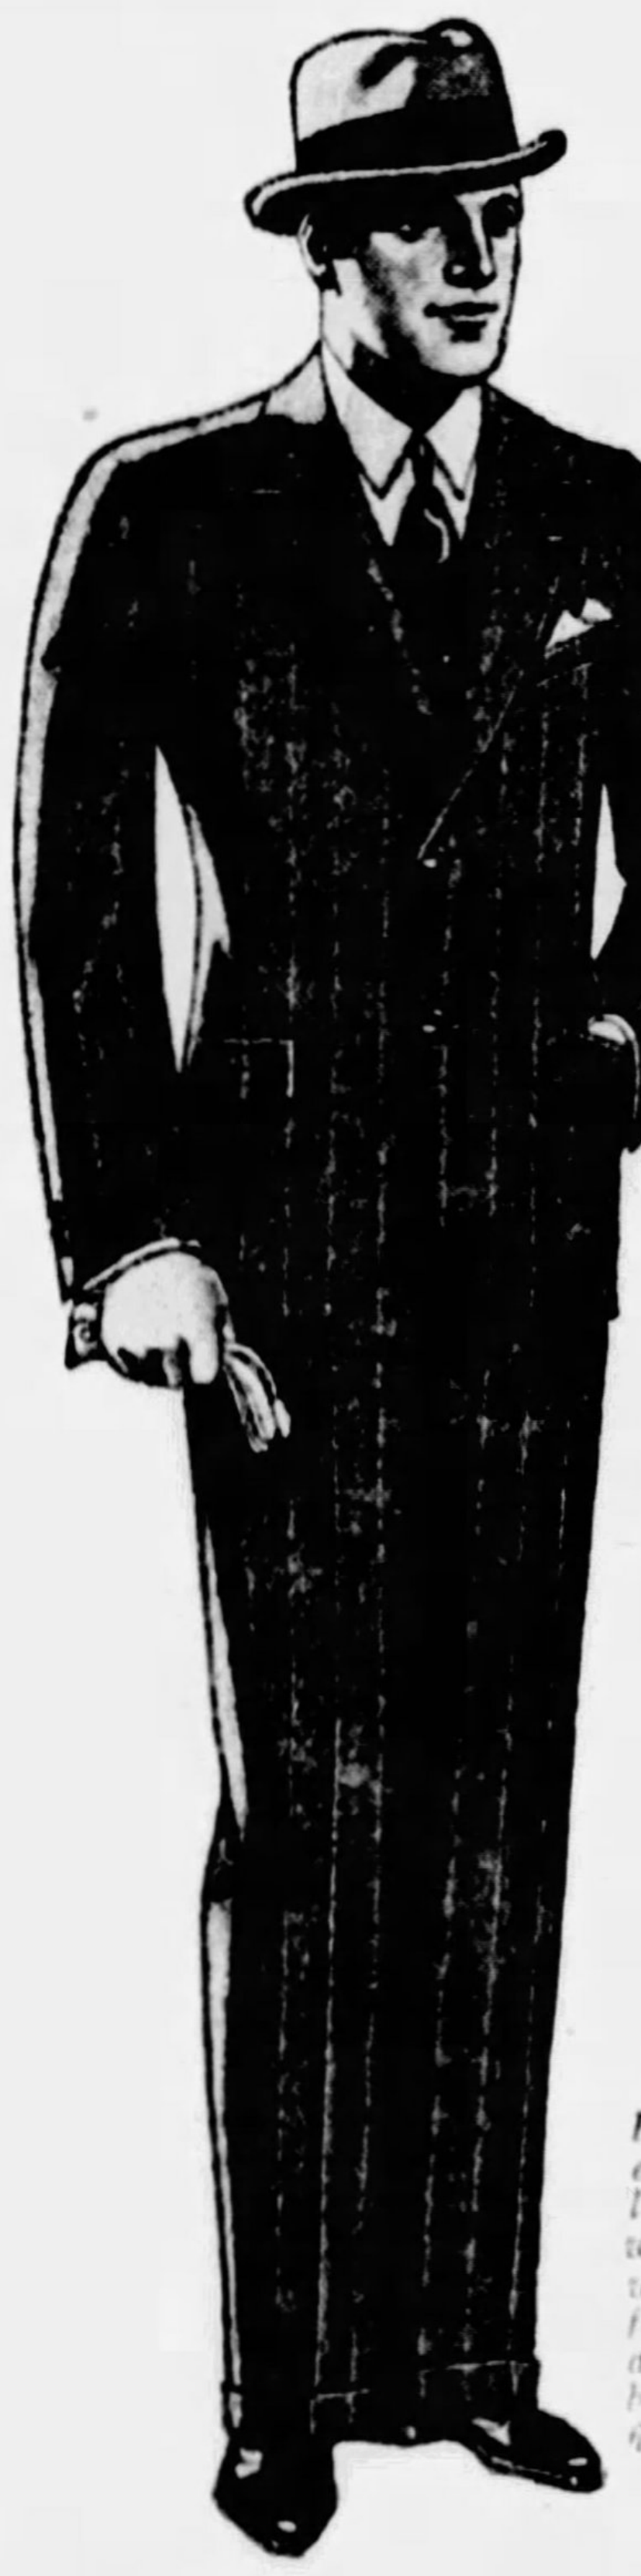
Guaranteed Finest Quality Clothes Ever Offered at 22.50

GENTLEMEN, do you realize this very important fact: There is just one make of men's clothes selling at $22.50, which the woolen experts, the leading designers and prominent master-tailors unhesitatingly choose as The Finest! That's Howard. We have said before we're not the oldest concern in the business and not the biggest—not yet—but the plain, unvarnished truth of the matter is that we do make a finer garment than any other clothing house, large or small, in the $22.50 game—and no non-partisan clothing authority will deny it! Strong language, but we mean every word, regardless of what other advertisements claim. The real test is in the clothes. Come in and judge for yourself. Whatever you decide is O K with us.



Howard's Blue Whitney Overcoat, made from genuine Metcalfe Mills Whitney Cloth. Satin lining replaced free if it wears out within two years.



Howard's Ritz model is beautifully tailored in the kind of worsteds that men who understand fabrics will appreciate. Loose-rolled labels and slightly-fitted back.

JOHNSON TO AID BOULDER DAM MEASURE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Backers of the Swing-Johnson Boulder Dam bill were cheered by receipt of word today that Senator Hiram Johnson (R.), of California, will reach Washington in time to lead the fight for enactment of the measure in the Senate.

The California senator is convalescing from a "flu" attack and it had been reported that he would be unable to be here until after Christmas.

Since the Boulder Dam measure is first on the Senate calendar and faces the possibility of filibustering tactics by the opposition, backers of the measure are eager that the bill keep its place in the Senate's order of business.

COOLIDGE SUPPORT

President Coolidge is expected to touch off the Boulder Dam fight anew in his annual message with a strong re-indorsement of the project, designed to dam the Colorado River to provide flood protection, reclamation and electric power for a great section of the Southwest.

The report of the special board of engineers named to survey the project is understood to back substantially all the claims made in the past of the feasibility of the dam.

ATTACKERS GET 30 YEARS

Eugene Miller, 28, and Arthur Adams, 30, Negroes, of Dershon street, North Side, were sentenced to serve from 15 to 30 years in Western Penitentiary by Judge James B. Drew in Criminal Court today, after they had pleaded guilty to attacking two white women.

Five other charges of assault and battery, growing out of attacks on women, and three charges of robbery are pending against them on which they will be tried later.

"Your offense is very serious and it merits severe punishment," declared Judge Drew in sentencing the two.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure covers the Ohio Valley states, the central and lower Mississippi Valley states and the Gulf states; highest barometer, 30.58 inches, at Vicksburg. It caused a slight fall in temperature everywhere east of the Mississippi to freezing and slightly below in the Ohio Valley states, and light frost in the Gulf states. The skies are mostly clear throughout the high pressure area, but cloudy with snow flurries over the Appalachian Mountains and nearby points. The pressure continues high over the far West.

A low pressure area is moving eastward over Canada. It is centered north of Lake Superior this morning, and extends southwestward, in the form of a trough, over the northern plains to Colorado. There is no precipitation reported in this disturbance, but it is causing rising temperatures over the Plains states.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling everywhere. Stage at Pittsburgh is 14.4 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.9, and Dam No. 6, 12.4. The dams are down.

BEST IN AERIAL SAFETY DESTROYED

With two pilots and 20 passengers aboard, this gigantic all-metal plane, the last word in aerial safety, beauty, speed and dependability, was being tried out at Bristol, Pa., and then was completely destroyed in a hangar fire. The big ship was rightly named "The Patrician." The main cabin was six feet wide, 19 feet, six inches long. It was powered with three motors.

BUGS BAER Says

RADIO reports from the Marine White House, broadcast through station H A T.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Relayed by the grapevine wireless.

Picked up an amateur on a six-tube banjo.

Released a load of official static from station H A T.

Didn't make any sense. Attempts to decode it indicates that it consists of fragments of campaign speech looking for its dady.

Tried again. Finally located Marine White House with next President on board.

Everybody healthy and happy. Can't be sure of direction until we can get some of those newspapermen away from the wheel.

Lifelong Republican chasing Maryland in rowboat.

Wants to give the next president a mascot.

Newspaperman from New York got seasick.

Hasn't had any food or drink in five years.

Didn't want to be rescued or fed.

When he heard Hoover was on board, castaway hollered "speech."

Castaway rescued against his will. Once aboard the lugger he admitted he was a Democrat.

We put him back on the island.

(Follow station H A T for daily reports of President Hoover's good will scamper.)

FAMILY AWAY, GEMS STOLEN

Jewelry worth $200 and $48 was stolen from the home of Adolph Spahr, 5562 Forbes street during the family's absence last evening. A slicker was stolen from the home of Dr. C. H. Ingram, 2223 Shady avenue, yesterday afternoon.

WON'T BE MAIL BRIDE

MERCEDES GLEITZE

Mercedes Gleitze, London typist who swam the channel, plans to go unkissed a while longer, keeping her girlhood vow that the first man to taste her lips would be her husband. Then she became engaged by mail to Private William Farrance, off with His Majesty's Forces in India, after he had written her a letter when he saw her picture as the channel-swimmer. He can't catch up with her and she makes no effort to notify him the wedding is off, saying only to others she's not ready for marriage.

KISSLESS MERMAID JILTS ROMANCE-BY-MAIL FIANCE

By J. C. OESTREICHER,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The first kiss of Miss Mercedes Gleitze, beautiful English swimmer and conqueror of English Channel, who is living up to a girlhood vow to allow no man to kiss her until he is her husband, is not for Private William Farrance, her "mail order fiance."

The postal courtship and betrothal of Miss Gleitze, formerly a London typist, and Private Farrance, of His Majesty's forces in India, whom she had never seen, appears to have broken up on the shoals of disenchantment, according to their friends today.

This long distance romance began after Miss Gleitze swam the channel and Private Ferrance, then attached to the East Lancashire Regiment at Quetta, India, wrote her a letter. He had been attracted by her picture in a newspaper. Farrance proposed by letter and was accepted. The marriage was to have taken place in England this month.

This beautiful romance, whose gossamer pinions stretched half way round the world, was exclusively revealed by International News Service and attracted worldwide attention.

Now, Private Ferrance has arrived in London to carry out his part of the romance, but Miss Gleitze has evidently exercised the strictly feminine prerogative of changing her mind.

Sliding Dirt Crushes Workman to Death

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—When the ground collapsed under him as he was helping unload a truckload of dirt, Frank Tarrado, 58, of Swatara station, was crushed beneath the machine yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred at a quarry near Hershey. The injured man died two hours later.

Sectional Rug Pad Company Dissolved

A petition for a decree dissolving the Letzkus Sectional Rug Pad Company was signed in Common Pleas Court by Judge Thomas J. Ford.

NATIONS ASKED TO SUPPRESS DOPE TRADE

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—A resolution calling for an inquiry into what is being done in other nations to prevent the spread of the illegal use of narcotic drugs was adopted yesterday at an annual meeting of committees of the world conference on narcotic education.

The resolution was introduced after Richmond P. Hobson, chairman of the governing board and secretary general of the conference, had declared the production of habit-forming narcotics is "growing at an alarming rate."

It requested the governing board to confer with the State Department with the view of obtaining senatorial authorization for the secretary of state.

THE RESOLUTION

"To report as soon as practicable upon measures in operation in other countries, whose governments are signatory to The Hague convention of 1912, and to the Geneva convention of 1925, to carry out their covenants under these conventions to limit within their respective jurisdiction the manufacture of habit-forming narcotic drugs to the requirements of medical and scientific use."

A committee appointed to carry out the purposes of the resolution comprises: United States Senator Reed Smoot, Godfrey Lowell Cabot and Col. D. W. MacCormack.

MONONGAHELA NATIONAL BANK IN NEW BUILDING

The Monongahela National Bank today is housed once more at Wood street and Liberty avenue, where it was established 40 years ago. The handsome new triangular building, occupying all the property bounded by Wood street, Liberty avenue and Sixth avenue, was formally opened last night.

The building is of Indiana limestone. The main entrance is through a massive bronze doorway, with huge outer sliding doors, also of bronze. The lobby is finished in Botticino marble. The main banking room is two stories high and is said to be one of the best naturally lighted banking rooms in the country.

The service counter, enclosing the tellers and officers, is so designed as to place them in immediate contact with depositors. The old-fashioned metal cage has been supplanted by a delicate open bronze grill. For the convenience of those desiring to make deposits when the bank is closed a deposit chute has been opened on the Sixth street side.

The safe deposit vaults are on the lower level and are reached from the entrance lobby by either stairway or elevator. An ap-has been established on the mezzanine floor. Above the main banking room are two floors devoted to offices for the accountants and clerks. Private conference rooms occupy the top floor.

The officers of the Monongahela National Bank are: John W. Lloyd, chairman of the board; James E. Fulton, president; F. C. MacMillan and G. C. Arbold, vice presidents; Malcolm S. Vandevort, cashier; R. W. Mercer, H. C. Burchinal and F. S. Callander, assistant cashiers.

The directors are S. G. Cooper, G. M. Jones, J. W. Lloyd, D. W. McNaugher, F. C. MacMillan, Robert L. [illegible], P. J. Logan, E. W. Crellin, C. C. [illegible], T. H. B. McKnight, W. E. Evans, J. E. Fulton, Allen Kirkpatrick, Jr., R. V. Ringay, J. C. [illegible] and M. S. Vandevort.

WIFE DIVORCES TELLEGEN; LOVE GONE, SAYS ACTOR

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Lou Tellegen, actor, yesterday greeted the news of the end of his third matrimonial venture on the divorce court shoals in Los Angeles with the words: "Fate guides us; we cannot guide fate." Commenting further on the divorce granted Mrs. Isabel Craven Tellegen, he said:

"Why should I hold her, when we no longer loved each other as we did five years ago when we married? She is young, only 25. It is utterly foolish for us to be unhappily bound together when life is so short. Over the past two years there has been a misunderstanding. I thought it best that she be released."

The court awarded the custody of their 4-year-old son, Rex, to Mrs. Tellegen.

In her suit, Mrs. Tellegen charged that acts of infidelity on the part of her husband had caused her great unhappiness and pain.

The letter which Tellegen was said to have written to his wife read:

"I can only admit that the truth is that I have been unfaithful to you with several other women. Time and place do not matter. Who they are you could find out, but that won't make any difference to you.

"The facts remain that I am living with some one else and intend to continue to do so. You can let me know how you feel in the matter and what you are going to do about it."

Dinner Party Bandits Rob Five, Get $1,000

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Two masked bandits invaded the home of Paul Harris, an advertising man, last night, and surprised a dinner party. The bandits escaped with jewelry and money valued at $1,000, after locking the host and his five guests in a room upstairs. Neighbors attracted by the cries of the victims, liberated them.

4 CAUGHT "BROADCASTING" RACE TIPS AT BOWIE TRACK

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Prince Georges county officers last night arrested four men whom they charged with sending out racing information unlawfully with the use of a high frequency radio transmitting set.

The arrests followed a raid on a house located a mile from the Bowie race track, where the officers found two telescopes, one trained on the post and another on the finish line on the track. A vest-pocket sending set, believed used at the track to transmit last minute odds, and a number of notes in code also were seized.

The men gave the names Peter Coane, John Fay, Thomas Psyffe and John Troy, all of Baltimore. They were held on bail of $750 for action by the police court of Upper Marlboro.

DAVIS SEES HIGHER PAY, SHORTER DAY FOR LABORER

Dragged 200 Feet By Train—Only Slightly Hurt

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Imprisoned in their automobile when it was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad locomotive yesterday, Ed Heiber and Jeannette Merz were carried 200 feet before the engine could be stopped.

Heiber suffered only minor cuts and bruises, while Miss Merz received a broken collarbone.

Hiking Club Plans Ambridge Walk

The Pittsburgh Hiking Club will walk Sunday from Ambridge to Sewickley. The members will go to Ambridge on the Pennsylvania Railroad train leaving the Union Station at 2 o'clock. North Side members can board the same train five minutes later at the Fort Wayne Station, Federal street. E. C. Shoemaker will lead the marchers.

PRE-WAR WAGE OPPOSED BY SECRETARY

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Predicting a shorter day with higher wages in American industry, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, addressing the American Federation of Labor here today declared the long day and week principle is already "dead as a dodo," although there are a few sections of the country not yet in step.

Davis opposed reducing wages to pre-war levels, and said prosperity is never promoted by wage cuts.

KEY TO PROSPERITY

"Prosperity," he said, "is only created and enlarged by a liberal wage, and for the simplest reason.

"The millions of workers are the greatest buyers in our markets, and a liberal wage equips them with a buying power that makes business by the simple means of creating a bigger market."

Davis said that it was his firm conviction that the business leaders of the country "will soon link the shorter day with the higher wage as a cardinal principle of prosperity."

At the present time, he said, there are a number of industries that are in an unstable condition. He referred particularly to the textile industry.

CITES COAL TROUBLES

Referring to the soft-coal situation, Davis said the war stirred that industry to unusual activity, "and so has brought about another example of unrest and utter disorganization." When the war demands had been filled the country had a potential production that was nearly double the commercial, household and transportation demands of peace.

"The result has been numerous wage cuts, unemployment and all the other ailments that follow in the wake of over-production and fierce competition," he said. "It seems as if wise business men and intelligent workers might have worked out some remedial methods to meet these difficulties, but the situation has apparently resolved itself into a test of endurance."

Davis expressed the hope that the soft coal industry might "be saved from within itself and put in step with the onward march of American industry in general."

He said that he was satisfied that "all the ills of coal could, and will be, adjusted around the council table of the industry, as we are learning to do in nearly every other American industry."

A campaign in 1929 to "make every laborer a member of a trade union" was approved yesterday by the convention.

The plan was presented by Miss Gertrude McNally of the federation's committee on organization and received the unanimous approval of the delegates.

In presenting the report of the organization committee, Miss McNally said membership at the end of the last fiscal year was 2,893,913, an increase of 81,387 over the previous year.

4 ARRESTED IN COUNTY DRY RAIDS

Two saloons in Glassport, stores in Clairton and on the Hill and a residence in Shaler township were raided by Federal dry raiders yesterday. Four men were arrested and released on bonds, agents say.

The Glassport saloons visited were at 608 Monongahela avenue, and at 514 Monongahela avenue. A. E. Shodal, 44, was taken at the former place and Mike Sebert, 48, at the latter.

The seizure of a quantity of moonshine in a store at 1222 Clark street led to the arrest of Sam Muro, 34, agents declare. In a two-story frame dwelling in East Ohio street, Shaler township, a 25-gallon still and 10 gallons of moonshine were found. J. F. Sgroi, 47, was reported arrested in a store raid at Large avenue and Third street, Clairton.

JUDGE PORTER SPENDS $3,600

HARRISBURG, Nov. 23.—Re-election to the State Superior Court cost Judge W. D. Porter, Pittsburgh, $3,600 in contributions, he reported today to the State Elections Bureau. His largest expenditure was $2,500, given to the Republican State Committee. His other gifts included $500 each to the Republican executive committee of Allegheny County and the central campaign committee of Philadelphia and $100 to the Republican National Committee.

Charles A. Waters, Philadelphia, auditor general-elect, reported expenses of $2,744.90. He gave $2,500 to the Republican State Committee, spent $91 traveling, gave $100 to the Twenty-second Ward Republican Club of Philadelphia and paid out $53.90 to the Davis Photo Service.

Being chosen a Republican elector cost Walter W. Krebs, Johnstown, $500, he reported. It was in the form of a gift to the Cambria County Republican Committee.

Official returns came in today from Berks, Somerset and Northampton counties. There remain only seven counties not yet reporting.

GIRL OBEYS DAD; DIES AT DOOR

LYNDENHURST, N. J., Nov. 23.—(INS.)—Ordered by her father to return to her home here from Baltimore, Katherine Senft, 18, shot and killed herself on the doorstep of her father's home. A pistol was found in one hand and in the other the following note:

"Dear Dad: You ordered me home, and here I am."

The only explanation that her stricken parent could advance today was that she had resented being recalled from her new life in Baltimore, where she had made many friends while staying at the home of a relative.

"I was lonesome without her," Senft said sadly. "She was my only child."

He explained that he had asked her to return home on account of the added expense of living in Baltimore and because she had given up a better position here than the one she had in Baltimore. She had been away six months.

3 Auto Bandits Rob Man In Wilkinsburg

Three holdup men obtained a $38 check and $10 in cash from James H. Hamilton, of 426 Ella street, early today when they stopped him in Walnut street, near Mt. View street, Wilkinsburg. The robbers, traveling in an old automobile, drew up alongside the curb and stepped out beside Hamilton. All three men had revolvers, Hamilton told police.

'BACK-TO-NATURE' FILMS LAND TRIO IN LAW'S TOILS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Motion pictures showing scenes too lurid even for the eyes of a federal grand jury composed entirely of men, led government officials to move further today against what was described as a ring for distributors of indecent motion pictures.

Part of one of the confiscated reels, showing a "back to nature" drama, was flashed on an improvised screen in the darkened grand jury room. After a few scenes the foreman stopped the picture, and shortly afterward indictments were returned against three men.

The defendants named were W. J. Larivee, called by postoffice inspectors the leader of the distributing ring; Harry Winter, who is alleged to have financed the venture, and H. W. Smith, called the head of the Hollywood distributing office. Bond for each was set at $5,000.

Parents of high school students and other young people employed about Hollywood testified before the grand jury. The principals in the case are alleged to have filmed the pictures in the hills back of Hollywood and distributed them over the country through the mails.

Federal agents said the three indicted men had realized several hundred thousand dollars profit on the venture.

Divorce, Suicide Linked, Survey Reveals

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The suicide rate among divorced persons, according to Prof. Arthur J. Todd's statistics, is four times as great as among people happily married.

Prof. Todd, head of Northwestern University's sociological department, said that investigation undertaken by his department showed a ratio of one divorce to every seven marriages in this country, indicating, he thought, a "serious disorder."

The percentage of suicides among divorced people, he said, "is proof of mental instability and social maladjustment."

He criticized "companionate marriage" as "socially unsound."

PIG IRON RULING NOT FELT HERE

The lifting of the anti-dumping order again pig iron, announced yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, is not expected to have any immediate effect on pig iron producers in this district, in the opinion of those in the trade.

German pig iron never has been a factor in this market, but supplied coastal points only.

The restriction had been in effect since 1926, under authority of the tariff act of 1922, which allows the Treasury to assess special duties to protect local industry when foreign manufacturers sell in this country for prices less than in their own.

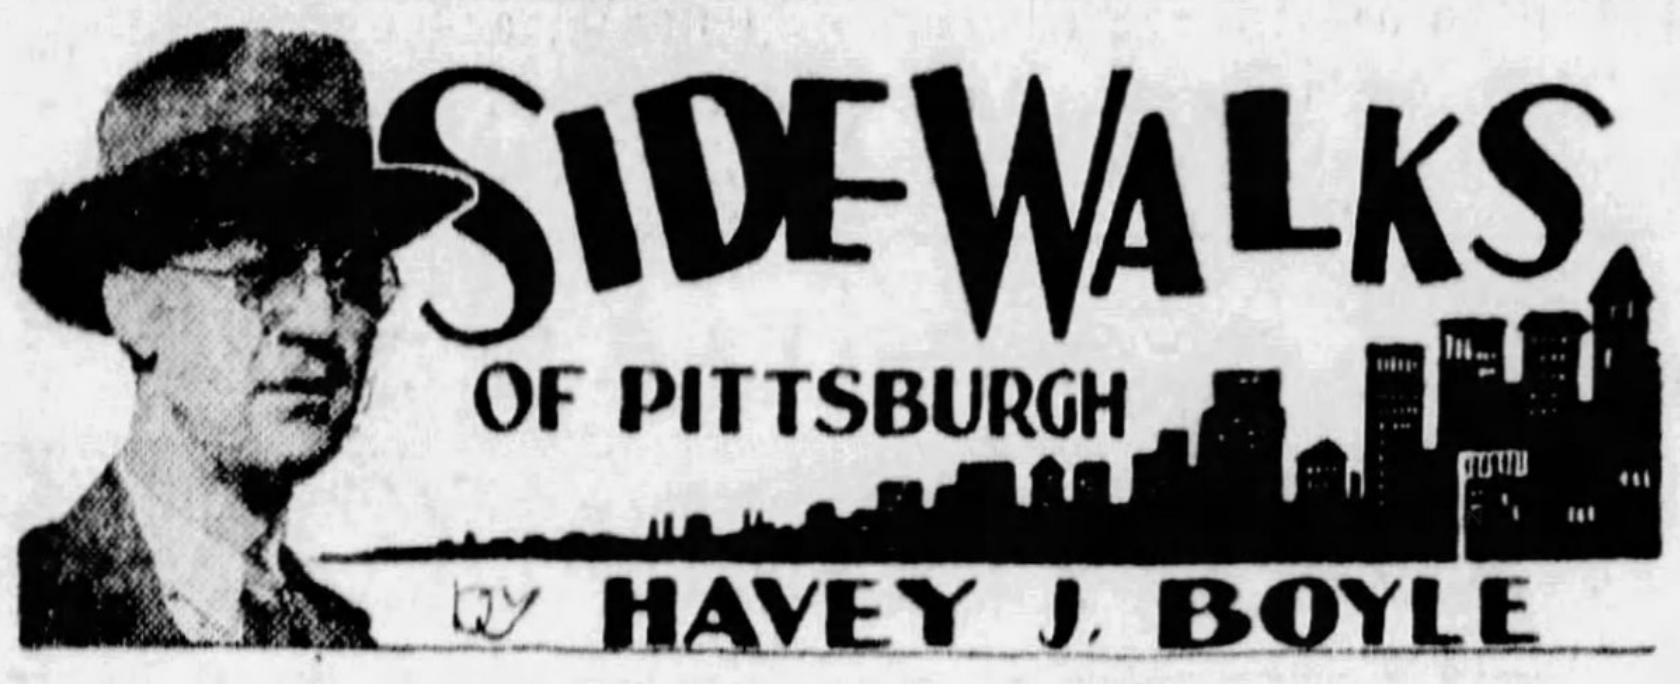
METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS



SIDE-WALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

JOE TAGGART, of the Baltimore and Ohio, is one Pittsburgher who has had contact with President-elect Herbert Hoover. About two years ago when the President-elect was Secretary of Commerce, he passed through Pittsburgh on his way to Cleveland. Taggart was notified by wire that Mr. Hoover would reach Pittsburgh on the Baltimore and Ohio.

Taggart met Mr. Hoover early in the morning and discovered that the then Secretary had a couple of hours to wait for a train connection. Taggart proposed a trip around Pittsburgh to entertain Mr. Hoover. In a machine they drove around Highland and Schenley Parks and through a part of the mill district. Mr. Hoover was visibly impressed. He told Taggart that he could get much more out of such a trip than by making a similar trip with a formal committee of escort.

"He struck me as a man easy to meet and talk with," said Taggart. "He is a very human man."

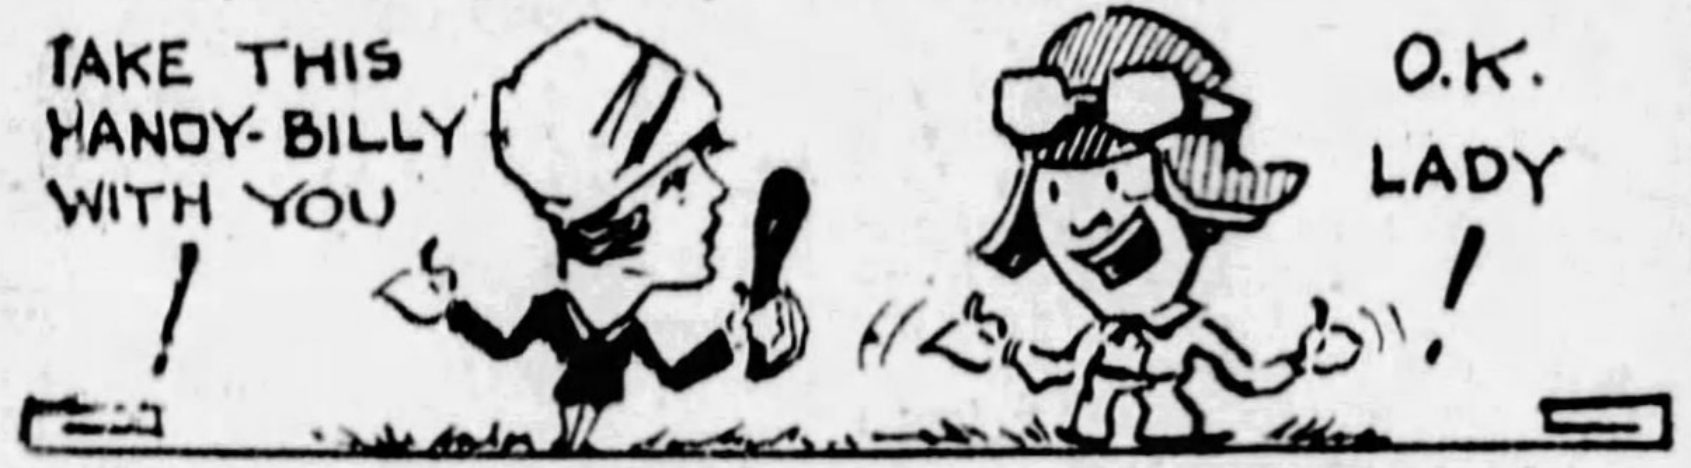
Joe Dawson is a baseball pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates. This winter he is staying in Pittsburgh, acting as an instructor at the Rodgers Flying Field.

Dawson told about a recent experience when he took up a lady passenger in a plane with a dual control. That means that the passenger, if so inclined, might grab the control stick, an action which would throw the plane out of control of the instructor-pilot. Upon getting into the plane Dawson slipped a very, very large monkey wrench into his pocket. After the flight was over the lady was curious about that large wrench. Dawson was frank. He said he took the wrench in case the lady became nervous and grabbed the control. "And what would you have done in that event?" asked the lady. "Why, I was going to tap you on the koko with that wrench so you would let go of the stick."



TAKE THIS HANDY-BILLY WITH YOU !
O.K. LADY !

Some days later the lady again went up with Dawson. But before she went up she handed Dawson a policeman's handy-billy. "It seems so much neater than that ugly wrench," she said.

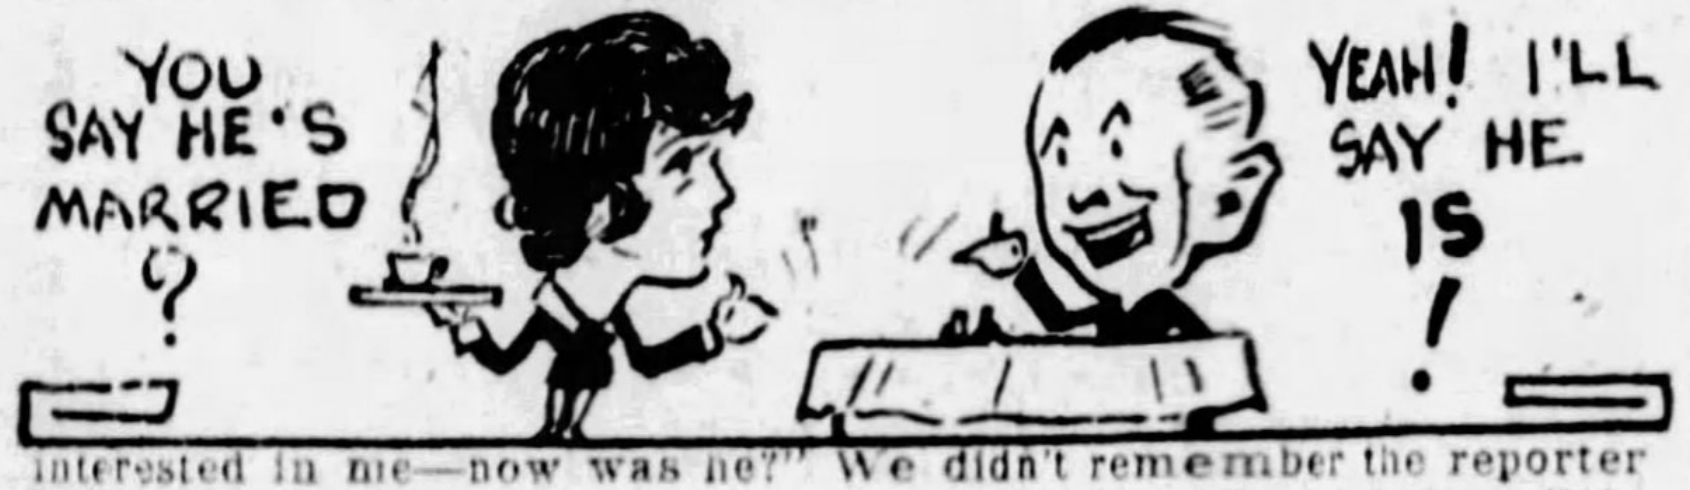
WHO has the best memory for faces? Waitresses must get a high ranking. In a restaurant the other day a waitress who hadn't seen a certain customer for 10 years remarked: "Well, look who's here." In fact she picked up a thread of a conversation that must have been terminated abruptly 10 years ago. "Tell the truth now," said the waitress, "that reporter you told me about wasn't really interested in me—now was he?" We didn't remember the reporter in question, after all these years, but we felt safe in saying: "He was interested at that time, but since then he married a very wealthy woman from Montana and is now the father of three sets of twins." "Great Heavens," said the waitress and there seemed to be a note of horror in her voice.



YOU SAY HE'S MARRIED ?
YEAH! I'LL SAY HE IS !

One of the best services rendered of a welfare nature is offered by the Salvation Army, an organization which, especially since the war, has more friends than any similar organization in the land.

In the city are many women with children, who, owing to the demise of husbands, or to the delinquency of living ones, must go out and earn their living. They act as waitresses, a laundresses, as saleswomen.

What to do with the children during the day when the mothers must go to work? That's where the Salvation Army wins a cheer or two. Salvation Army attendants take the babies in the morning and take care of them all day. Children old enough to go to school, are left with the Army attendants, who take the children to school and then go for them after school is over, and take them back to the Salvation Army home.

But there is a charge for this. Yes, the greedy old Salvation Army charges all the way to 10 cents a day for a service that is worth—but you can't compute such service in terms of money.

Three cheers for the Salvation Army.

Husband Walked Out on Her, Wife Says

Her husband walked out on her, without telling her he was leaving forever or words to that effect, it developed in the divorce case of Bessie M. Watt, 65 South Twenty-seventh street, who wants her marriage with George R. Watt revoked. It was testified by the wife before Judge Thomas J. Ford that on October 20, 1926, Watt told her if he was late for supper to not wait. He never returned and the next day the firm from whom they had bought the furniture came and moved it away. Mrs. Watt had to go to her South Side home. Mrs. Watt was married at 16, July 30, 1926. She does not know where her husband is.

Chases Auto Thieves, Bullet Pierces Coat

E. C. Moore, 7312 Penn avenue, had a narrow escape from serious injury or probable death when a bullet tore through his coat while he was pursuing two alleged auto thieves. Moore is said to have detected the two men attempting to start his auto parked at Homewood and Hamilton avenues. On his approach they leaped from the car and fled with Moore in pursuit. During the chase the men fired a shot at him, the bullet passing through his coat.

NO DELAY IN PLANS SEEN

The County Commissioners will have legislation presented at the coming session of Congress authorizing the construction of the McKees Rocks-North Side, and the North Side-West End bridges, spanning the Ohio River.

Acts of Congress are necessary as the National government controls inland waterways. No delay is anticipated in passage of the bills. Meanwhile plans for the McKees Rocks-North Side bridge which will be built first, are being perfected, especially with reference to juncture with th proposed Ohio River boulevard.

A hearing was held in McKees Rocks before a board of engineers of the War Department, Oct. 24, but no report has yet been filed by the engineers, it was said today. No objections to the proposed bridge were made at the meeting.

This bridge, which, with approaches will be 6,500 feet long will be the most costly bridge in Allegheny county. The people's bond issue set up $6,895,000 for the structure.

MISTRUST OF YOUTH BRANDED AS GREAT SIN

"This mistrust of youth on the part of the middle-aged, that is, on the part of your generation and mine—is one of the most damnable sins in the present hour." So declared the Rev. Dr. Horace Westwood last night in a preaching mission address at the First Unitarian Church, Ellsworth and Morewood avenues.

"The first thing we need to do is to believe in the youth of today," he said. "The problem of the rising generation is not that of youth, but of you and me—the older folk.

"We are demanding not that youth shall live in its world, the world of its own making, but in our world, the society we have made. Do you really think that the world we have made is really worth living in? Do we want the kind of a world we have made to go on—this world drunk with the wine of materialism—this world with its absence of faith in the things of the spirit—this world with its shams, its smug complacence and self-satisfaction? Is this the kind of a world we wish the youth of today to accept and carry on? If not, why are we eternally demanding that youth accept our world! Has not the rising generation the right to rebel against things as they are and to refuse to accept our world?

"This modern mistrust of the spirit of youth has its roots in envy and fear! We envy youth its enthusiasm. We are not satisfied ourselves with our world, but we are afraid what youth might do to it!"

Dr. Westwood's sermon on "If I Were Twenty-one" was not only an appeal to youth, but for youth. "We must trust the rising generation," he declared. "Personally I have great faith in it."

LOSES WIFE TO ANOTHER, FIGHTS FOR 5 CHILDREN

His former wife having married the man who it is alleged broke up his home and is now endeavoring to get possession of their five children, William C. Jordan, 1126 Franklin street, is contesting the habeas corpus action brought by his former spouse, Malinda E. Hatterer, 505 East Ohio street.

Judge Joseph M. Swearingen of Common Pleas Court heard the case. One of the witnesses, Miss Elizabeth Miller, of Etna, a trained nurse and a sister of Mrs. Hatterer told the court she did not believe Mrs. Hatterer to be a fit person morally to have possession of the children. Two sons, William Jordan, 16, and Charles Jordan, 14, both testified for their father. The latter told the court that prior to his father and mother separating in 1927, he heard his mother talk to Frank Hatterer, her present husband over the telephone; that he came to the house frequently and that he had seen him at Spiritualist gatherings attended by his mother.

Jordan testified that he had asked his wife concerning Hatterer before their separation, but that she had denied there was anything between them. He told the court he informed his wife that if she liked him better he would surrender.

His wife finally left. Jordan kept the children, his wife applied for a divorce, charging Jordan with cruel and barbarous treatment and he refused to contest the action.

Mrs. Hatterer denied that she had abused the children as some of them had claimed or had threatened the life of her son Charles. She complained that the children were living in one room at the Franklin street address and that she was not permitted to see them. Judge Swearingen will render a decision later. Jordan is represented by Attorney George Little. The children are Mary Elizabeth, 11, Ruth Louise, 9, and Betty Jane, 5, in addition to William and Charles.

CART AWAY FIXTURES IN TRUCK

Expensive furniture and fixtures were carted away in a truck by robbers from the home of L. C. Wick, 400 Bailey avenue, Mt. Washington, it was revealed yesterday.

As he and his wife occupied their new home, robbers gained entrance by forcing a cellar window and as far as could be learned, four chairs of an expensive breakfast set were taken. Five valuable electric light brackets were cut from the walls and also taken. Mr. Wick says it will take some time to determine exactly what his loss will be as he had left different things in the 12-room house.

The robbers evidently departed from the front door as it was found unlocked. Police of the Mt. Washington Station and city detectives are making an investigation.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.

Hoover is the first elected candidate I ever saw that kept his promises. He said he would follow out Coolidge's policies and I see where he is fishing already.

I see where he caught a "dolphin." I suppose the Senate will hold an investigation now to find out what a "dolphin" is.

Hoover is putting in at Nicaragua. He wants to see some of our Marines. He hasn't seen any since the old days in China. If it wasn't for the movie weeklies picturing them going from one country to another, we would never know what they looked like.

P. S.: New York's got a new one, a "free lance model."

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

STOLEN LOVE

Bill Leaves to Rescue Joan After He Hears Curtis Took Her Away

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Joan Hastings, seventeen and beautiful, lives with two old maiden aunts and one of them, Aunt Evvie, tells her of her unmarried mother's tragic love affair and death. Joan falls in love with Bill Martin, a penniless young man, and she is sent away to school. Bill, an innocent victim of a bootlegging gang, is sent to jail and Joan, begging for bail money from the aunts, confesses everything to them. She is put on a train for school in charge of a woman friend of Aunt Evvie's. Bill, freed, bids goodby to his mother, leaving no address and befriending Rollo Keyes, a rich young spender, is given a job by his father. Joan, escaping from the train, reaches his home just after he has gone. Concealing her presence from her aunts she gets a position in a department store and later works as a model in a smart shop. There Mrs. Barstow, a rich society woman, sees her, likes her and asks her to tea. She meets Curtis Barstow who immediately becomes interested in her. Bill comes home and discovers that Joan is close at hand. Joan meets Bill again and discovers Ruth Gillespie, one of the girls at the shop, is deeply in love with him. Joan becomes engaged to Curtis. She later tells him about her old love affair with Bill and wants to break their engagement. Curtis leaves town to try to forget her, but returns when he finds he still loves her. Bill returns and Joan sees him. Bill meets Ruth and he tells her that Rollo is deeply in love with her, but she isn't interested as she is in love with Bill. Curtis tells his mother that he is called out of town on business, but he takes Joan to his summer home in the mountains. Ruth invites Bill to dinner and tells him about Curtis taking Joan away.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

HE WENT to the window, and looked out, his hands in his pockets. "You shouldn't lie about Joan, Ruth. You shouldn't have done it. She's so honest herself—so—so sporting. It—it isn't right."

She opened and shut her hands nervously, waiting for him to go on, but he didn't. He just stood there, looking out.

"You can't say I'm not a good sport, Will'um. I am. I wouldn't lie about another girl if it was to—to get the Prince of Wales for a boy friend. Why, I've known about Joan and you for ages. Do you think I ever let on to anybody? What chance would she have had with Barstow if I had—or any of that crowd?"

His back was still turned, but she saw him quiver. The shot told.

She went on quickly. "I wouldn't have told you about Barstow now if it would have done her any harm. I'm just that kind of a good-natured slob . . . But you're out of it now. Don't you see that? She doesn't care whether you live or die—Oh, Will'um, dear—can't you get over it, too? Why spoil your life worrying about somebody who doesn't care about you?"

"I know I'm out of it, you don't have to tell me that. But you don't have to lie about her either—you take that back, Ruth—"

"But I didn't lie! No, don't interrupt me—I'll tell you—I'll tell you just how I know—"

"You don't know Joan," he said doggedly.

"Keep still—I'm going to tell you now whether you want to hear it or not. I didn't know myself. I thought everything was just like it seemed. Who wouldn't, with all the society stuff in the papers and all, and the old lady herself, his mother, purring around. This morning Joan comes in the shop and says she's going up to Santa Cruz to the Barstow cottage, Mrs. Barstow invited her. I swallowed that—it sounded all right.

"I saw her go out alone with Barstow, and get in his roadster, and that looked all right, too. I thought the others had gone on ahead like she said. And then just before I met you, in comes old lady Barstow. 'Is Miss Hastings in?' she says. 'Tell her my son is called out of town on business, will you, and tell her I expect her to dinner this evening'—that's God truth—now do you believe me. Do you see I wasn't lying—"

"You mean his mother wasn't going—she didn't know they were going—"

"Of course not. Believe me, they took good care she didn't—"

"Then Joan didn't either. You don't think he—you don't think he would—Oh, my God, Ruth—why didn't you tell me before—why didn't you—I'll never make it now—never—"

He was out of the room, running down the long narrow hall, plunging down the stairs before Ruth realized what was happening. She stood in the doorway looking into the blank, dim hall a long time.

The small, high-powered car purred up the hills, swooped down them, sped along the stretches of smooth, level highway. Bill was coming to Joan again, coming to her at last. "I have the right," he thought. "I have the right—"

He hadn't stopped to analyze Ruth's story. He hadn't stopped to think it all out. Something was wrong. She would need him, he was coming.

At the Casa del Rey in Santa Cruz he asked a clerk at the desk. "The Barstow cottage? Never heard of it. You probably mean one of the places out in the country—"

He took out his handkerchief and wiped his face. Little beads of perspiration had gathered on his forehead and upper lip. What a fool, what a fool . . . Ruth must have known, and he hadn't asked her. Getting late too . . .

He turned the pages of the San Francisco telephone directory. The man's mother, he'd get it out of her . . .

"It is about the Santa Cruz cottage," he said quickly. "Just where is it—near what place?"

There was a moment's silence, he thought he heard her hanging up—"It's a matter of life or death," he shouted. "Tell me where it is—quick—"

"I don't know just where, I only been there once. It is shingled, all by itself like. From Felton we got the mail . . . hello? What's wrong? Operator, you cut me off—"

Bill had left the phone booth. "Where do I hit the Felton road? I'll have to double back—I see, thanks—thanks very much—"

He was in the car again, speeding up the curving mountain road. The sun set. The first rain drops pattered on the windshield. The road was deserted. If there were cottages in the wooded hills they were silent and dark. He plowed on in the wark and the rain, more slowly now, looking for lights.

For the first time his courage failed. He must have lost the road, there was nothing ahead but a narrow, wavering trail. And trees. And dark.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

JOAN jumped out of the car almost before Curtis stopped it. "I'll run ahead, while you park it. Of course they'll know why we're late when they see the poppies!"

When he followed a moment later with the suitcases she was at the end of the long verandah trying to peek in a window.

"Why, Curtis, they aren't here yet! All the blinds are down, and dirt and pine needles all over the verandah. You don't think anything happened to them—"

"Oh, no," he said easily. "Old lady Cunningham kept them waiting a couple of hours, I suppose. They'll be along. Good thing I brought a key though."

"Oh, I say—" Curtis stopped involuntarily just inside the door. 'This is a sad looking place! I didn't know they shut it up like this—"

He looked so helpless and aggrieved that Joan burst out laughing.

"Oh, I never expected to find it like this," he kept repeating, as he pried open the windows, and rolled the rugs back over the swept floor. "I thought it would be—like it always was—"

He was staring at the empty fireplace, rubbing his hands as if they were cold.

"I had an idea we'd get here before they did. Thought it would be rather nice, if we did get here first, and perhaps have dinner by ourselves—"

"It is nice," she said warmly. "It'll be lots of fun. Doesn't the place look lived in already? When the fire burns a little brighter it will be perfect, and I'll find a bowl for our poppies. But we won't have anything to eat until they do get here—there isn't even a can of sardines in the pantry—just pepper and salt and flour!"

"Oh I have some of the supplies in the back of the car—I'll get them—"

He came back with a hamper, all out of breath from carrying it up the steep stone steps.

Joan rose from the fireplace, where she had been coaxing the big logs with twigs and rolled newspapers. Her face was anxious. "It would be fun and all that to go on and get something to eat—I am starving—but wouldn't they think it was queer?"

"No—most natural thing in the world. We'll get dinner for them when they get here. Five o'clock—is that too early to eat?"

"N-no, but I think we ought to wait until six for them."

"Well—all right." He sank into an arm chair near the fire and watched her while she explored the hamper.

"Chops and bacon, and tomatoes—salad and coffee and ham and eggs and everything—but not enough for six, Curtis. Why there are only four chops!"

"Only four? That's funny—Oh well, they'll have more stuff."

"Yes, I know—but it's such a funny way to fix it—" Her clear eyes searched his. "Unless you knew they wouldn't be here until after dinner—"

"Well—I had a pretty good idea." "But you told me—"

"Don't cross-examine me—for heaven's sake, Joan. It's getting to be a regular trick of yours. 'When will they get here?' 'What time did they leave? Good heavens—you're enough to make anyone irritable—"

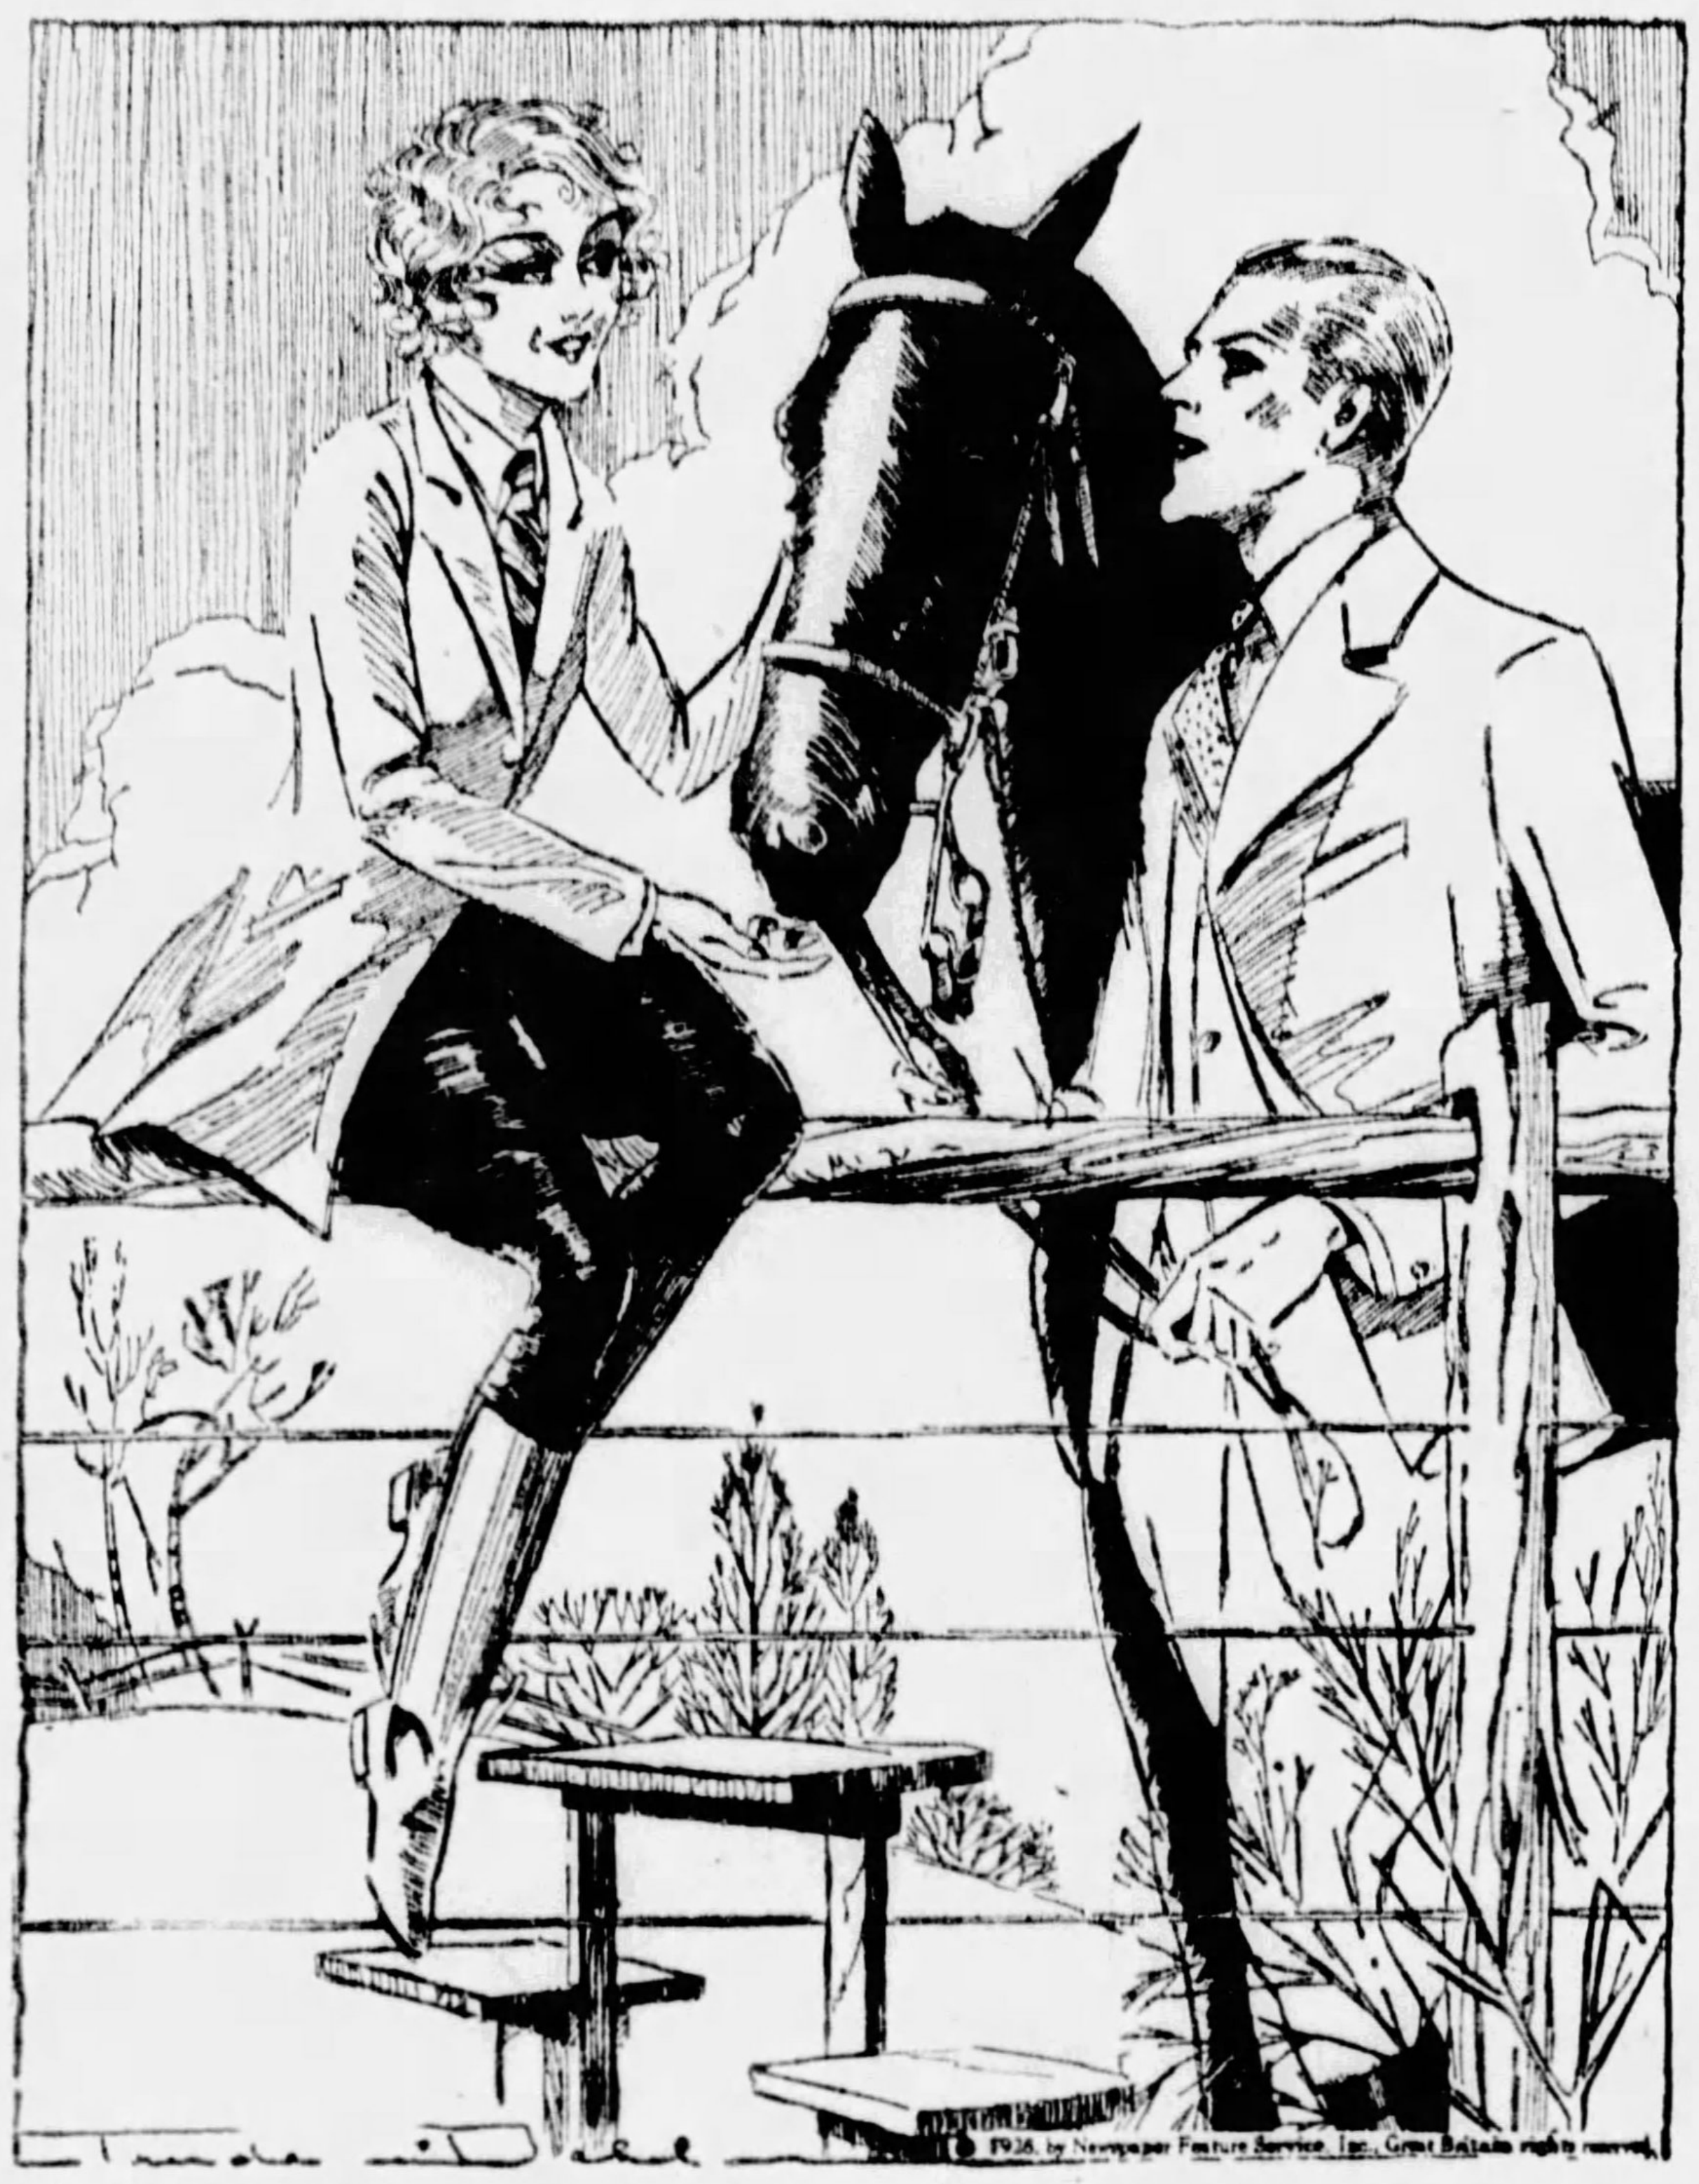
"RAINBOW CHASING," an astonishing story of a modern girl and her quest of love, starts Monday in the Evening Sun-Telegraph. Watch for it!

On the Fence

By Truda Dahl



© 1928, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

THE old stile has listened to many a love story! And once again it's the scene of a tender meeting. Only this time it looks as though the matter were undecided. She's sitting on the fence, literally and figuratively, for she hardly knows what to say. Perhaps it's so sudden that it takes away her breath. And then, she may be just pretending. For most every girl in the world knows when a man is going to tell her the old, old story.

And between them their pal, the horse, stands knowingly, nodding his head occasionally in an encouraging way and wishing they'd hurry. Perhaps he, too, has listened to many love stories and knows exactly what's going to happen. Can't you see it all in your mind?

It will finally end in a tumble from the fence top right into his arms—and then—the old stile will have another memory to tuck away and another game of "on the fence" will be satisfactorily settled to the delight and happiness of all concerned.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

Madge Finds Reason for Maintaining Individuality

AS Katherine's low, earnest voice finished her injunction to go to the city and do the work I had contracted to do, adding her renewed promise to take care of Junior during my absence, I put out my hand impulsively and caught hers in it.

"You've given me the best possible argument for going," I said gratefully, "and you know, don't you, that worry over Junior's care isn't the reason I am debating the question of breaking my contract, for, of course, that is what staying out here for the winter would mean."

"Oh! my dear!" Her voice was filled with horrified incredulity. "Surely you're not going to give up your work when you've made such a wonderful success of it! And I've heard that Philip Veritzen is bad medicine about anybody breaking a contract with him. But—I forget. You stipulated, didn't you, that if Junior needed you, that would mean an end to your work."

"Yes, and that is the question I am considering. I know he will not need me as far as care and training are concerned—but—I feel—someway—as if—I had come near losing him—and I don't want him to miss me—ask for me—and not be able to have me."

She tightened her clasp upon my hand.

"I know," she said tenderly, "and you must decide that for yourself. But—will you be hurt if I tell you that I think you are a bit morbid just now. And will you believe me when I say that with the program of school and exercise and play which I am planning for him, he won't have time to miss you or anybody else. Then you've planned to be down week-ends, haven't you?"

"Oh, yes," I answered, energetically, banishing the involuntary thrill of maternal jealousy which went through me when she said that Junior wouldn't have time to miss me.

"If I may rock the boat a little farther," Katherine said with a little smile, "don't promise Junior that you're coming down every single week-end. Leave it vague. Of course, you probably won't have a single one away from him, but you'd better tell him that once in a while you may not be able to get down. Then if anything should happen to prevent you from coming, I can plan some extra outing for him and keep him busy until you do get down."

"I see your point," I said slowly, still battling that mean little thrill of jealousy, "and, if I decide to go to the city, I shall act upon it."

Katherine's face was troubled, and it was several seconds before she answered. Then she spoke hesitatingly:

"Madge, dear, you know we never have given each other unasked advice, but—I can't help asking you not to make the mistake I did."

Wonder at her meaning was mingled with my haste to assure her of my readiness to hear whatever she wished to say to me.

"Please tell me what you mean," I adjured her. "What mistake?"

"My fatal mistake with Jack," she said steadily, although I guessed what it must be costing her thus to refer to her absent husband.

"Just a second, dear," I told her. "Jack is my cousin, the only brother I ever knew, but, knowing both him and you, I am sure that in your relations, it was Jack who was at fault, not you."

"No, no," she said vehemently, and I wondered if her conscience was being pricked by her remembrance of Hal Meredith's anxiety to have the estrangement between herself and her husband become a permanent thing. "I didn't know how to manage Jack. I gave in to him, surrendered my individuality when I should have insisted upon keeping it. I don't want you to make the same mistake."

Cucumber Sauce

Peel a cucumber, cut in thick slices, remove the seeds then saute in butter closely covered until tender—about a half hour. When cooked add a half pint of cream sauce, salt, pepper, a few grains of sugar, a few drops of lemon juice and a little green coloring fluid. Mix, put through a fine sieve, reheat just a minute or two and serve in a hot sauce boat. Good with boiled fish, or chops.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Seek the Cause in Epileptic Seizures

DR. COPELAND

IN my mail recently was a letter from a young mother in Pennsylvania. She tells me she has a 14-months-old baby boy, her first child, and that she "does not know everything about babies yet!" I suppose nobody could ever know everything about babies. One of the great difficulties about bringing up babies is that mothers are told so many things that are not true. The friends who give the advice are sincere, of course, but many times they have permitted tradition to displace common sense.

However, this young mother has asked specifically about epilepsy. She said she had a visitor, a girl of about 14, who had suddenly fallen into a fit. It was the first time my correspondent had ever witnessed an attack of this sort and, of course, she was much disturbed by it.

Fortunately, epilepsy is not a common ailment, but when it does appear it has certain definite symtoms. Usually the victim has warning of what is to happen. He utters a loud scream or terrible groan.

Almost immediately after this the patient falls to the ground, clinching his hands and kicking his feet. The eyes roll upward, the patient is purple, and there is more or less frothing at the mouth. Sometimes the tongue is caught between the teeth. This may cause the froth about the lips to be tinged with blood. During the attack there is loss of consciousness. Within a few minutes consciousness returns, but very quickly natural sleep follows. On awaking the victim is perfectly normal.

In girls and women there may be a certain periodicity about the attacks. They may come every month or so. In many instances, however, there seems to be no regularity about the seizures.

It is important for the person who has epilepsy to have a very careful physical examination and repeated examinations. It is necessary to find out if there is any focal infection. Abcessed teeth or tonsils, a diseased gall bladder, disease of the intestinal tract—any of these may be responsible for the poisoning which is followed by epileptic fits.

It is a surprising fact that eye strain may produce such drainage of nerve energy as to produce a condition which may be followed by epileptic attacks. It is important to have an eye examination, not only to find out if there is a strain in the vision, but also to discover whether or not the eye muscles are in perfect adjustment. If there is lack of team work in the use of the eye muscles, any form of functional nervous disorder may follow.

It is important to practice all the simple rules of hygiene. Simple living, out-of-door life, plenty of sleep, lots of sunshine and exercise—all these are essential to the building up of the body and the strength of the nervous system.

Answers to Health Queries

S. M. Q.—If a doctor has given up a patient because X-ray revealed a cavity in the left lung and inflammation in the right, is there any way to prolong the life of the patient? Is the sun of benefit when the coughing comes from the stomach and not the lungs?

"Buffing" Silver

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. If Bessie Brown is married to James Thorne should the silver acquired after marriage be engraved with the initials B. B. T., these being the first letters of the name, Bessie Brown Thorne?

2. Do you chance to know what success attends the removal of undesired engraving from silver and the substitution of other lettering. Recently a well-known jewelry house in this city told me that it had been done by them, and it is buffed out, but I have been reluctant to experiment.

READER.

YES, the silver and linen acquired after marriage are monogramed with the woman's married initials, in this case B. B. T.

2. If this buffing and substitution is carefully done by a reputable house, it usually is successful. So if you have faith in the firm and in the man who is advising you, I think you won't have to worry. Of course you will try one piece first to determine the success of the operation.

It Is Informal

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married soon and I would like to know if it is proper to be married at the minister's house in a white dress and veil. If not, would you please tell me what is the proper attire?

F. D.

SINCE a wedding held at the minister's house would be classified as an informal wedding, it seems consistent that the bride should wear informal attire, a dress and coat and hat, or ensemble.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, November 24

UNDER the conflicting forces the planetary host this day may be one of many contradictions. While the trine of Saturn to Luna will fortify and sustain firm allegiance to duty and principle, encouraging dilligence and perseverance to the affairs in hand, yet a wise and alert mind may be required to preclude difficulties financially and in employment. Personal affairs seem beset by dangers through tempest, violence or self-indulgence. Order, serenity and industry are enjoined.

Those whose birthday it is may have a difficult year unless they bring to bear the stability, application and persistency of Saturn, with its ultimate rewards, to overcome tempest and confusion. Finances and employment need safeguarding.

A child born on this day may have a fine and studious mind, inclining to hard labor and perseverance, but may need discipline as to its personal characteristics.

I do my duty; other things give me no concern; either they are soulless or reasonless, or misguided and ignorant of the right way.—MARCUS AURELIUS.

Meditations of a Wife

Unbuttered Truths

MANY a man who would put his hand in the fire for you before marriage won't even put it into his pocket for you afterward.

"To kiss or not to kiss," is a problem that girls no longer lie awake trying to solve. If you do, the man loves and rides away, and if you don't he goes right past! So, what's the answer?

* * *

Experience has taught men to refrain from touching an uninsulated wire, but nothing will ever teach them to refrain from marrying a woman with an uninsulated temperament and a highly-charged vanity.

HELEN ROWLAND

True love is the kind that remains always at the same temperature—half way between the torrid flame of passion and the tepid water of friendship.

There are lots of ways of looking at this modern free and easy petting; but whichever way you look, you see something that grates on your finer sensibilities and offends your esthetic taste.

* * *

A man always loves where he pleases to love—and then is astonished to wake up and find himself married where he never intended to marry.

A woman, like a photoplay, can carry too many explanatory sub-titles. It is the play or the woman full of surprises that stimulates a man's imagination, and holds his interest from the first flash to the last fade-out.

Along with the women's "back-to-Eve" movement, there appears to be a general back-to-the-first-wife movement among the men.

* * *

A long engagement is an endurance test, in which the man waits for the girl to give up hope—and the girl waits for the man to give up struggling.

'HATCHET MAN' FREE AS ALL CLUES FAIL

OMAHA, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The search for Omaha's Negro "hatchet man," who has killed three and wounded two others here since Sunday morning continued with methodical thoroughness last night, but police admitted they were baffled at every turn.

Four times police took suspects before Mrs. Harold Stribling, in a hospital recovering from wounds received at the hands of the Negro, who attempted to kill her husband and herself in their home Tuesday morning. Four times she said, "No, he is not the man."

She was shown a picture of a Negro arrested in Chicago, after he had wielded an axx in a robbery.

"He is not the one," she said. The picture and finger prints had been rushed to Omaha by air mail.

Detective Inspector Ben Banbaum took her some clothing, picked up by police in their search of the city. She shook her head saying it was not the clothing worn by the "hacker."

Meanwhile her husband, following an operation yesterday to relieve the pressure on his brain resulting from skull fractures in the hatchet attack, was definitely reported better.

Police believe the "hacker" a maniac, but one of sufficient cunning to have made a getaway immediately after the Stribling attack.

'27 AUTO DEATH TOLL IS 25,533

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The death toll in the United States from automobile accidents was estimated by the Commerce Department yesterday to have reached a total of 25,533 persons during 1927.

The estimates were complicated by the fact that only 91.3 per cent of the country's population lives in territory where births and deaths are officially registered.

The department's report also dealt with deaths from automobile accidents alone—not including the mortality occasioned by collision of motors with street cars and trains. This death toll was estimated at 19.5 persons per 1,000 of population in 1927, based on the total population within the registration area. The report added that this death rate had steadily increased from 14.9 per thousand in 1923 to 17 in 1925, and 17.9 in 1926.

ANDREWS PLANS RETURN TO GOBI

LONDON, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Roy Chapman Andrews, American explorer, announced yesterday that he would lead another expedition into the Gobi desert of Mongolia next year, starting from the Pacific coast early in the spring. Mr. Andrews expects to sail from England tomorow to the United States on the last lap of his trip homeward from explorations in the Gobi which resulted in the discovery of many traces of primitive man and the finding of fossils of hitherto unknown prehistoric monsters.

Manufacturers' Agents Elect

Sir Frederick McGill, English author and Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, were speakers last night at the twelfth annual banquet of the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers' Representatives held in William Penn Hotel. Charles A. Young was toastmaster.

These officers were elected: president, Charles A. Young; first vice president, Walter H. Burns; second vice president, Edward A. Bracken; treasurer, Jerome Marshall and secretary, Emil Hasselman, Jr. Mr. Burns was chairman of the banquet committee.

Duquesne Students Try Second "Killer"

The second moot-court trial to be held by the Duquesne University Law Club took place last night in Common Pleas Court assignment room with District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner as the judge. It was a murder trial, with Lawrence Quinn, a senior in the law school as the defendant. William O'Donnell and Thomas J. Thornton were prosecuting attorneys and James M. McIntyre and James F. Creighton were the defense counsel. The trial lasted three hours and the verdict was not guilty.

Erie Auto Death Held Accidental

ERIE, Pa., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—The death of Mrs. Marie McCallister, president of the Frances Willard Union, was accidental, a coroner's jury decided yesterday. Mrs. McCallister died after being struck by an automobile driven by Cassimer Dare. Dare was exonerated by the jury.

"The Battle of Monongahela—Braddock's Defeat"

Famous Historical Painting by Emanuel Leutze, Reproduced in COLOR GRAVURE

THIS famous painting pictures the defeat of the British, under General Braddock. It was presented to the Carnegie Free Library of Braddock, Pa., by the school children of that town. It is particularly interesting to Western Pennsylvanians, because of its historical significance. Mr. Leutze also painted "Washington Crossing the Delaware." Because the picture is so faithfully reproduced, retaining its natural color and detail, it is well worth framing.

This Sunday's Color Gravure is more beautiful than any previous issue . . . . . .

Portraits of Local People . . . . . .

One by Leopold Seyffert, of Dr. William Jacob Holland, which hangs permanently at Carnegie Museum, and another, hand colored by Jerome Chircosta of Miss Scotty Jean McKeown, are worthy of note.

Scenes at Teachers' College . . . . . .

From Indiana, Pa., the home of the College, come an interesting collection of photographs. It is the oldest teachers' college in the state and has a large enrollment.

More International Pictures . . . . . .

"Sweeping Crests," by Frederick J. Waugh, American marine artist, which is attracting considerable attention at the Exhibition. "The Studio of Emile Rene Menard," a painting by Lucien Simon, one of the outstanding canvases on display. Both are reproduced in natural colors.

Ragout of Beef.
Corn Pudding.
Cucumber and Mint Jelly Salad
Cranberry Shortcake.
Coffee.

IT was the monks of old Chartreuse who established the vogue of serving savory bits of spiced beef hidden in mounds of rice; and we should accordingly be thankful to them for a most satisfying and appetizing dish.

Get about three pounds of beef shank, and put the meat on to simmer until it is tender, adding a tablespoon of salt, a quarter teaspoon of pepper and a bay leaf to the water.

Then remove the meat from the bones, and cut it into medium size pieces. Line a casserole with a cup of rice which has been cooked with three cups of tomatoes, a small minced onion and two tablespoons of chopped green peppers. Fill the center of the casserole with meat, and cover with the thickened meat stock.

Bake until the gravy is absorbed by the rice; it will take about 45 minutes.

FOR the salad, arrange mint jelly in the center of some crisp, cold lettuce leaves, and surround it with sliced cucumbers. Serve with mayonnaise.

And now comes the dessert, which is a specially good one! There is nothing more versatile than the cranberry; it lends itself graciously to sauces, salads and desserts.

To prepare our cranberry shortcake, sift two cups of flour, a teaspoon of salt, and four teaspoons of baking powder together; cut in 2½ tablespoons of shortening with a knife, and add a cup of milk. Roll out on a slightly floured board, cut to make two layers for cake pans or, if you prefer, cut for individual portions. Place one layer in the pan, spread with melted butter, cover with the other layer and bake in a hot oven for 15 or 20 minutes. Separate the layers. And while they are hot spread cranberry sauce between them and on top. Serve the shortcake hot, topped with whipped cream.

ART OF PIEMAKING

FRUIT pies are a most delicious form of pastry. In fact, they have long been the great American dessert. If properly made there is no reason why they should be indigestible, but I sorrowfully admit I can never recommend them as a reducing diet.

It is sad not to be able to use one's hands—a la spiral staircase while describing the making of a good pie crust, but as it can't be done, we must get along some way without them.

SIFT one and one-half cups of flour, one teaspoonful of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of baking powder. Cut in with two knives six tablespoonsful of chilled shortening. Add barely sufficient iced water to make the dough stick together. Roll out on a floured board and dot all over with bits of shortening. Bring the four sides to the middle, which will form a square, and if you wish it extra rich, dot again with the shortening. Roll up like a jelly roll and place in the icebox to chill for at least 15 minutes.

You may double this recipe and keep it in the icebox two or three days, cutting off enough for a pie as you need it and, if anything, it will be better for the ripening process.

Cut off in slices and roll out. This will make a round-shaped piece which will fit into your pie pan and will make a delicious, flaky pie crust. Fill with the desired fruit filling, cover with the top crust, rolled thin and slashed in several places to allow for the exit of steam. Dampen lower edges, trim and press together with a crimper or a fork. Bake until a golden-brown, then place in a safe place to cool. If directions are carefully followed, the most amateur of amateurs can turn out even better pies than mother used to make.

THERE are several notes on pie fillings, which will not come amiss. When making apple pies, slice the apples thin and pack them closely. Put sugar on the bottom of the pan and some more on the top. Add no water, but a few dots of butter on top of the apples will be found a great improvement. Some flavor an apple pie with nutmeg, but to me there is just one possible flavoring, and that is cinnamon.

With any juicy pie, try sprinkling a little powdered gelatin on the bottom of the crust before adding the fruit. It is much more effective than flour. Half a treaspoonful of the gelatine is sufficient.

GINGERBREAD — Two tablespoonfuls of molasses, 2 tablespoonfuls of melted butter, 1 cup of sugar, 1 teaspoonful of salt, 1 teaspoonful of cinnamon, ½ teaspoonful of clove, ¼ teaspoonful of ginger, 2 cups of flour, 1 egg, 1 cup of sour milk, 1 teaspoonful of baking soda. Add molasses and butter to sugar. Add salt and spices and stir together. Add egg well beaten, milk, then soda and flour sifted together. Pour into a greased tin. Bake in a moderate oven about 40 minutes.

VEGETABLE SOUP—Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in the soup pot, add one-third cup each of minced onions, carrots, red and green pepper and mushrooms. Simmer five minutes. Add three cups of hot water, three-quarters of a cup of diced potatoes, 1½ cups of corn, one-quarter teaspoon of pepper and one teaspoonful of salt. Cook 10 minutes.

Scald one quart of milk and add to the vegetables. Cook until tender and thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour in one-quarter cup of milk. Serve with bread sticks.

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE—Wash the meat; tie securely in shape; put in kettle, cover with cold water and bring slowly to boiling point. Remove any scum forming on top. Cook at lower temperature until tender, about three to four hours. One hour before serving, add a cabbage, cut in quarters, and bring to the boiling point. Cook 30 minutes to one hour. Carrots and turnips may be cooked with the meat and served on the same platter. Serve also with plain boiled potatoes.

BEEF STEW—Dice three pounds of meat and roll in three tablespoons flour to which one teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon paprika have been added. Brown in hot fat. When brown add one large onion, one chopped green pepper and two tomatoes. Let simmer for 1½ hours.

Place on platter and border with cooked carrots and mashed potatoes. Dumplings may be served instead of potatoes.

COCOANUT PIE—For the pie crust crumble ¼ cup shortening in 1¼ cups flour and mix until very fine. Gradually add ¼ cup cold water. Roll out and place in deep, greased pie plate (11 inches in diameter). Prick bottom of dough with fork and lightly brush with beaten white of egg. Place in refrigerator to chill.

For the filling beat the yolks of five eggs; add 1 tablespoon cornstarch and 6 tablespoons sugar, mixed together, and beat well. Add 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Soak ¼ pound shredded cocoanut or 1 cup fresh grated cocoanut in 1 cup scalded milk, and add to the mixture. Add the remaining 3 cups of scalded milk and, lastly, fold in the beaten whites of the eggs. Fill pie crust and bake in moderate oven. If the top browns before the crust, cover with white paper to prevent burning until the crust is baked.

RICE PUDDING—Pour boiling water over one-half cup whole head rice, and let it stand for 10 minutes on back of stove. Drain off water. Grease a pudding pan lightly with butter, put the rice in, add one-half cup sugar, one quart milk, one tablespoon cream, one-quarter teaspoon salt, dash of nutmeg, and a few shavings of orange peel. Bake slowly in moderate over about one and one-half hours. Stir every 15 minutes for the first hour, then allow it to bake without stirring until brown.

SALAD DRESSING—Beat the yolks of two eggs until creamy, then add to them one-half teaspoonful dry mustard, the same quantity of salt. Beat in slowly four tablespoons of melted butter and six tablespoons of hot vinegar. Cook in a double boiler until it thickens. When cold, and just before serving, fold in a cupful of sweet or sour cream. This dressing is delicious when served with string beans, lettuce, asparagus and cauliflower.

PANNED OYSTERS—Scald a cup of oysters in a skillet until the edges curl, and remove from liquid. Blend 1 tablespoon butter with 2 tablespoons flour, add 1 cup milk, and cook until thick. Add ½ cup celery, diced, and ½ cup pecans or walnuts, broken in small pieces. Season with ½ teaspoon salt, speck paprika and speck pepper. Add oysters and heat thoroughly. Remove tops of four rolls, scoop out soft part and toast slightly. Fill with oysters, cap with toasted tops, and serve at once.

SARDINE CANAPES—Mash six or eight sardines with the yolk of a hard-boiled egg. Add salt and pepper to taste, a few drops lemon juice, and one teaspoonful melted butter. Fry rounds of bread in hot butter, and spread with the mixture. Garnish around the edges with finely chopped parsley, and the white of an egg rubbed through a sieve.

ITALIAN SPAGHETTI — Bring four quarts of water to a boil, add one tablespoon salt, and one pound spaghetti. Boil about 15 minutes until tender; pour off water, and drain in colander.

Saute, two cloves garlic, in two tablespoons hot olive oil until golden brown. Remove garlic. To the oil add one can tomatoes, one small can Italian tomato paste, season with salt and pepper and stir well. When the sauce begins to thicken, add one cup of boiling water. Place a layer of spaghetti on a platter, then a layer of sauce, and sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese. Follow the same process until the spaghetti and sauce have been used. Serve hot.

FISH SALAD—Most any cold leftover fish may be flaked and used in salad. Make a dressing of three tablespoonful of olive oil, two tablespoonsful of lemon juice, three-quarter spoonful of paprika, half tablespoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of grated onion and allow to stand for half an hour.

Mix one cup of flaked cooked fish with half cup of thinly sliced celery and two tablespoonsful of green pepper. Pour the dressing over the fish and chill. Serve on beds of lettuce and garnish with slices of hard boiled egg, pickled beets and cucumber.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Thanksgiving Parties Enlivened by Return Of School Set

WHEN one speaks of Thanksgiving, one thinks immediately of the return of sons and daughters from school, or, if they are married, from their homes, and gay family reunions. In society there is usually an additional connotation—debut parties. Debutante affairs during a holiday season are especially gay, for a fresh interest is added by the presence of the school set.

This Thanksgiving season will conform to the tradition of debut parties. On the holiday itself Mrs. Stansbury Sutton, of the Alder Court apartments, will present her daughter, Olliveretta, at a tea in the Pittsburgh Golf Club, don't you remember? And much to the delight of the younger set, there'll be dancing.

Mrs. Sutton will have a group of her friends as aides. Among them will be Mrs. Chambers McKibbin, Mrs. H. A. [illegible], Mrs. W. H. Schoen, Mrs. W. H. Singer, Miss Ida Bailey, Miss Emma Bailey, Miss Gertrude Smith, Mrs. Francis Lewis, Mrs. B. K. McMechen, Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. James D. Hallman, Mrs. Richard B. Mellon, Miss Grace Kelley, Mrs. J. B. Shea, Mrs. Charles H. West, Mrs. Frederick G. Winter, Miss Edna Sutton, Mrs. William T. McCullough and Miss Emma Price.

SPEAKING of Olliveretta, I'm reminded of another entertainment. Mrs. W. H. Singer, of the Hotel Kenmawr, will entertain with a dinner and dance Saturday night in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for the bud.

THERE'S a debut today, too, and an exceptionally interesting one at that. Mary Marshall, daughter of the Charles D. Marshalls, of Fifth avenue, is making her bow at a tea her mother is giving in the family home.

Mary is receiving with her mother, her sister-in-law, Mrs. John N. Marshall, and her two sisters, Mrs. William W. Darsie, and Mrs. Lawrence E. Wilson, in the living room. Her gift bouquets dominate in the decorations.

The bud is wearing an exquisite French gown of delicate green chiffon, fashioned with an uneven hemline and a high neck. She is carrying yellow roses and orchids.

Mrs. Marshall's gown has a white transparent velvet bodice in the same material in green and a skirt with an uneven hem-line developed in transparent black velvet. She is wearing orchids.

Dark green transparent velvet is worn by Mrs. Darsie, while a frock of blue crepe was chosen by Mrs. Wilson.

An orchestra is ensconced behind palms and smilax in the hall of the house. Tea is being served in the dining room, where pompons, calendulas and heather are used in profusion. In the smaller living room of the home are vases and standards of pink roses and in the solarium, blooming plants.

ALL of our news seems to concern the debutantes today, but I really must tell you about the tea which Mrs. William Smith Stimmel gave yesterday in her Ellsworth avenue home. Mrs. Stimmel entertained for Rebecca Follansbee, debutante daughter of the John Follansbees, and her own daughter, Mrs. John H. Follansbee, who is Rebecca's sister-in-law. Tea was served in the dining room and the billiard room.

Mrs. Stimmel and her honor guests received in the room where the Stimmel collection of paintings is hung. The hostess wore powder blue chiffon with a shoulder corsage of orchids. Rebecca's frock was of fuchsia chiffon and her flowers were tea roses and lilies of the valley, while Mrs. Follansbee wore American beauty velvet, with a shoulder corsage of orchids and lilies of the valley. Rebecca's mother was gowned in blue lace and chiffon.

AND another party added to the list for the buds is the theater party at the Nixon, followed by a supper in the Pittsburgh Club, which Mr. and Mrs. Harvey N. Van Voorhis will give next Wednesday night for Virginia Willock and Margaret Holdship. Mr. and Mrs. Van Voorhis, by the way, expect to close their Sewickley Heights home on Monday and will open their town house in Western avenue.

* * *

MRS. JOHN MABON, Mrs. J. B. Miller, Mrs. Samuel Taylor and Mrs. Edward Eiler will preside at the tea table at the annual tea and sale to be held tomorrow afternoon by the Columbia Hospital Auxiliary in the nurses' dormitory.

THE marriage of Miss Elisabeth McFarren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. McFarren, of Chislett street, and Frederick C. O'Conner, of Homewood, was solemnized yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock in St. Raphael's Catholic Church by the Rev. J. P. Gallagher. Miss Mary O'Leary was bridesmaid and William Harris, best man. After December 1, Mr. and Mrs. O'Conner will be at home in Chislett street.

THE board of managers of the First Allegheny Day Nursery and Temporary Home for Children will hold the annual donation day and reception Tuesday from 2 to 5 o'clock and from 7 to 10 o'clock at the Home in Perrysville avenue. Mrs. Caroline Sloan is president of the board, with Miss Eleanor C. Lang as secretary and Mrs. M. L. Barr, treasurer.

STUDENTS of Duffs-Iron City College will give their annual pre-holiday dance December 7 in the college hall in Duquesne way. J. Raymond Ambrose is general chairman, with Miss L. Jane Elder heading the reception committee; Miss Estella Kochler, tickets, and Miss Stella McGuire, decorating.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. I. A. LEWIS, of Albemarle avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Lewis, and Bernard Teplitz, which was solemnized last night at 6 o'clock in the study of the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson. A dinner for the families followed the ceremony in the Lewis home. Mr. and Mrs. Teplitz will spend their honeymoon in California, Panama and the West Indies.

* * *

SCHENLEY COURT, No. 34, Order of the Amaranth, will hold its annual sauer kraut supper and bazar Monday night in Serbian Hall, Fifth avenue. Supper will be served from 5 to 7 o'clock, and cards will begin at 8:30 o'clock. Mrs. Mariam Smith is general chairman.

Congress of Clubs Calendar Crowded

MANY interesting events are on the calendar at the Congress of Clubs. November will end and December begin with the St. Nicholas fair which the departments of education and ways and means will conduct Friday and Saturday next week. Dinner will be served by reservation in the club house from 1 until 8 o'clock Thanksgiving day. The annual Christmas festival has been set for December 17 with some interesting and unusual features promised, and the Christmas radio program, which will be a play from the prolific pen of the drama chairman, Mrs. Chester F. Johnston, will be broadcast December 18. The cast, by the way, will include the Congress president, Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky.

All those Congress members who have slipped over the border into the "Larger Life" during the past year will be memorialized Sunday afternoon at a service in the club house. Mrs. John S. Sloan will pronounce the invocation, Mrs. J. Charles Wilson will read the Twenty-third Psalm to music, Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell and the choral will sing, Mrs. D. Edwin Miller will make a memorial address and there will be original poems by Mrs. Mae T. Neff and Mrs. Chester F. Johnston. Mrs. Coslowsky will, of course, preside.

Guests were turned away for lack of space yesterday when the drama department had its monthly luncheon. There were visiting theatrical folk who spoke briefly but the chief program feature was a cutting of Phillip Barry's play, "You and I," which Miss Helen Irwin gave very delightfully.

Today the Congress board and chairmen of departments and committees gave a charmingly appointed luncheon in honor of Mrs. W. W. Briant, Mrs. Coslowsky's secretary, who is leaving the Congress December 1.

THE Authors' Club of Pittsburgh announces the election of the following officers: President, George Seibel; vice president, Mrs. Maddy Vegtel Griffith; treasurer, Edward Godfrey; secretary, Kenneth M. Gould. Mr. Seibel is dramatic and literary critic of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, national president of the American Turnerbund, and the author of several plays and novels of distinction. He succeeds Dr. Otto E. Jennings, curator of botany in the Carnegie Museum, who retires after five years in office.

The club is planning an expansion of its activities, including the publication of a year book and round-table discussion of problems of professional writing. Eight new members have been elected by the club council.

A meeting will be held tomorrow at the Garden Tea Room, Liberty and Center avenues. Dinner at 6:30 will be followed by a reception to new members and discussion of the year's program.

THE Twentieth Century Club's own Christine Miller Clemson appeared in recital before her fellow members yesterday afternoon, and gave one of those satisfyingly beautiful programs such as she knows so well how to give. A group of Schubert numbers, Hugo Wolf's "Kennst du das Land" (with which one always associates Mrs. Clemson), Negro spirituals, some new and some old ones, several English songs, the little "Song of Marie Antoinette"—all went into the making of an outstanding afternoon. Earl Mitchell was at the piano. Need one say more?

MRS. JOHN F. MILLER will lead in a Thanksgiving service when the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Pittsburgh Presbytery will meet in the First Church Tuesday morning.

AN organization meeting of the English Association will be held at luncheon in the Hotel Chatham Saturday, December 8. George Seibel, literary and dramatic editor of the Sun-Telegraph, will speak on "Literary Shrines" and Mrs. D. Edwin Miller will outline the work and aims of the Better Magazine Council. Bridge will follow the luncheon and program.

MISS LOUISE BLESSING, principal of Roosevelt School and a member of the Squirrel Hill Community Club, addressed the club at its regular meeting this afternoon, pointing out in what ways the organization can manifest interest in the school.

* * *

SWEETS for the holiday season will be featured in an open class in "Making Holiday Candies," by Miss Vivian J. Rentz, opening at Central Branch Y. W. C. A. this evening at 6:30.

CHAPLIN LEAD IN "CIRCUS" SELECTED AS HEROINE OF "BROADWAY"

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23.

MERNA KENNEDY is the final choice for the heroine of Universal's super-production, "Broadway." Moreover, she has signed a five year contract with the Laemmle organization. "Broadway" is just the beginning of her career under the "Big U" banner. Merna's selection for the part is a great break for Charlie Chaplin's redheaded leading woman. Aside from appearing in "The Circus" she has not been seen on the screen for three years, although drawing salary on her Chaplin contract during that period.

Universal is further favored with one of those breaks that come once in a lifetime in being able to secure Evelyn Brent for the big dramatic role of the bootlegger's sweetheart. It just happens that Paramount has nothing scheduled for Evelyn until February, so Carl Laemmle, Jr., has borrowed her for his picture. It will be the first role for Evelyn since becoming Mrs. Harry Edwards. Incidentally, Paul Porcasi and Thomas Jackson, who appeared in the Broadway "Broadway" cast of the play, will enact their respective roles in the picture.

Dolores, John Do Not Amaze

THE wedding plans of John Barrymore and Dolores Costello brought no surprise to Hollywood. The couple have been close friends since their appearance in "The Sea Beast." In fact, three years ago, two movie columnists, lunching at the Algonquin, compared their inside knowledge of the budding romance and decided it was time to announce a forthcoming engagement. At the time this news was received with vehement denials by all parties. But it was absolutely true, and now that "Michael Strange" has given John his freedom, wedding bells are about to sound. The writers in question scooped the competition by a full three years.

Estelle Taylor slipped into Hollywood on the arm of her stalwart husband, and is sincerely happy to be home again. Both Estelle and Jack Dempsey are very much attached to their comfortable, commodious home, and are never quite so happy as when enjoying the peace and quiet it affords. The constant glare of the limelight becomes pretty tiring when one has so much of it as Estelle and Jack. There are motion picture contracts aplenty awaiting Estelle's attention, but she plans a rest before making any movies. It is possible that she will return to the stage. There is a Belasco offer awaiting her if she cares to accept it. Let's hope there'll be at least one talkie first.

June Marlowe To Work Abroad

UNIVERSAL is serious in making pictures abroad. June Marlowe will go to Germany to make two. She leaves today. The pictures are Max Marcin's "House of Glass" and Arthur Somers Roche's "Fallen Angels." The latter will be directed by Joseph Livergard and produced in the Berlin studios. Connie Keefe, rising film juvenile who has appeared in numerous Universal and First National photodramas, may be one of several other players who will be sent to Germany by Mr. Laemmle.

Arthur Rankin, nephew of the Barrymores, has no time for foolin' around these days. He is making three pictures at once. Two for Warners' and one for paramount. He replaces Lane Chandler in "The Wolf of Wall Street" and has important roles in "Alimony Annie" and "One Stolen Night." All three films are 100 per cent audibles.

Director Jimmy Cruze has found a part for his old pal, Luke Cosgrove, so now everything is all set for production of "The Duke Steps

Stage Folk Guests Of Flotilla Club

Stage folk appearing in Pittsburgh this week were guests of the Flotilla Club at a party last night. It was a gala event and a case of the entertainer being entertained. Queenie Smith and Charles Purcell, leads from the "Hit the Deck" company in the Nixon, together with several members of their show and Bonnie Emerie and Robert Geddis, from "Golden Dawn" in the Alvin, were guests of honor. Teddy Joyce, master of ceremonies, in the Penn, and Dick Ware, local entertainer, made the party lively.

Arthur Hammerstein, producer of "Golden Dawn," playing in the Alvin, is in town to direct rehearsals of this operetta. With him is Mrs. Hammerstein, the former Dorothy Dalton, noted stage and screen actress.

TWIN-SLAYING MOTHER GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 23. — (AP.) — Mrs. Anna Hlatky, wife of John Hlatky, of Monessen, last night was convicted of voluntary manslaughter by a jury in Criminal Court here. Mrs. Hlatky was charged with killing two sets of twins, the first pair in July, 1927, and the second in August this year. Sentence will be passed later.

Hlatky, charged with being an accessory after the fact, has obtained a continuance and will go to trial later.

Margaret, 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Hlatky, testified against the mother, telling how she buried the bodies of the infants born this year in the back yard of the Hlatky home. She said her mother had cautioned her to say nothing about the babies.

During the trial the commonwealth introduced alleged confessions made by Mrs. Hlatky, in which the woman described smothering the four infants and causing their bodies to be buried in shallow graves in the back yard.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Sealed in Box Car Seven Days, He Walks Home

TOWANDA, Pa., Nov. 23.—(AP.) Stanley Yarsavage, a miner of Wilkes-Barre, was taken from a box car yesterday after having been sealed without food or water in the car for more than seven days. He was able to walk to his home.

Yarsavage told railroad police he had been in Detroit, but lost his job there and wanted to return to his family. He was without funds. He boarded a freight car being loaded with automobiles in Detroit. Today as the train was standing on the Susquehanna and New York Railroad, near Newberry Junction, trainmen heard him call. They opened the car. Police officers purchased Yarsavage a meal and sent him home.

Easterners Pan For Gold Blown Into Stream

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Gold and silver mining was being carried on yesterday along the banks of Ten Mile River.

For more than half a century jewelry manufacturing plants have been situated beside the river, and in that time it is estimated that thousands of dollars' worth of gold dust and particles of silver have been blown into the stream.

A refining company has now undertaken to reclaim this lost metal.

CHICAGO POLICE TOLD TO BREAK SCHOOL RUM RING

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Orders to carry on a continuous war against Chicago's beer flats, soft drink parlors and other establishments where high school students are permitted to buy liquor were issued yesterday by Police Commissioner William Russell.

The commissioner called all deputies before him and instructed them to institute a relentless drive against these places which cater to student trade as revealed this week by the slaying of a high school boy who was shot by a bartender after an argument over a dice game for drinks.

School authorities have called a meeting for today to discuss ways and means of combating the student drinking evil. It is planned to form a vigilante among members of the parent-teachers' associations to survey the school districts and see that no places which sell liquor are allowed to operate.

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali, which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade-Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

SORE THROAT

-check it with Listerine

-so powerful against germs

WHEN you get home from a football game, gargle immediately with Listerine full strength. It may spare you a dangerous siege with a cold or sore throat or both.

Listerine attacks the disease germs which get the upper hand when bodily resistance is lowered by exposure and nervous tension accompanying a football game.

Listerine is so powerful against germs that even the virulent B. Typhosus (typhoid) germ is killed by it in 15 seconds. Repeated tests show this.

For your own protection use Listerine after any exposure to cold weather or to crowds.

Let us send you our free book, "Personal Hygiene." Address Department S. 16, Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Avoid COLDS this way

Countless colds start when germs are carried to the mouth on food. By using Listerine on the hands before every meal, you attack such germs and lessen the risk of cold. Remember this, mothers, when handling baby's food.

GAMBLER KING'S MURDER MAY BE SOLVED

By DAVID P. SENTNER,

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—While detectives sent West were reported hot on the trail of the man behind the gun in the murder of Arnold Rothstein, blue chip gambler and phantom power of the underworld, District Attorney Joab Banton today was preparing to seek two indictments, at least, before the grand jury.

"The name of more than one man will be mentioned when I ask indictments," said Banton today.

"We want just a wee bit more evidence," supplemented Inspector John Coughlin, chief of the detective bureau, "then we will be ready for the grand jury."

Everything pointed toward an early "break" in New York's biggest murder mystery since the Rosenthal case. Contrary to the optimistic declarations of the past few days, officials' lips were sealed. It is a habit police have on the verge of a big development, when they figure further publicity will hamper their plans.

KNOW NOTHING NOW

They didn't know anything. They weren't looking for Jack (Legs) Diamond, bodyguard of the slain Broadway plunger. Nor were they seeking any particular man.

They didn't even know who was in the "death suite" of the Park Central Hotel the night Rothstein was intrigued there.

The 60,000 documents unearthed from the cabinet files of Rothstein did not interest them. It would be a dreary task to go through these scraps of paper and they were calling off the men assigned to study them.

"If anything of interest turns up in the Rothstein files, Nathan Burkan, lawyer, retained to look after the interests of the temporary administrators, will let us know," said Banton.

All of which was taken with a grain of salt and pepper. Banton has the record of culling documentary evidence for even his secondary cases.

HOLD SECRETS, BELIEF

And like so many ghosts ready to rise and point accusing fingers, the Rothstein files are said to contain the secrets of the gambler's sway over the underworld.

Meanwhile, the legal battle over his will between the two known women in Rothstein's life was continued today before Surrogate O'Brien. Carolyn Rothstein, the murdered man's widow, is contesting the document which left a generous slice of the estate to Inez Norton, ex-show girl.

Two nurses, Miss E. F. Love and Miss M. E. Goidel, who witnessed the "X" marked deathbed will of Rothstein, were summoned for court examination.

EXHORT WELFARE ARMY TO PUSH FUND OVER TOP

Calling on its army of workers to put forth their final effort between now and Thanksgiving Day, the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh today closed the second week of its campaign for 25 local philanthropies. The amount subscribed to date is $708,681.36.

Chairman Augustus K. Oliver stated that only time to complete the canvass is now needed to raise the budget of $965,679 required by the organizations in the Welfare Fund for next year's budget. Returns thus far received in the house-to-house canvass and from the industrial teams, he said, indicate that the full volume of contributions from these sources will complete the campaign's success. More than half the homes in the county remain to be visited, according to reports received from the district chairman today.

The luncheon in the William Penn Hotel today closed the week's activities in tabulating reports. The next meeting for receiving reports will be held at noon next Tuesday and the final luncheon is scheduled for next Friday. The closing reports will be read at a dinner of all the chairmen and many of the team workers in the William Penn Hotel, Monday, December 3. Honors yesterday went to E. T. Weir, chairman of the iron and steel team; C. S. Mitchell, of the public utilities; Mrs. W. P. Witherow, Fourteenth ward chairman, and Mrs. Monroe Lemon, chairman of Rosslyn Farms.

GREENVILLE, Pa., Nov. 23.—Whether the charred bones found in the ruins of the barn of R. R. Reagle, near Leeches Corners, were those of a human being never will be known. Members of the Reagle family rescued all live stock. It is probable a tramp may have been sleeping in the haymow when the fire broke out.

PASTOR BALKS AT GIFTS FROM BOOTLEGGERS

International News Service.

VILLISCA, Ia., Nov. 23.—Meet the Rev. R. J. Blue, a new kind of minister!

Rev. Blue believes all laws—blue and otherwise—should be observed, and he has informed his Presbyterian congregation that he will resign if any part of his salary comes from persons who gain their living by violating federal, state or city laws.

He sent in his resignation last Sunday, but agreed to withhold it until next Sunday, when he hopes to learn just how his congregation feels toward his attitude.

Rev. Blue mentioned no specific law, but broadly included all. Some people here have been unkind enough to say that bootleggers belong to his church and have been contributing to his salary.

No happening in recent years has created such a sensation.

Barnett, of Clarksburg, is editor of the Green and White, official Salem College publication.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

COLD TURKEY

By MARTIN ROSS JEFFERSON.

THANKSGIVING in a busy metropolis. Deserted streets, overcast skies. Here and there a tall apartment house, its gigantic sides dotted with merry lights. Inside festive households, tables laden with steaming food. Children begging for more cranberry sauce. Laughter, then a note of solemnity. Prayers to the Almighty, thanks to a bountiful God. Pompous turkeys, going the way of all innocent fowl.

Homes overflowing with large, happy families all through the city. But here and there a lone thangs-giver, a solitary diner at his own board. Old men, with lined faces, these. Old and world-weary, yet preserving the tradition of turkey on Thanksgiving Day.

Among them, of their number and yet apart from them, young Roger Burns, the wealthiest and most popular bachelor of his circle. On his desk lay a score or more invitations to formal functions that he tossed aside with the impatience of a man bored with society, almost bored with himself.

"I'll be hanged if I sit through another one of those silly banquets," he said to himself that Thanksgiving Day. "These people sicken me with their tricky artificialities, their pretenses. If I have to eat my turkey alone I'll refuse every one of their silly invitations."

Yet when the dinner hour drew near Roger Burns had to admit that he didn't relish the prospect of a solitary holiday meal. He had, with the buoyancy of youth, hoped for something exciting. Perhaps a new personality, a girl unhampered by the rules of convention. Perhaps some young couple, inviting him as a last minute guest, to come and take pot luck. But no. Already Meadows was laying the table for dinner. Roger watched him smoothing the cloth, setting the dishes in exactly the right place. He couldn't bear it any longer.

"Don't bother about dinner for me," he told the man. "I've decided to go out." He slipped into his topcoat and walked to the door as if he had really had a destination. Outside he hesitated. What restaurant? The smart dining places would be filled with people of his own set—people who would wonder why he was alone. No, he couldn't take that chance. So he hailed a taxi and told the driver to take him to a quiet, unfashionable place at the other end of town. "I won't drink," he told himself, "because if I do I'm sure to let some flirtatious gold-digger make a fool of me." Then he smiled to himself, confidently. "Roger Burns, you're a fool," he said. "You've been around—you know the genuine from the spurious. No chance of your being duped."

He settled himself in a corner of the dimly lighted restaurant and scanned the menu. Beside him was sitting a girl whose face he couldn't see. She was nibbling at a plate of cold turkey and he wondered why anyone should choose cold turkey on Thanksgiving. He looked sideways the better to take in her face. At that moment she turned toward him, and the light of recognition came into her eyes.

"Roger Dickson, what in heaven's name are you doing here?" she asked, her voice trembling a little. She put out her hand and before he knew it, Burns was clasping it cordially. "I—I'm so sorry," he managed to mumble, "my name is Roger—but it's never been Dickson."

"Oh!" she said. Then she managed a smile to hide her embarrassment. "I'm so sorry. I thought you were an old chum of mine. You look exactly like him, and I haven't seen him in four years. Please forgive me."

It wasn't difficult for Roger to do that. The girl had a freshness, a naivette about her that entranced him. Despite her shabby costume she managed to look attractive, well groomed. He wondered why such a girl should be alone on Thanksgiving of all days. But of course he didn't ask. He contented himself with chatting about impersonal things. And when the waiter came for his order Burns, with a shy smile, looked at the girl and ordered "cold turkey."

She laughed at that. "I ordered it because it was cheaper," she explained. Her frankness touched him.

"I've got some money," he said, "let's go to the theater from here."

"I'd love it," she replied, "but you must let me pay for my own ticket."

Of course he refused and of course she persisted. But as he stood at the box office later, and paid for the seats, he thought to himself, "Well, this little lady is certainly no gold digger."

He learned subsequently that he had guessed right. By the time the curtain had come down on the third act they had told each other everything of importance about one another. That is, the things that really count. Not names and dates.

The names and dates came at a later meeting. And there were many of these meetings. For Roger Burns, so impervious to the arrows and darts of Cupid, had fallen in love with the little girl who ordered cold turkey on Thanksgiving Day and offered to buy her own theater ticket.

She must have fallen in love with him, too. Because Roger had taken pains that she should not know he was a millionaire. He had created a web of fantastic lies about himself just te test the sincerity of her affection for him. And so when they were married the following Thanksgiving, and he told her how he loved the little restaurant where they first met, she suggested that they have Thanksgiving dinner there again.

"Cold turkey?" he asked, as he pressed her fingers in his hand.

"No, sir," she smiled, "hot roast turkey."

"Well, if you had really met Roger Dickson that night you mightn't—" He stopped short. "By the way, dear, who is this Dickson bird? You weren't ever in love with him, or anything, were you?"

The little bride sighed contentedly. Then she said quite simply, "There never was a Roger Dickson. I was terribly lonely and unhappy-and-you looked so nice."

Burns whistled. "So I was taken in again," he murmured as he leaned over and kissed his newly-wedded wife.

KEYES AGAIN PLEADS NOT GUILTY

LOS ANGELES, Nov 23.—(AP.)—District Attorney Asa Keyes and seven co-defendants arraigned in Superior Court yesterday on charges of bribery and conspiracy, entered pleas of not guilty. With the exception of Keyes all defendants filed demurrers to the grand jury's indictments.

It was the second time that the alleged participants in a sensational bribery plot had appeared in court to plead to indictments returned by the grand jury. At the original arraignment demurrers were filed by seven of the defendants alleging flaws in the indictments and they were sustained. The grand jury immediately returned two new indictments upon which the arraignment of the defendants was made yesterday.

Keyes and those appearing in court with him were charged with bribery in connection with the release of the promoters of the Julian Petroleum stock over-issue and the dismissal of charges in an embezzlement action.

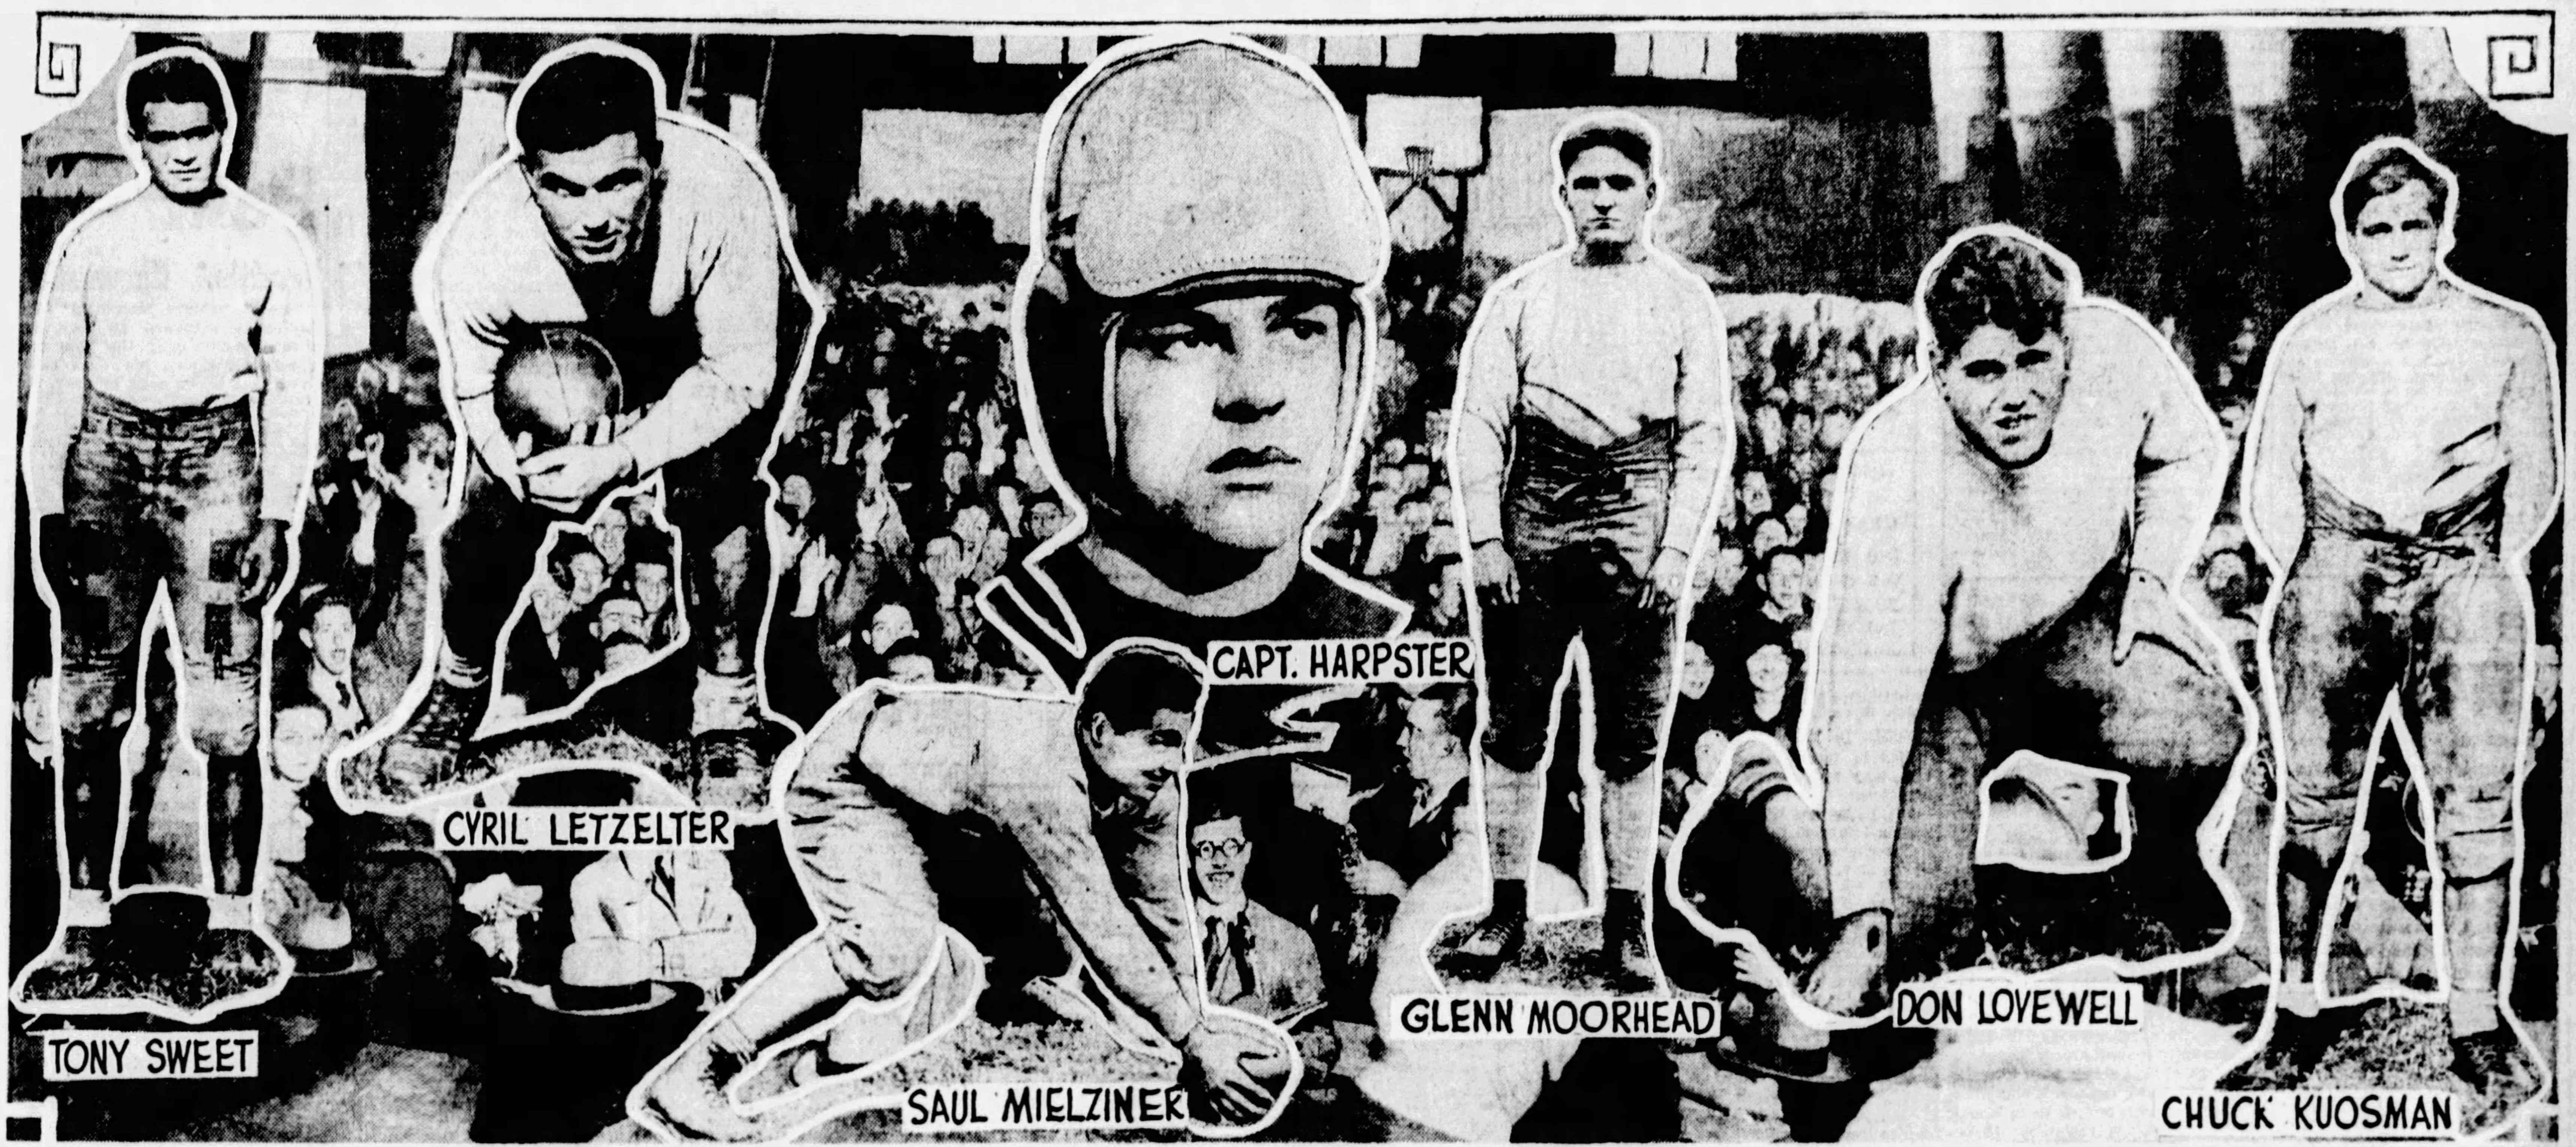
THESE TECH STARS PLAY LAST GAME OF COLLEGE CAREERS TOMORROW



VETERANS WHO WILL BE MISSED BY PLAID NEXT SEASON MAKE FAREWELL APPEARANCE AGAINST VIOLETS

PHOTOS BY PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH.

These seven players will wear the livery of Carnegie Tech in football for the last time in the game with New York University at Forbes Field tomorrow, unless Tech figures in the Tournament of Roses battle in California on New Year's Day, in which event they will get one more chance to perform. Sweet is an end, Letzelter a halfback, Mielziner the center, Capt. Harpster the brilliant quarterback, Moorhead a halfback, Lovewell a guard and Kuosman an end. In addition to these players, J. C. (Pete) Stauffer, Harpster's understudy at quarterback, and president of the student senate, also completes his playing career with tomorrow's engagement. Photos of the players above are superimposed on a flashlight picture of the student pep rally held yesterday in the Carnegie Tech gymnasium in preparation for the big struggle with the National championship at stake.

HOW GEORGETOWN BEAT NEW YORK

IF IT may be taken for granted that an Eastern football coach knows what he is talking about, following a study of the New York University team, Carnegie Tech will have a good chance to stop Ken Strong, sensational left halfback, in tomorrow's big game at Forbes Field by concentrating a defense against runs to the right. The same, it is said, goes for Fullback Follet, another of New York's famous ball carriers.

Ken Strong

This coach is credited in the East with the statement that neither Strong nor Follet can run to the left. Strong is the leading scorer of the Eastern collegiate ranks, having registered the big total of 139 points up to date, and Follet also has been a consistent ground-gainer, but, according to reports, both have attained their success mainly through uncommon ability to move rapidly to starboard.

IT IS admitted that in an open field, the two stars named can shift, reverse their fields, and side-step to either hand, but they cannot start and be effective except to the right. And in support of his assertion, the coach quoted on the subject points to the fact that neither Strong nor Follet was able to gain consistently against Georgetown, though remarkably successful against opponents that had not scouted them.

Georgetown had thoroughly scouted the Gothamites, runs the story, and noted the weakness of the two Violet stars to the left. The Georgetown team was prepared accordingly, with the result that it unbalanced its defense to meet thrusts toward the left side of its line, secure in the knowledge that the right flank was in no great danger. The plan worked out successfully, and few or no gains were made through Liston and Carroll, who guarded that wing for the Blue and Gray.

THAT is held to be the explanation of Georgetown's 7-to-2 victory over the Violet, an outcome that was a great surprise to the majority of dopesters throughout the country. Lou Little had simply coached and shaped his eleven to meet an attack that he knew could move only in one direction. He had little or nothing to fear at the other side.

O'Herin, the Violet quarterback, was criticized at the time for repeatedly sending his attack against the left of Georgetown's line in spite of the fact that time after time it was failing to gain there, but it is now said for him that he had no other course open in view

Harrison Leaves For Conference With Rockne

Don Harrison, director of athletics at the University of Pittsburgh, left late last night for South Bend, Ind., where tomorrow he will confer with Knute Rockne, coach at Notre Dame, concerning the reported probable cancellation of the Pitt-Notre Dame football contest next year.

Harrison said Rockne had called him over long distance telephone, explaining that several shifts would have to be made in the Notre Dame schedule.

Onslow to Coach Newark Club Next Year

Jack Onslow, who coached the St. Louis Cardinals during the National League seasons of 1927 and 1928, has accepted terms to serve as first lieutenant to Manager Tris Speaker, who recently signed to pilot the Newark Internationals.

Onslow asked to be released from the St. Louis club upon learning that Bill McKechnie had been transferred to Rochester. When the request was granted, the Washington Americans tendered Jack the coaching job which he gave up.

MILLER'S PLAY IS FEATURE

By CARL W. SHATTO.

WITH Joe Miller giving one of the best and most sensational exhibitions of net guarding ever seen here, the Pirates battled the flashy, powerful Les Canadiens to a scoreless deadlock in 70 minutes of thrilling hockey at Duquesne Garden last night. The 0-0 tie marked the first time the Flying Frenchmen have been held scoreless this season, and, as Manager Odie Cleghorn said after the battle, in holding such a whirlwind combination as the Canadiens even the Bucs had to display a brand of hockey that would have brought them victory over most other clubs in the National League.

LEONARD PLEASED

Benny Leonard, new owner of the local club, voiced the popular opinion when, after going through at least 10 rounds of vigorous shadow boxing in attempting to encourage his men, he said, "That if he had been one of the judges at this fight he would give the Pirates the decision." The official figures on stops by the goalies would indicate that Benny knows his judging, for Hainsworth

EAST, WEST GRID TITLES PRIZES TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Most of the football teams of the country playing tomorrow will close their doors for the season. With only a few exceptions, elevens scheduled for Thanksgiving are taking the day off and only a small group of rugged contestants will carry their war into December.

The Saturday card makes up in quality any lack of quantity. Seven games stand out in the array.

Yale and Harvard will prove a magnet sufficient to attract 75,000 spectators to the Yale bowl, for the test will be the 47th meeting over a stretch of more than 50 years.

Another stirring game of ancient foes will be at Berkeley, Cal., and the result will have a definite result on the Pacific Coast Conference title. California must defeat Stanford or see the conference title go to the University of Southern California.

ARMY MEETS NEBRASKA

The big intersectional show of the day will put on at West Point with the powerful Nebraska outfit, tied but not defeated, meeting an Army team that has only one blot on its impressive record. Pittsburgh stopped the Cornhuskers' march with a scoreless deadlock while Notre Dame turned the Cadets' flank at New York.

Pittsburgh will have a corner on football interest in that section of the country on account of a battle to the death between Carnegie Tech, with no liability charged to it, and New York University, all credits except a lone debit. Carnegie has a chance to join in any argument over football supremacy by defeating the Violet while N. Y. U. may be able to throw out its defeat by Georgetown if it can win from the Tartans.

BIG TEN TITLE AT STAKE

The Middle West will watch the undefeated but tied Wisconsin team try to win a conference title by defeating Minnesota.

In addition to the crucial game at Madison, Wis., Ohio State and Illinois may fight it out all afternoon at Champaign; Indiana and Purdue are certain to have a lot of fun, and Iowa and Michigan will be well worth while.

An intersectional attraction in the Middle West makes it a fair swap. Dartmouth going to Evanston to play Northwestern, apparently with little to choose between the teams.

Crippled Player In Game on Crutches

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 3—(AP.)—Capt. Arthur Stoner, of Edison Junior High School, will win his third football letter, although he will have to enter tomorrow's game with Camp Curtin on crutches and with his broken ankle in a cast. Since he cannot participate in scrimmage, he will be withdrawn in favor of a substitute immediately after the opening kick-off.

STAG SOCIAL TONIGHT

Etna's Citizens' Committee has slated a stag social boosters' meeting for tonight to be held in the Elks' Etna auditorium. The high school grid team is to reap the benefit of the affair. Among the speakers will be Havey J. Boyle, "Side-walks of Pittsburgh" columnist in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and Deacon Phillipi, former Pirate hurler.

Dukes to Play Mountaineers Next Year

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 23.—(AP.)—Duquesne University of Pittsburgh will meet West Virginia University on the gridiron here next season either on October 5 or November 9. H. A. Stansbury, director of athletics of the West Virginia School, announced last night.

In addition to the Duquesne game, the Mountaineers have five other contests scheduled for 1929—Pitt, Washington and Lee, Oklahoma Aggies, Georgetown and Washington and Jefferson. It is expected that the Mountaineers will play at least 10 games next year.

Duquesne came into the football limelight this year when, given a shot at "big time," they defeated W. & J.

DREYFUSS BACK, NO DEALS ON FIRE

President Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, and his son, Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss, returned home today from New York after an absence of more than two weeks.

The Pirate officials said that their trip had had no connection with baseball, and that while they had met Manager John McGraw, of the Giants; President Emil Fuchs, of the Braves, and other National League men, nothing in the nature of deals had been discussed.

"We are not going to attempt anything in that line before the National League meeting," said President Dreyfuss.

The National League will hold a special meeting in New York on December 10 and the regular annual meeting the following day. The yearly joint meeting of the National and American Leagues has been called for December 13 in Chicago.

The Pittsburgh club will be represented by Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss at the annual meeting of the minor leagues in Toronto, Ont., on December 3.

SCHOOLS IN TITLE FRAY

WITH a championship college game on the books for tomorrow, local football fans will turn their attention today to the City League scholastic title battle at the Stadium, featuring the Westinghouse and South Hills elevens, respective champions of Section One and Section Two.

These teams, both possessing power on the line and with well-balanced backfields, have come through grueling sectional campaigns undefeated. South Hills was held to a tie, Perry turning the trick some weeks ago, while the Silver Lakers have triumphs over Schenley, Fifth, Peabody and South to their credit.

TO MATCH STARS

South Hills will match its two backfield aces, John Riske and Peaches Peitsch, against the Westinghouse stars, Army Ormiston, Joe Ware, Dyke and Klotz. The opposing lines, both fairly experienced and heavy, have been tested severely in the games played so far, and are being counted upon by the respective coaches to withstand the hammering assaults of the opposing backfields.

Westinghouse has been drilling this week to perfect a defense for the forward passing of Riske, sensational South Hills halfback. Riske is both a passer and ball carrier, and his heaves have played an important part in the success of the Mazeski eleven this year.

South Hills established its team as really powerful by holding New Castle to a 12-to-0 score three weeks ago. This was about the best showing any city high eleven made at New Castle, and indicates that defensively, at least, South Hills is a team to be feared.

A near record crowd is expected for this afternoon. The kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 sharp. Both schools will have their bands present, adding pep and color to the contest. It will not be surprising to see 10,000 or more in the Stadium for the championship struggle.

TEAM RECORDS

The records of the rival elevens follow:

ED HILL

Former Burgettstown High School star, who is one of the regular halfbacks of the New York University football team which battles Carnegie Tech in the crucial game of the Tartans' season at Forbes Field tomorrow. He is familiarly known as Dutch and played at Bellefonte Academy after leaving Burgettstown. He does much of the interfering for Ken Strong in the latter's sensational runs. Burgettstown will be well represented with rooters at the game who will be perfectly satisfied to see N. Y. U. beat Tech, provided Hill is responsible for the victory.

TECH OUT TO STOP STRONG

By JESS CARVER.

CHICK MEEHAN, Broadway's cultivator of flowers, led his unshrinking Violets of New York University to Pittsburgh today, transplanted them temporarily in the soil of the Chartiers Heights Country Club and tomorrow will subject them to the torrential onslaughts of Bob Waddell's Carnegie Tech Tartans at Forbes Field.

New York and Carnegie will play the most important game of the week tomorrow at Forbes Field. Both are in the running for the eastern intercollegiate title, Tech more so than the Violets, as the Georgetown team made it necessary for New York to beat Tech here by over the Gotham scoring a surprising 7-2 victory eleven in New York three weeks ago. Had New York come here with an undefeated team the game would be a natural of naturals. As

PERRY-DOWNEY BATTLES ARE RECALLED

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

THE other night, at Columbus, O., Cuddy DeMarco engaged in a thrilling battle with one Fred Mahan, a mute, and the fans there still are talking about the melee, with the result that the local ringster is returning soon for other bouts.

In the heat of the excitement, Mahan knocked down Cuddy and the latter's manager, James (Red) Mason, found it necessary to pull one of the tricks for which he was famous years ago, but which have been curbed by boxing commissions in recent times. He ran around the ring and socked the bell to save his Cuddikens.

Columbus scribes say they got a real kick out of the evening and they have been cudgeling their brains ever since to recall other battles which have served to stir them up.

One of these scriveners calls to mind three other fights which have roused him to a point comparable with that nice evening's work by DeMarco, aided and abetted by the illustrious Manager Mason. One of these, he says, was staged by Pal Brown and Battling Schultz in the Southern Theater years ago. Each of the principals was on the verge of a knockout several times, but exhibited great recuperative powers and was able to finish strong.

THE other great mixes in Columbus were furnished by Jack Perry, the welterweight, who later came to Pittsburgh and was a headliner around here for several years, and Bryan Downey, later a strong middleweight contender. In the first bout, Perry was going along winning by a wide margin until Downey clipped him in the eleventh round of a scheduled 12-

Mann, whose principal big league asset has been his ability to hit left-handed pitching, was alternated with 19-year-old Melvin Ott in right field last season.

ANDY MARTIN DUE SUNDAY FOR BOUT

ANDY MARTIN, the bantamweight, of Boston, who meets Johnny Datto, the Filipino, of Cleveland, in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night, will arrive in the city Sunday morning and work out in the Motor Square gym in the afternoon. Datto will not leave Cleveland until Sunday night, arriving here on the morning of the bout, accompanied by his manager, Jimmy Dunn.

The Motor Square Club reports keen interest in its next week's show, which has an unusually attractive preliminary card backing up the main event.

EBBETS BOXES KAPLAN

Harry Ebbets, hard-hitting middleweight of New York, and Phil (K. O.) Kaplan, also of New York, box the main bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight, taking the place of the bout between Young Stribling and Andy Mitchell, which was shelved by the boxing commission on the ground that Mitchell was not a worthy opponent for Stribling. Kaplan holds a six-round decision over Ebbets, scored a year ago. Max Schmelling, German heavyweight, meets Joe Monte of Boston, and Arthur De-Kuh, the Italian heavyweight, boxes Johnny Widd, of Sweden, in 10-round preliminaries to the Ebbets-Kaplan event.

Billy Light and Gorilla Jones box in Chicago tonight. George Gemas of Philadelphia, well remembered for his bout with Emmett Rocco at Motor Square Garden, meets Mike Mandell in the semi-final.

LA BARBA IN BOUT

Fidel LaBarba, former flyweight champion, boxes Ray Ravani of San Francisco at Frisco tonight. Young Jack Gallagher and Billy Drake box in Philadelphia.

Lew Paluso, Salt Lake City featherweight, boxes Frankie La-Fay of Troy, N. Y., at Albany, N. Y., December 8.

Red Ryan of Washington will box Bob Smoller of Pittsburgh and Tommy Heilman of Donora is matched with Young Smackey of Canonsburg in the two six-round preliminaries to the Johnny Mellow-Freddie Fitzgerald bout in the Washington (Pa.) Gardens Monday night. Chuck Semack of Wilson and Frank Monroe of Fair Haven will be seen in the semi-final, a return bout.

Seven local amateur boxers will appear in bouts at the Penn A. C. in Philadelphia tonight. They are Tony Marino, Red Hartley, Tommy Gannon, A. Andrucci, A. DeLuca, Billy Windso and Max Ziff.

Ice Bucs Play 0-0 Tie With Canadiens was called upon to make 52 saves in the Canadien nets, whereas Miller made but 42 stops at the mouth of the Pirate citadel.

But the figures do not tell all of the story, for of the 42 stops turned by Miller at least 15 were of the sensational variety, whereas only about seven of those by Hainsworth were "grand larceny."

Although the Pirates have not registered an official goal in their two home appearances, they gave local fans the satisfaction of seeing the puck driven into enemy mesh in the third period of last night's joust when Mickey MacKay shot the disc past Goalie Hainsworth, only to have the referee rule offside. Accompanying Tex White up the ice, Mickey took a pass from his mate as they crossed the blue line, but the official ruled that he was ahead of the puck when waiting for the pass, and the goal which followed was not allowed.

And speaking of MacKay, he has given the Pirates' reserve front line greater punch than it ever before has packed. Mickey, at center, was flanked by Herb Drury and Tex White, and although they failed to register, this trio gave the invaders many anxious moments. Their passing and team work appeared to be slightly superior to that of the Milks-Darragh-Cotton starting combination, which is saying something, for the team play of the starting front line has improved about 1,684 per cent since the season inaugural a week ago. White turned in one of the best games of his career.

Although both McKinnon and Smith played under severe injury handicaps, the Bucs' defense measured up to National League standards, and again the wearers of Pittsburgh's Blue and Gold left the impression that they are almost a "sure thing" to capture a money and play-off berth in the 1928-29 campaign.

Milks and Darragh were the leading victims of Hainsworth's great goal tending in the initial period, and most of Miller's miraculous saves were made at the expense of Joliat. Milks and Cotton brought the fans to their feet with close-in shots shortly after the faceoff, and Joliat retaliated by piercing the Pirate defense and skating in on top of Miller. Just as the Canadiens' great wing was about to shoot, from about three feet in front the nets, Goalie Joe made a dive at the disc and smothered the shot before Joliat could get it past his armour.

MAKES LUCKY SAVE

Near the close of the stanza, Darragh and Milks engineered one of the best flashes of teamwork of the night. Chaperoning the disc along the boards, Darragh clubbed a hot pass to center ice as he neared the goal, and Milks, timing the drive, swept in to take it at the entrance to the nets. Hainsworth, apparently helplessly beaten, but willing to make a try, dropped to one corner of the cage, and happened to cover the same corner which Hib had selected as the puck's destination.

In the second period, Howie Morenz, voted the most valuable player in the league last season, was the first Canadien to threaten the Pirate goal, and Howie made a neat job of it. Cutting through the defense, the Stratford Streak skated up to Miller with the puck in his possession and nothing other than thin air between himself and the goal. Miller, realizing that to await the thrust would be fatal, fell forward to meet the shot, and succeeded in smothering the sizzling disc. He later repeated this act when Joliat and Lepine broke through together, and then added insult to injury by repeatedly robbing Joliat throughout the remainder of the fray.

Cotton was the Pirates' big gun of the period. On no less than four occasions he broke through the Canadien defense only to have Hainsworth's individual brilliance nullify his efforts.

Cotton, on McCaffery's rebound, Darragh on a solo effort, and Milks on his own rebound made great bids for scores in the third period, a period in which the Pirates outplayed the invaders throughout.

CONCENTRATE ON DEFENSE

Play in the overtime session was even, with both sextets concentrating on defense.

Hib Milks was the only player to sustain injury in the great fight. He pulled a charleyhorse near the close of the fray, but his injury is not so serious but that he will be able to take his place in the lineup when the Bucs meet the Champion Rangers in New York Sunday.

Great poke-checking by Drury and MacKay made the Bucs' spare front line a great defensive unit, and the Milks-Darragh-Cotton combination broke up many a Canadien thrust in center ice. The great defensive work of Cleghorn's forwards made it difficult for the Frenchmen to get their sparkling combination assaults under way, but they did break through often enough to convince local fans that their attack is the equal of any in the circuit.

Marty Burke, who wore a Pittsburgh uniform last season, was one of the busiest men on the ice. Marty was the main cog in the Canadiens' defense and carried the puck down the ice almost as often as did the forwards.

Colean and Ake, skating instructors at the Garden, entertained in big league style between periods.

The lineup:

Pirates—0.		Canadiens—0.

ROBINS ANXIOUS TO OBTAIN WRIGHT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

FOUR of five clubs in the same circuit with our Pirates apparently are willing to "play" with the Buccos' officials in so far as Glenn Wright's services are concerned. There has been serious talk of a deal between the Pirates and the Giants, while it is known that Marse Joe McCarthy of the Cubs would welcome the hard-hitting Missourian.

The Dodgers are what might be considered real contenders for the Buccaneer star. When the Bushwhackers played their final games of the season in Brooklyn, more than one fan was taunting Uncle Robbie with remarks to the effect that they would welcome Forrest Glenn for Jess Petty, star lefthander.

"We'll give you Petty for Wright!" Dodger fans yelled in considerable derision as Bush's hitters smeared Big Jess with a basehit barrage.

TWO FOR ONE

And now the newspapers of the Flatbush area are suggesting a deal which also puts Outfielder Harvey Hendricks into the bag they would deliver to Pittsburgh. In other words, a trade of Petty and Hendrocks for Wright is mentioned.

Manager Bush is "sweet" on Petty, for Donie helped to develop Jess while he managed the Indianapolis club. And Petty, it might be stated, is somewhat hard to manage, judging by his experiences of last summer when he was fined heavily and suspended for breaking club rules.

Hendricks is another big fellow, the Southerner being loaded with baseball ability. During a part of last season Harvey was called into third base. He packs a big punch and the Dodgers were in need of men who could frappe the rocket.

Harvey is an exceptional baserunner, despite his size. He is just a fair outfielder, but he makes up for any fielding deficiencies with his punch and speed.

FIGHT RECALLED

round fuss and knocked him out. It looked like a fluke punch and they were rematched for a New Year's afternoon show in the Coliseum. Again Perry got off to a big lead only to wind up by being knocked out.

Dr. Harry M. Goehring, prominent local osteopath, a friend of Gene Tunney and the latter's pal, Sam Pryor, Jr., recently returned from a trip to Europe and brought back with him an interesting souvenir program booklet from the famous National Sporting Club of London, where he attended a boxing show.

THE program gives the card for the entire month of October and features a lightweight elimination series. The bill for the opening night, October 1, was topped by a 15-round battle between Kid Nicholson and Billy Boulger, meeting at 8 stone, 8 pounds (120 pounds, a stone being 14 pounds) and, in addition, there were eight six-round preliminaries in the lightweight tournament, or 62 rounds in all, with, as the program puts it, "other boxing."

On October 8, there was a 15-rounder between Billy Jones and Jack Hyams, at 9 stone, 12 pounds, with the eight survivors in the lightweight tournament meeting in six-rounders and an eight-round added attraction between Kid Baker and Young Snowball, featherweights, "and other boxing."

OCTOBER 15 brought a 15-round international middleweight contest between Steve McCall of Scotland, and Orlando Leopardi, of Italy, the two semi-finals of the lightweight tournament, an eight-round bout between Dave Forbes and Marine Smith, light-heavyweights, and another eight-rounder between Jim Ashley and Jack Millard, feathers, "and other boxing," and, on October 22, there was a 15-round bout between Billy Evans, of Ystrad, and Di Cea, of France, along with the final of the lightweight tournament, at 10 rounds, and eight-round flyweight and middleweight bouts, "and other boxing." Len Harvey and Johnny Sullivan were the main-bouters for October 29, in a very special bout.

The National Sporting Club is run on the memberhip plan, but a footnote on the program reads that members have the privilege of "introducing" guests at the bouts. Reserved seats sell for 2 pounds 7 shillings and 1 pound 4 shillings, and unreserved seats at 12 shillings, including tax. The club serves dinner in the club dining room beginning at 6:30 on entertainment nights, club luncheons daily from 1 to 3:30 p. m., and club suppers from 8:30 until midnight. Must be quite a place, this National Sporting Club.

ACCORDING to Dr. Goehring, the club is very quaint in its appointments, having been built in the sixteenth century, and is anything but what an American would expect to find in a fight club. He saw the Di Cea-Evans bout and says Di Cea is a great prospect. He is a smart fighter and should be heard from.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY and its followers are praying for a dry field for the Violets' game with Carnegie Tech at Forbes Field tomorrow. Coach Chick Meehan has heard marvelous tales about what the heavy Tartan team did against Notre Dame on the rain-soaked but not muddy gridiron at South Bend last Saturday. Recalling its own failure to score against Georgetown in heavy going, New York University naturally doesn't want to enter the battle here under a handicap. As for Tech, the locals do not care what the conditions are. They have proved themselves great under both wet and dry conditions and are just as satisfied to fight it out with the Meehanites on a dry field and under azure skies if that is what the football gods have in store.

From New York comes word that Coach Knute Rocke, of Notre Dame, has passed along some tips to Coach Meehan on how to beat Tech. He should know, after what the Tartans have done to him in that 1926 game here and last week's battle in South Bend! That's like Jack Dempsey telling another fighter how to whip Gene Tunney.

AMONG other things, Knute is said to have told Meehan to forget Harpster and watch out for Ted Rosenzwig, the end, on passes and the end-around play. But, then, it seems to me it is Harp who tosses those passes and calls upon Rosy to carry the ball when he needs him. Which reminds me that the first thing I heard when I awoke on the sleeper in Elkhart, Ind., last Friday morning was a leather-lunged young Tech athlete reciting a bit of alleged poetry about Rosenzweig which had appeared in a New York paper following the Pitt-Tech battle in which Ted was erroneously credited with having caught that pass for the only touchdown of the game, whereas Shaughency was the real culprit. It is a takeoff on the lines about:

A remarkable bird is the pelican,
Its beak can hold more than its,
er tummy can!

A remarkable end is Rosenzweig,
Da, da, da, da, dah, da, da, da, dah—

The second line escapes me, but you get the idea.

Crafton Heights Man Says He Feels Like New Since Using Ten Herbs.

"Although I have just finished my second bottle of Ten Herbs, I am feeling like a new man," was the recent statement of Mr. H. P. Anderson, 104 Elmont Street, Crafton Heights, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural preparation. "For a year I had not known what it was to feel well," continued Mr. Anderson, who is employed by the Duquesne Light Co.

MR. H. P. ANDERSON

"I could not digest food properly. My appetite was poor. Gas formed and caused belching and a terrible bloated feeling. I did not receive sufficient nourishment from what I ate. I had awful headaches. At times there was a blurring of the eyes and everything would turn black. Dizziness came on me, and I had a tired, wornout feeling all the time. Sometimes I was so nervous I could hardly lie in bed and would arise in the morning feeling very tired. Due to constipation, I had to take physics several times a week.

"A friend had received such wonderful results from using Ten Herbs that I started taking it. As a result, my digestion has been improved so much that I can eat anything without having distress. My appetite is better, and I am free of gas, bloated feeling and belching. I am no longer troubled with headaches, dizzy spells or blurring of the eyes. Constipation has been relieved. I sleep through the whole night and when morning comes I feel well rested, with lots of energy and ambition. I gladly endorse Ten Herbs to the public."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

DOUGLAS MEETS PITTSBURGH TOMORROW

By TOM BIRKS

THE calm before the storm, that is the category of the soccer contests slated over the week-end; for, while plenty of interest will mark the playing of the District, American, Chartiers Valley and Monogahela loop games, the interest cannot be compared with the wave of enthusiasm being worked up for the playing of the Western Pennsylvania cup ties on Turkey day.

But until Turkey day does come along, local soccerites following the fortunes of their favorites in league warfare will have plenty to become enthused over in week-end battles.

The District League, as the premier Saturday loop, has only scheduled two games. One ought to appeal to the fans, for it is in the nature of a local derby, and will find the Pittsburgh and Douglas clubs meeting at the Homewood playgrounds.

WEAKENED DEFENSE

Last session found Pittsburgh on the right side of a 4-goals-to-2 score, and that was because Douglas weakened its defense to try and bolster its attack. That game found McLay a real fullback, or at least the best that Douglas had, leading the line as center forward. That did not help Douglas, for McLay could not get goals, and it gave Pittsburgh a chance to cop two points. Since that time, however, Manager Masterson has concentrated on the weak sports in the attack and defense, and tomorrow's battle might bring out a new Douglas. In soccer football, the best defense is a good attack, that goes in the game, but it never paid to take a fullback and put him in the forward line. The writer has seen forwards come back into the halfback line, and then go into the fullbacks, but it is suicide to try and make a forward out of a fullback.

The other game in that league will find the Union Switch and Signal again in well-known territory, meeting the Celtics at Leslie Park. Swissvale lost to the Celtics last Saturday in a game they should have won.

Jack Thomas possibly noticed in that game that Berg will never make a center forward. He cannot feed the wing men and cannot get goals. Those are the two qualifications that go with the center forward job. Thomas knows that racket well, has some good material and will have to experiment. Berg missed enough chances in last Saturday's game to win a couple of games.

Williamson was not worked enough. He has a good burst of speed, controls the ball well, and takes it to the right angle before centering. When the center did come over, Berg was usually out of position or allowed Foster to come up and take the ball away.

N. Y. U. ARRIVES

MANY ANGLES TO GAME

There are so many colorful angles to the ball game that it is beyond the power of this pen to enumerate 'em all. (There is modesty for you.)

As has been said, both teams have a hold on the eastern title and in the event of a victory, will have as good a claim to the national as any eleven that might be mentioned. Then, two great backs, both very much in the running for all-America honors, are to duel, Harpster of Tech and Strong of New York. It will be a battle of two fine lines. The contest will pit a team with a diversified attack under the control of a smart quarterback against an attack of tremendous power, with a 200-pound, fast-running halfback as the main cog.

This fellow Strong is a good football player. Chick Meehan will admit it, and as far as that goes, so will Bob Waddell and any of the Tartan scouts who have seen him play. He runs hard, runs fast and is hard to down. He can take it like a Firpo and give like a Dempsey. He's the leading scorer in the East, with a total of some 139 points for eight games. He has scored 19 touchdowns and booted 25 goals for the extra point. In the latter department, he stands almost alone. No one else can come near him.

Of course, Strong has piled up many of his touchdowns against teams like Alfred and Niagara. Howard Harpster, Eyth or Karcis could have tallied a flock of six pointers in the Skibo easy games. By not doing so, the Skibos have less to live down, for mark my words, if Strong should be stopped here tomorrow, he will be handed a very merry razzberry.

NEW STAR MAY RESULT

I have too much respect for Chick Meehan to believe that he depends entirely on Strong in planning his attack. It is too easy to stop one man, and when this is accomplished, an eleven's efficiency is cut to the quick. Don't be surprised if Follett, O'Herin, Hill or Riordan steal the spotlight for New York tomorrow. Unless Tech is away off, they will have to, for the smart Waddell has been giving Mr. Strong plenty of thought during the past week, and plans to make the afternoon an interesting one for him.

Carnegie's tackles, Highberger, Schmidt and Schnupp have worthy opponents in Capt. Lassman and Grant of the Violet line. Lassman was rated a certain all-America bet last year until he broke his leg, or had it broken in the Colgate game. Grant has come along in equally brilliant fashion this year, and is rated by many critics the equal of Lassman.

The ticket sale has approached the sell-out stage for the first time this year here. There are still tickets to be purchased, but not, I am afraid, on the 50-yard line. Buddy Overend said today that if he had been able to take care of all the boys seeking ducats on the 50 he would have needed a line at least three blocks wide.

New York reported in good physical trim this morning and the Tartans, despite a rough, tough game with Notre Dame, is also free from any serious hurts. Thayer Flanagan has a bad leg, which is still causing him to limp, and it is unlikely that he will start the battle at Forbes Field. Letzelter is a favorite to be at his halfback post for the kickoff.

BISONS-DUKES READY

Bethany and Duquesne will engage in their fifth gridiron meeting in history on the Bluff campus while the Skibos and Violets are tangling and untangling at Forbes Field. The game is an important one—for the Dukes. If Westminster should upset Geneva at New Wilmington tomorrow, and the Dukes continue their winning ways and "take" Bethany, then the Covenanters and the locals will be tied for the Conference lead.

The first meeting between Duquesne and Bethany took place in 1913, with the Red and Blue taking a 21-0 victory. Relations were not renewed until 1925, when the Bisons won a close 14-7 game at Wellsburg. In 1926 and 1927 the elevens battled to ties, 0-0 in '26, and 7-7 last fall.

Duquesne, with one day of indoor drill and three out in the mud, are ready for most anything that Bethany can offer, aside from an upset. The visitors will outweigh the Laydenmen by some 10 or 15 pounds to the man, but so far have not shown the resourcefulness or speed and general football strength of the near-unbeaten Dukes.

CUDDY DEMARCO VICTOR OVER JOHNNY

Cuddy DeMarco, of Charleroi, took the judges' verdict over Johnny DeMarco, of Philadelphia, in the 10-round main bout at the Majestic Club, McKeesport, last night. The bout was akin to a circus, and Cuddy's superior boxing won for him eight of the 10 rounds, while Johnny managed to squeeze in the other two.

The Philadelphia DeMarco endeavored to spring a few stunts on the boys, making a decided hit with his clowning tactics, the while Cuddy was running up points.

Jackie Murry got a technical knockout over Bob Collera in the semi-final bout, the contest being stopped by Referee Red Robinson in the fourth round, with Collera reeling about the ring going no place in particular and quite dazed.

After scoring a knockdown in the fourth round, it wasn't very hard for Ken Hargraves to register a favorable verdict in his six-round setto with Frankie Moran of Pittsburgh.

In the opening contest, Tommy Heilman, of Monongahela, outpointed Al Waldeck, of Tarentum, in six rounds of slugging—and more of it. The margin of advantage at the end of the fight, however, was close.

Fight Results

At McKeesport—Cuddy DeMarco defeated Johnny DeMarco, 10 rounds; Jackie Murray knocked out Bob Collera (technical), 4 rounds; Ken Hargraves defeated Frankie Moran, 6 rounds; Tommy Heilman defeated Al Waldeck, 6 rounds.

At Jersey City—Maxie Rosenbloom defeated Bobby Brown, 12 rounds.

LONG'S SPORT COMMENT

of the inability of Strong and Follet to travel the other way effectively.

FRANK WIENER, of Philadelphia, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission, has not only proved himself a capable official with regard to the efficient manner in which he handles the duties of his office, but he shows a human side that stamps him as being an unusually broad and generous type of sportsman. Recently a boxer named William Johnson was so severely injured during a bout in Everett, Pa., that it was found necessary to remove him to a hospital in Cumberland, Md. The show had not been a great financial success, the boxer had little money, and there were hospital and medical bills to be paid. The promoter wrote to the commission, asking what could be done in the situation. Under the Pennsylvania boxing laws, promoters are not held liable for injuries to boxers, and Wiener, in his reply, explained that there was no legal provision for the giving of financial aid to Johnson, but he showed that his heart was in the right place by enclosing his personal check for $50 to help the fighter out.

ONE OF Pittsburgh's earliest and best-known figures in aquatic sports passed on yesterday, when Pat Luther died in Passavant Hospital at the age of 92. Little had been heard of Luther in recent years, but there was a time when he was one of the outstanding men of the professional rowing world after that game got a start in the United States in 1868.

Luther was one of this country's first oarsmen to win honors in competition. More than half a century ago he ranked with the best scullers in the game. He took part in the famous Philadelphia centennial regatta in 1876 and also met the leaders of his time in match races on the old Hulton course and elsewhere in this country and Canada. He belonged to the days of Jim and John Hamill, Joe Kaye, Henry Coulter, Nick Denmarsh, Harry Moore, Conrad Meinhardt, Eph Morris, Billy Scharff and other Pittsburghers prominent in the rowing game, the school that was followed in later years by the development of such men as John Teemer and Jake Gaudaur, of this district, who competed with Champion Ed Hanlan, Albert Hamm, Jim Reilly, Wallace Ross, Fred Plaisted, Charley Courtney and others.

THE LOSS of Tris Speaker, Ty Cobb and Walter French has left Connie Mack with only three outfielders for next year. George Haas, former Pirate, Al Simmons and Bing Miller form the remaining trio. The Athletics also hold title to DeWitt Lebourveau, but it is unlikely that he will be taken South.

George Haas

Under the circumstances, Connie Mack is hard pressed for seasoned picket-line material, and if the Detroit club carries out its reported plan to drop Bob Fothergill it is not improbable that the boss of the A's will grab him. Fothergill had a fine season in 1927, but allowed himself to take on a lot of weight last winter and was out of the game frequently during 1928 on account of his lack of physical fitness. It is said that George Moriarty blames his loss of the Detroit managerial job partly on Fothergill's fall-down, as he had depended on Bob to be the main gun in his attack.

THE NATIONALITY of Toby Uansa, crack halfback of the University of Pittsburgh football team, has been the subject of more than one guessing bee among local gridiron fans this fall. He has been judged to be an Italian, a Finn, and what not. Toby himself, whose proper first name is Octavius, by the way, says they're all wrong. He is of real Roumanian stock. The Panther star was born in Allegheny County, but his parents are natives of Roumania.

ONE OF Miller Huggins' worries during the present off-season centers around the question as to whether Herb Pennock will be able to come back next spring in the form that made him the best left-hand pitcher in the country. Encouraging reports come from Pennock, who was the honor guest at a banquet given last night by the Elks of West Chester, Pa.

The southpaw has told friends that the pain has left his pitching arm, and that except for a slight numbness in the fingers, he is no longer bothered by the neuritis that cut him down when he appeared destined to enjoy the best season of his brilliant career. Pennock is not trying out his arm, he says, and is not taking any exercises for it, but is aiming merely to build up his frame for 1929. "I'll be there when the time comes,' he predicts.

Herb Pennock

SPEAKING of Pennock, another Yankee pitcher, Waite Hoyt, ridicules the report that the New York management is likely to do some wholesale trading during the winter. "Nothing to that nonsense," asserted Hoyt. "The Yankee owners spent a lot of money getting that club together, and they're not going to give it away.

"I guess we won't trade Gehrig for Cochrane! How would we replace Lou? We'd only be weakening first base to strengthen the catching department. And they don't come any better than Bengough—a great little catcher. He can go behind the bat every day for me. They can talk about Hartnett all they want. I like Benny for mine, even if he doesn't hit as hard as some of the others."

P. & O. QUINTET FIRST FOE FOR GOLDENSONS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

THE Immaculate Heart team, which will be one of the new members of the reorganized Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League this winter, has been chosen to open the season for the Goldensons at the South Side Market House tomorrow night.

The Brereton avenue passers have been making rapid strides in basketball circles hereabouts during the last few years and are said to have a smooth-working floor machine.

Work on the reorganization of the P. & O. League is progressing rapidly, according to J. J. Freund, who is sponsoring the loop. The new circuit is expected to include Reliance Life, Broadway Club of Beechview, the Morry Cadets of Braddock, the M. J. Conleys of Homestead, formerly known as the Schwartz-Valley Club; Greenfield Lumber, the Jeannette Felders and the McKees Rocks Business Men.

The Tri-State Officials Association will be in operation again this winter despite the fact that its membership has been depleted by withdrawals. Among the old favorites who will work for this group of referees are Leo Mackey, Dick Mackey, Dave Mervis, Harry Levine, Leo Carroll, Bill Sterling, Al Callahan, Bill Griffith, Walter Cross and Herman Strahl.

The Penn five of Sharpsburg will make its season's debut in the West Penn League tonight when it opposes the Edgewood entry on the Sharpsburg Y floor. Both teams have been strengthened, and a good game is expected by the followers of the two contestants.

Everything is set for the opening of the Commercial-Industrial League at the South Side Market House a week from tonight, when Duquesne Light meets Kaufmann's and Pittsburgh and Lake Erie opposes Carnegie Steel Company. Duquesne Light won the title last season, and it is the intention of the Kaufmann passers to start them off on the wrong foot right at the outset. The Kaufmann team appears to be one of the strongest in the circuit this winter, with Johnny Serbin, Bill Miller and Wy Paris in the lineup.

The Slovak Presbyterian Church team is organized and ready to arrange games at home and abroad with light first-class and church teams. Write P. K. Bobak, 112 Bessemer avenue, East Pittsburgh, Pa.

The D. J. Brodericks are ready to book games with light first-class teams. Call Grant 0801 and ask for Broderick.

The W. U. Boyles are back this winter with another first-class team and will play all home games at Perry High School on Friday nights.

BURY LUTHER TOMORROW

Funeral services for Pat Luther, American's oldest oarsman and a star sculler of 60 years ago, will be held from the McDermott Brothers' funeral home, 531 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, tomorrow morning. He died yesterday in the Passavant Hospital.

"Chesterfield—there's a cigarette!"

Mild enough for anybody
. . . and yet they Satisfy*

*IF your taste demands something more than mildness, ask yourself this question: "Where can I get mildness without flatness; where can I get mildness with taste?"

Where indeed—except in Chesterfield? Of what other cigarette, in all your experience, can this truthfully be said: "They're mild—and yet they satisfy!"

Genuine Imported Scotch Grain—100 proof

We bought forty pairs of the original Wing Tip English Brogue in the Regent Street store of Manfield & Sons, London.

Today the originals with the Regal Reproductions, are now on display in 76 Regal Stores in the U. S. A.

Manfield & Sons are the largest makers of high grade shoes in England, and this is what they told our representative in London:

> "You may rightly regard this shoe as the finest specimen of Rugged College and Country shoe produced in England.
> "We feel safe in saying that in the Country Houses and Shooting Boxes of over half the Nobility of England, this shoe may be found."

The upper leather in the original English shoe is Martin's of Glasgow, Scotch Grain, and as there is only one Genuine undiluted Scotch Grain, our men went to Glasgow to see Mr. Martin personally, and rush shipments to our factory of identically the same tannage that is in the English shoe.

Now in addition to this famous Wing Tip leather lined heavy sole Galosh Oxford, we have forty-one other styles of Genuine Scotch Grain, Heather Grain and Holland Grain. High shoes and Winter Oxfords, Plain and Fancy Patterns. Wing Tips, Ball Straps and Saddle Straps.

We believe this represents the most complete line of Genuine imported High-Grade leathers ever offered in America, and they are all One Price, $6.60.

MARKET TURNS SOMERSAULT, HEADS UP

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—The stock market turned a complete somersault on a record-breaking turn-over today. A tremendous accumulation of overnight buying orders sent prices of many active issues soaring 5 to 30½ points in the early trading, but a swift selling movement just before mid-day cut down or wiped out many of the early gains and sent a number of stocks 1 to 5 points below yesterday's final quotations. A brisk recovery was in progress in the early afternoon.

Despite the elimination of sales from the tape, the ticker fell 45 minutes behind the market by 1 o'clock. So great was the congestion of work in many of the large brokerage houses that the governors of the exchange met at noon and voted to suspend business on Saturday.

The mid-day selling movement was inspired by reports that an "important statement" would be given out by the Federal Reserve Bank at 1 p. m. Many traders apparently feared that another warning on credit inflation was coming, and they threw stocks overboard, but the statement proved to be merely the election of a new governor of the bank to succeed the late Benjamin Strong. The market's quick reaction indicated the nervous tension created by the recent spectacular advance in prices. With the market closed tomorrow, much of the day's selling also represented weekend profit taking which ordinarily is distributed over two days.

The wild upswing at the opening of the market, in which several blocks of 10,000 to 40,000 shares changed hands at rising prices in the face of a record-breaking increase in brokers' loans, again demonstrated the recent tendency of the market to do the unexpected. Ordinarily, such an increase would be immediately followed by a heavy wave of selling, and that is what many traders looked for this morning. Instead prices bounded upward, and just when they looked as they were going "through the roof," they suddenly broke in dramatic fashion.

Case Threshing Machine soared 30½ points to a new top at 515 and then dropped to 500, and Wright Aeronautical ran up 19 points to 289 and fell back to 264. Curtiss dropped from 164½ to 153½, Victor Talking Machine from 158½ to 147¾ and Radio from 379 to 361. Montgomery Ward dropped 12½ points below last night's close and Vanadium Steel 5. General Motors ran up 5¾ points to 214½ and slipped back to 212¼.

New high records again were established by a wide assortment of issues, the list including Andes, Kennecott, Inspiration and Cerro de Pasco coppers, Standard Oil of California, Maryland, Superior Oil, Packard and Nash Motors, New Haven, Erie, Kansas City Southern and Pere Marquette railroads.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Notwithstanding upturns at times, wheat prices developed a late downward trend today influenced by reports of favorable weather for harvest operations in Northern Argentina. Besides, bearish estimates of 1928 wheat production in Argentina as a whole gave some advantage to the selling side and so likewise did decided slackness of export demand today for wheat from Canada. Corn was weak throughout the day owing to a good deal to enlarged sales of Iowa and Illinois corn to come to Chicago.

Wheat closed easy, ¼ to ⅝c net lower, corn ⅝ to 1¼@1⅜c net down, oats unchanged to ⅛@¼c up, and provisions unchanged to 35c down.

At noon wheat was at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅛c higher and corn ¼@⅜c to ⅜@⅝c down.

According to a widely known British authority, the Argentine surplus wheat yield this season will aggregate probably 220,500,000 bushels, against 185,000,000 bushels actually cleared so far this season. In this connection, was significance attached in some quarters to the fact that Liverpool wheat quotations today were lower than due, notwithstanding advices that Southern Argentine crops are suffering because much in need of rain. The deficiency in moisture, it was reported today, has now continued for 10 weeks.

On the other hand, some European buying of wheat future deliveries in Chicago was apparent at times today. There were also reports of good demand for domestic No. 2 hard winter wheat at the eastern seaboard and Minneapolis sent word that mills today were on the buying side of wheat futures.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The raw sugar market was firm and unchanged early today at 3.89c for spots duty paid, with no sales reported.

The raw sugar futures market opened 1 to 3 points higher and soon showed net gains of 3 to 4 points on covering and buying by houses with Cuban connections. Today was first notice day for December delivery and 122 notices were issued, but they appeared to be promptly stopped and they had little effect on values, with the firmness due more to the steadiness of the spot market and to reports of increased interest on the part of European buyers in new crop Cuban. There was a good deal of realizing or liquidation on the upturn, but offerings were promptly absorbed and midday prices were at about the best levels of the forenoon, or from 2 to 3 points above the previous close.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 8 to 16 points and sold 10 to 20 points net higher during the first few minutes on a further broadening of trade and speculative demand. Houses with continental, Liverpool and Japanese connections were said to be among the early buyers, but the advance to 20.50c for December and 20.40c for March met considerable southern selling and a good deal of realizing. This proved sufficient to supply the early demand and caused reactions of 5 to 15 points, but the offerings were well enough absorbed to give the market a steady undertone and trading continued active at the end of the first half hour. Private cables said there had been trade calling and continental buying in Liverpool and that sentiment in Manchester was more optimistic owing to an increased demand for cotton cloths from India.

Reactions from the early advance carried prices back within a point or two of yesterday's closing quotations, with January selling off from 20.45 to 20.27c. A considerable volume of realizing and southern selling was absorbed on the decline to these figures, however, and the market was quieter with the tone steady later in the morning. At midday prices were 2 or 3 points up from the lowest, with the market ruling about 2 to 5 points net higher.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Exchanges Closed Tomorrow.

The tremendous volume of trading necessitated quick action on the part of the governors of the New York Stock Exchange in suspending operations of that institution for the short session tomorrow. The New York Curb will also be closed, as will the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. A special meeting of the New York governing committee was held yesterday, at which time it was expected a closing order for Saturday would be issued, but no announcement was made. It was assumed that the situation was well in hand and that brokerage houses would be able to carry on at the rate the market was then proceeding. This morning, however, the market started off at a gait of better than 10,000,000 shares for a full session. The first half hour's turnover was 2,300,000 shares. At noon the total was 3,460,000. These factors evidently determined the sudden action of the board today. A special meeting was called for midday and the announcement of the Saturday closing was issued in a few minutes. The last previous Saturday closing was at the end of May following a series of 4,000,000-share days which culminated in the up-to-that-time record day of over 5,000,000 shares. Incidentally, that 5,000,000-share day was a down market. Largest trading days of the current series have been up markets, to date.

Bear Raid Fizzles.

Shortly after the announcement the Street was upset by a report that a special meeting of the governors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank had been called and that an important announcement would be made later. Between the two the stage was set for the raid and the bears threw stocks on the market in enormous blocks. There was strong support for good stocks, but many of them were forced down three to six and seven points before the sally was stopped. Later, when the Federal Reserve announcement proved to be the election of the new head of the institution, to succeed the late Governor Strong, there was another buying rush and most of the stocks recovered their declines. The general Street attitude toward the Saturday closing is not favorable. The traders dislike the idea of the long suspension from Friday to Monday and the comment on the subject is mainly to the effect that "too much can happen in the meantime." The average trader likes to have his market at his finger tips, and this is one of the principal benefits of the New York Stock Exchange. The trading fraternity is notoriously timid and scary and they do not relish the possibility of some important development tonight, for instance, to which the stock market reaction would not be visible until Monday.

Loans Increase $176,000,000.

Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City on November 21 increased $176,315,000 during the week to a new high record of $5,157,132,000. This compares with $4,980,817,000, the previous high on November 14, and $3,481,286,000 on November 23, 1927. In the previous week the gain was less than $2,000,000.

	Nov. 21, 1928.	Nov. 23, 1927.
For out-of-town banks	1,750,794	1,292,578
For others	2,280,416	999,827
Totals	$5,157,132	$3,481,286

Principal changes during the week were an increase of $131,555,000 in loans for own account, a decrease of $666,000 in loans for out-of-town banks and an increase of $45,426,000 in loans for others. Demand loans constituted $4,532,109,000 of the total compared with $4,347,490,000 a week ago, and time loans $625,023,000 against $633,327,000 last week.

Big Increase Ignored.

The increase of $176,315,000 in brokers' loans exceeded the general expectation in Wall street, as many commission houses reduced their obligations through outright purchases during the period covered. However, the Federal Reserve Bank statement demonstrated that improvement in general credit conditions was proceeding coincident with the expansion in collateral borrowings. Member banks reduced their rediscounts approximately $58,000,000 last week, an accomplishment which offset the influence of the loan figures. As a result of this view the forward movement in stocks went ahead without interruption in the early dealings.

Reserve Bank Condition.

Consolidated statement of condition of the Federal Reserve banks on November 21 showed a decrease for the week of $57,600,000 in holdings of discounted bills and increases of $9,800,000 in holdings of bills bought in the open market of $3,700,000 in United State government securities and of $12,000,000 in cash reserves. Federal Reserve note circulation declined $15,400,000, member bank reserve deposits $18,400,000 and government deposits $8,300,000. Total bills and securities were $43,000,000 below the amount held on November 14. The principal changes in holdings of discounted bills for the week were decreases of $24,600,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, $19,300,000 at Philadelphia, $13,200,000 at Cleveland, $6,500,000 at St. Louis and $5,600,000 at Richmond, and increases of $12,400,000 at Chicago and $5,200,000 at Kansas City. The system's holdings of bills brought in the open market increased $9,800,000 and of Treasury notes $4,200,000, while holdings of United States bonds declined $300,000 and Treasury certificates $200,000.

Stockholders' Confidence.

One of the big surprises during the recent advance in the market has been the evidence of the confidence existing among stockholders in the various leading companies. In the past year, during periods of sharp upturns, considerable stock has come on the market from such holders who were liquidating and waiting for reactions on which to replace their holdings. Many so-called old certificates for stock in the names of individuals were received around the Street at such times. During the latest upturn there was little of such liquidation. It has been the unwillingness of holders to dispose of their stock which has aided in creating the strong position in various stocks, and which was responsible for the sharp gains recorded when outside buying became insistent.

Aluminum Soars.

Aluminum Company of America was a feature of the New York Curb dealings today, soaring more than 10 points from last night's close as buyers were attracted to the stock by yesterday's advance of 12 points. Aluminum is one of the fastest movers in the Curb group and there was no news to account for the current upswing other than that the stock had been behind the market and was entitled to its day in the limelight. Other stocks, probably some of them of far less merit, have executed sensational upturns in the markets over the past many weeks, while Aluminum had remained practically stationary. The company is the leading interest in the aluminum business of the world, with connections in practically every country in which the bauxite (aluminum ore) is found. Recently it segregated its foreign holdings into Aluminium, Ltd., a Canadian holding concern, the stock of which was distributed to holders of Aluminum Company of America on the basis of one Aluminium, Ltd., for three Aluminum Company shares.

Pittsburgh Coal.

Pittsburgh Coal held near the best levels of the recent upturn. Very little of the preferred stock came out, but the common was fairly active. There has been considerable comment on the sudden and unexplained spurt in these issues this week. One view held in the financial district is that the soft coal industry may benefit from policies of the new administration in Washington after next March. While there has been talk of mergers, the more conservative interests believe steps may be taken for stability of coal prices through coordination of selling agencies. This would eliminate cut-throat competition and price-cutting, and would permit many of the producers to show a reasonable profit. It probably would be more beneficial than a consolidation of producing companies.

Penna. Gas Tax Revenue.

The three-cent gasoline tax netted more than $6,000,000 during the quarter ending October 1. The receipts from Allegheny county totaled $766,835. State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis, in announcing the total collection of $6,044,316 for the three-month period, coupled it with this prediction: "I am more positive than ever that the total gasoline receipts for the current year will be in excess of $22,000,000." Part of the basis for his prediction was the increase of $807,323 collected in the last quarter above the amount during the corresponding months in 1927. Of the total, $5,029,308 will go to the state motor fund for building new road; $1,014,449 or one-sixth, is returnable to the counties, and $508 is put in the general fund.

Hupp-Chandler Rumors.

Interests closely affiliated with the Hupp Motor Car Corporation of Detroit were understood in Wall Street today to have bought in the open market a controlling stock interest in Chandler-Cleveland Motors Corporation of Cleveland. Negotiations are reported under way with large minority Chandler stockholders for their holdings, in connection with a plan of Hupp interests for absorption of Chandler. There are outstanding 350,000 shares of Chandler-Cleveland preferred stock and 280,000 common stock.

No Westinghouse-Baldwin Merger.

The rumored merger of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and Baldwin Locomotive Works will not take place. Reports have been circulated several times during the past two years that the two companies and several others would be consolidated. Although such a step has been under consideration it has definitely been abandoned. The unsatisfactory condition of the locomotive business during the past five years and the fact that only a small share of Baldwin's business is in electric locomotives would give Westinghouse little to gain by a consolidation. The agreement for the joint construction of electric locomotives will remain in force.

Vauclain Optimistic.

The locomotive outlook for next year is more promising that it has been for a long time, declared Samuel M. Vauclain, president of Baldwin Locomotive Works. "There are more inquiries for locomotives in the market than for many months, and more are coming in. Inquiries for about 150 locomotives are now pending and I look for much of this business to be closed before the end of the year. In addition to the inquiries pending I look for other railroads to come into the market this year," Mr. Vauclain stated.

Redrafting Drug Store Bill.

The Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical Association today instructed its attorneys to redraft the law limiting the ownership of state drug stores to registered pharmacists in an effort to remove the objectionable features upon which the United States Supreme Court declared the law unconstitutional last Monday. Two dissenting opinions were recorded in the opinions handed down in Washington, and the state association, meeting at Harrisburg yesterday for its biennial legislative meeting, expressed the sentiment the law still could be made effective. It virtually prevents chain drug stores from operating in Pennsylvania. Three hundred pharmacists attended, from 53 counties in the state.

Record Accessory Business.

Automotive parts and accessory business is enjoying the greatest fourth quarter in history and will close the year with new high records in production and sales, Motor and Accessory Manufacturers Association reports. Shipments to car and truck makers and the wholesale trade by association members in October were 188 per cent of the January, 1925, figure, compared with 202 per cent in September, 212 per cent in August and 129 per cent in October a year ago.

The Years Ahead.

"The market has discounted four years of prosperity," remarked a broker, "and if this public speculation continues unabated we will have discounted eight years of prosperity before summer. Some take it for granted that we will have four years more of prosperity and some think it will run eight years. All this is pure guess work, but if the optimists prove to be right we can look forward to big markets, also big reactions. However, with four to eight years of prosperity, the tendency of the good stocks cannot be otherwise than upward."

Iron Dumping Ban Lifted.

Secretary Mellon has lifted the anti-dumping order against pig iron from Germany, which has been in effect since 1926. This product may now be imported without restriction. In 1926 the Treasury conducted an investigation into pig iron imports from Germany after they had reached a maximum of 160,000 tons. The restriction was then placed on the imports, which were believed to be injuring the American industry. Under the tariff act of 1922, where commodities were imported for sale at less than in the country of origin the Treasury is empowered to assess duties to protect the domestic industry. Commissioner of Customs Camp announced today that imports of pig iron from Germany have fallen until they are now of a negligible quantity. Secretary Mellon's order, however, provided that should the imports be resumed in large quantities the anti-dumping order should be renewed.

Local Market Steady | New York Bond Market

STEEL FOUNDRY HIGHER IN FIRM LOCAL MARKET

While prices in the New York market continued their upward rush today, the list on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange displayed a steady to firm tone with a somewhat lessened volume as compared with the early trading yesterday.

Quotations on the board during the early session were about the same as last night, with the traders standing pat on their positions awaiting a possible reaction in the big market as a result of the expansion of $176,000,000 in brokers' loans reported by the New York Federal Reserve Bank after the close yesterday. The successive entrance of recently quiet issues into the trading limelight has been a feature of the dealings here for the past month or so. Natonal Fireproofing was one of the first to move out of its rut and various others have come forward. Yesterday's special favorite was Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt, one of the best of the local companies and an old standard industrial organization in the community. Prior to Screw and Bolt's spurt, Standard Sanitary shot up more than seven points. Today it appeared the traders were giving some attention to Pittsburgh Steel Foundry. The stock opened with an overnight gain of 1½ points, but the initial advance was not followed by any pronounced activity in the stock. This is a Lockhart company. Operation of a preferred stock sinking fund has greatly strengthened the position of the common and it is expected that the junior shares will shortly be placed in the dividend column.

The fuel issues were rather dull. Quotations on Lone Star and Arkansas were about unchanged. The oil producers were also quiet. National Fireproofing was narrow, as was Carnegie Metals.

MACHINE MINING SEEN SOLUTION OF COAL ILLS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

A SOLUTION of the troubles of the coal business may be the application of the same principles of machine operation and mass production that have kept other industries on the road to increasing profits. Consolidation and the discarding of small, inefficient units for larger and more economical workings has been the predominant factor in almost every business except coal during the past 20 years. With only a few exceptions coal production is still predominantly at small mines. Back-breaking work with the pick and shovel still represents the major part of the process of getting coal out of the ground.

A tremendous experiment in the use of modern methods in coal mining is now underway at Wildwood, about 20 miles north of Pittsburgh. A total of $3,000,000 is being spent to construct a mining property which will make as much use of machinery as the nation's manufacturing industries have done.

THE Butler Consolidated Coal Company has started the development of 4,000 acres of coal lands in the thick Freeport vein of coal. Such an enormous investment in anything as sick as coal mining is surprising, but the officials of the company believe that the methods to be used will bring profits. They are practical coal men. At present the company is operating six mines in Butler county.

The seam averages from six to eight feet thick so that it is ideal for the use of machinery. Cutting, loading and all handling will be done by machinery wherever possible.

About 50,000,000 tons of coal are available on the property and engineers have determined that the most satisfactory operations will be secured by mining 1,000,000 tons annually. This will give the working a life of 50 years.

The production will average about 5,000 tons a day, which will require 100 railroad cars for its transportation.

The mere task of opening the mine is gigantic. The shaft and slope are practically completed. A stream has been diverted for half a mile to give room for the three miles of tracks necessary to handle the output.

After the coal is dumped at the bottom of the slope, it will be carried to the tipple on a 60-inch conveyor belt to be sized to meet customers' requirements. In addition to the most modern methods of screening, a coal cleaning plant will also be built. This will remove a portion of the sulphur and ash impurities and will enable the company to supply coal to conform with exact specifications.

IN addition to providing an excellent steam fuel, the coal can also be coked in by-product ovens so that practically all market requirements can be met.

Present plans provide for the initial production of coal by the latter part of this year. The full capacity of 5,000 tons a day will be reached by April 1, 1930.

While developments such as this by the Butler Consolidated Coal Company may point the way for the development of new coal properties, it is difficult to apply the same principles to most of the older workings.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company has been following a similar policy by consolidating adjoining mines and bringing their output through a single modern tipple, but such a change is impossible for many operators. Pittsburgh Coal has also made heavy investments in coal cleaning plants.

The present straws in the wind point to the fact that those who will survive in the coal business will mechanize their properties as highly as the steel makers and the automobile industry. Besides this, they will sell a product meeting the consumers' requirements exactly as to both size and analysis.

Justice and Constables Get Prison for Grafting

The justice of the peace of Neville township goes to the penitentiary for one to two years. The reason—graft.

Three constables go to prison, two for two to four years, and one for one to two years; another to the county jail for one to two years—also for graft.

They used their offices to extort money from keepers of North Side places charged with violation of the Snyder act, the state enforcement measure covering the national prohibition law. They did not like to see the city grafters getting all [illegible] easy money from the bootleg concessions so they [illegible] on somebody else's "preserves." Pretty nervy when [illegible]sider that a witness in the federal rum trial yesterday testified that the Woods Run Police Station was the warehouse for the bootleg trade of that district.

National prohibition officers, investigating the handling of liquor cases by the officials just convicted, are said to have uncovered their duplicity, turning the evidence over to the police.

Unfaithful to their duty and to their oaths, these officials were deemed unworthy of parole by the judge who passed sentence upon them, so they go to meet the justice they dispensed with.

One result of the protection of vice and crime in Pittsburgh. Doom for others looms. May it reach as high as it should.

Welfare Fund Is Short Of Goal—Help It Over!

The Welfare Fund campaign for money to finance the activities of 25 philanthropic bodies faces a lack of $300,000 in the amount set as the goal of the drive. Consequently the canvass will be continued into next week. The house-to-house solicitation is reported to be only half complete and a better showing is expected when full returns from that activity are made.

As this is Pittsburgh's first attempt to establish a "community chest" for charities it would be a shame were it to fail to get the total sum sought to the very last penny. Success in the first effort would be certain to win over some of the charities not included in the combined appeal and eventually make the Welfare Fund a community chest in which all philanthropies would participate.

In behalf of the Welfare Fund there will be a midnight show in the Stanley tonight. It will be given by the Variety Club under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. It should be a very good show—much better than you could ordinarily buy for three times the price of admission, $1. It will be a lot for the money, with acts from every theater in town. As everything, even to the printing of tickets, has been donated, every dollar taken in will go to the fund.

Won't you help to "put over" the first campaign of the Welfare Fund?

Ancient Japanese Costumes

They Seem Strange to Us. We Should Have Seemed Strange to Ancient Japan.

PRINCE CHICHIBU AND HIS BRIDE

The young man in this picture on the left with the spectacles is Prince Chichibu, brother of the Mikado of Japan. The young lady, his bride, recently married, was formerly Miss Setsuko Matsudaira, daughter of the Japanese Ambassador to the United States.

The Imperial Japanese couple appear as they stood for their marriage ceremony before the "Shrine of Awe."

Ordinarily, Prince Chichibu and his brother, the Mikado, wear European clothes. When seen in Europe or in America Japanese of high rank usually dress like a businessman of the Western country. But at home it is necessary to keep up old traditions. The Mikado is supposed to be related to the sun and moon, lord of all creation.

It might interfere with the respect of his subjects if he changed too suddenly these old costumes that seem "funny" to us.

On the other hand, among the Samurai, Shoguns and other Japanese of a day gone by, a modern American, with his stovepipe or brown derby, short jacket and "trousers," would seem just as funny. It all depends on the viewpoint.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

THERE is a certain thing that you want to come true.

You have worked it out to its smallest detail.

You know exactly what you want and why you want it.

The worst of it is that you know just how you want it, at least you think you know how it should come about in every particular.

And that is the mistake you make.

You have thought out all the little fine points so thoroughly that you have lost sight of the main idea.

Why? Because the minor details would probably be different and you might be so surprised at the order of things that you could not see where you would be getting your wish after all.

Think in more abstract terms.

Life is unexpected and things are never exactly as we plan.

But the main chance is there, perhaps waiting at this moment, yet you cannot see it because it is dressed up in a way you had not thought of.

Be master of your opportunities, turn things your way, even when they do not come in the way you had thought out.

Tales That Are Told

By Inches

WHEN Bobbie was six, he was given a real watch, which, regardless of quality or accuracy, had a loud tick. Naturally, the little fellow was very proud, and he would stroll up and down the street, stopping every moment or two to draw the timepiece from his pocket and regard it gravely.

Every passer-by smiled at Bobby's performance, but the climax came when his little cousin, Betty, tripped along and asked him the time.

Bobby regarded his watch perplexedly for a moment, and then replied with dignity: "Two inches to four!"

What He Wanted

"STOP! For the love of Mike stop!" shrieked the film producer, and obediently the cameras ceased clicking.

The producer walked over to the leading man.

"Your expression is hopeless," he scowled. "Try to look as if you really were indignant."

"I've done the best I can," retorted the actor sullenly. "Nobody could do any better."

"Very well, your salary is reduced plenty from today on," snapped the other. Then: "Now, that is the idea. Hold it. Take, please!"

And the cameras clicked again.

Between Two Stools

ANGELA was in a very thoughtful mood when her mother announced that tea was nearly ready.

"What are you thinking about, child?" she asked, noticing the serious expression.

"Mummy," said Angela, "when I get married, will it be to a man like daddy?"

"Of course, darling."

Her daughter frowned at this.

"But if I don't get married, shall I be like auntie, then?"

"Yes, dear, you will."

The little girl sighed wearily.

"My stars," she murmured, "what a fix!"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

WELL, if a woman can't think of something to say about a woman that she doesn't like, anyhow, she can generally say something to the other woman that won't be exactly a compliment. One of the things women in neighborhoods sometimes take an interest in is how much money and property their neighbors have.

There was a woman that was always hinting to her neighbors that she had a lot more dough than they had, even if she didn't wear it all on her back and ears. The other women were pretty sore about this, but one day Mrs. Jones says to the boasting woman:

"Say, I was talking to a lady the other day, and she was mighty interesting. I was telling her about you folks, and she was interested in jewels. So I told her about how you have a whole box full of pearls and stuff at the bank, and she was mighty surprised."

"Well, that was nice of you, Mrs. Jones. Is it a lady I know?"

"Why, I don't know whether you do or not. Her husband calls at your house sometimes."

"Oh, a social acquaintance of my husband?"

"Well, maybe so. Anyhow, he's the assessor for this district, and he calls once a year at least."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

WHEN I was a little girl a certain verse in the Bible used to rouse my curiosity. It spoke of "the wicked flourishing."

This, I thought, was most monstrously unjust. Why should the wicked flourish? What was the use of being good if bad people got along just as well or even better? Yet the Bible said they did. And as I grew older I discovered that this fact was most disconcertingly true.

Bad people did get on. They got on amazingly. They made money and bought fine houses and enjoyed good health and lived to a ripe old age.

Good people, on the other hand, were often out of work and down at the heel. They wore shabby clothes and had colds in their heads and never seemed to have any luck. Banks foreclosed on their mortgages, their children sickened for lack of proper care, and they never could keep up their insurance.

In vain I tried to assure myself that "those whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." It didn't seem reasonable. What's the use in being loved, cried my heretic mind, if all you get out of it is a chastening?

For a long time these circumstances aroused rebellion in my mind, as I suspect they've aroused it in yours. Every time I saw a flourishing bad person I got mad. Every time I saw an unfortunate good person I thought God was a meanie. But at last I think I've discovered the secret.

The people who get ahead are the people who know what they want and go after it. Selfish people, wicked people, usually know what they want. They have a definite purpose and they hammer at it steadily. Each act as constructive—positive. They flourish not because they are wicked but because they have the right technique.

The people who don't get ahead are the people who don't know exactly what they want and who therefore waste themselves in aimless fumbling. They may have a general peevish, wistful desire for success and power but they have no constructive plan for attaining it. They spend their time in lamenting and praying—in negative gesture—instead of hustling on the job.

All too often good people have this negative quality.

They think that they've done enough if they're just good. They do not remember the wise axiom—"IT IS NOT ENOUGH TO BE GOOD; YOU MUST BE GOOD FOR SOMETHING."

Many good people resist temptation, but they do not leap on opportunity. They expect God to do the rest. But why should God reward us for merely resisting temptation? From all indications God wants results and lots of them.

And he has placed in us qualities which will produce results if we use them. He didn't intend that the wicked should grab off all the 8 per cent investments. But if the good people lie down on the job and the wicked don't what can He do about it?

I doubt if anyone will get a seat in heaven just because he has kept out of jail here on earth. Personally I'd prefer a lively sinner to a limp saint any day. But maybe I'm wrong.

PLANETS' MOTIONS

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE planets, the earth's sister and brother worlds, were always puzzling to the watchers of the stars because of their independent motions. Those motions had to be correctly observed and interpreted before scientific astronomy could exist. It took many thousand years to attain that amount of knowledge. Although these "wandering stars" had been watched and wondered at by the earliest peoples known to ancient history, yet even those who made the heavens their special study did not realize that the earth itself was a similar wanderer, moving in the same manner as the others, and that the center around which they all traveled, all going the same way round, was the sun. But after Copernicus had published his famous book, near the middle of the sixteenth century, the stargazers got their ideas straightened out on this subject, and modern astronomy was born. Its first great discovery was the fact that the solar system is a family, with the sun for its head and the planets for its obedient members, the earth being one of the smallest.

Even today nobody, except either professional or amateur astronomers, is able to recognize the planets among the stars. The more distant planets change place so slowly that they can be followed with relative ease, but the nearer ones are continually moving so that after a few weeks people who only occasionally look at the heavens, entirely lose track of them. This difficulty is enhanced by the apparent yearly revolution of the entire starry firmament around the earth.

And yet, after all, it is easy to know the planets if you will take a little trouble—incomparably less than that required to learn to play a good game of cards. Suppose I try to start you just now.

During the last week of November you will find mercury in the morning sky, in the constellation Libra, rising long enough before the sun to be seen ere the dawn extinguishes the stars. Mercury is brighter than any fixed star in that immediate neighborhood. If you have to get up before sunrise this, the smallest of the earth' sisters, may have a friendly look to you.

Venus gives you an evening glimpse of her beauty. You will find her in the constellation Sagittarius, setting considerably south of west after the sunset colors have faded from the western heavens. She is becoming superbly bright as she makes her way farther from the sun and at the same time continues slowly to approach the earth.

Mars is in the constellation Gemini, northeast of Orio, rising early in the evening. His reddish color is noticeable when compared with the surrounding stars, and he is becoming brighter as he gets nearer to the Earth while swinging toward the point of opposition to the Sun, which he will reach on December 21. He will be actually nearest the Earth on December 15, when the distance will be about 54,300,000 miles.

Jupiter, the chief of the planets—as far as size is concerned—is in Aries, just under the two stars which mark the head of the "Ram." He is very bright and presents a magnificent spectacle to the telescope with his colored belts and attendant moons. He passed opposition to the Sun on October 29 and is now about 382,000,000 miles from the Earth.

Bible Passages

Love of Money

(Ecclesiastes 5; 10-20.)

HE that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver; nor he that loveth abundance with increase; this is also vanity.

When goods increase, they are increased that eat them; and what good is there to the owners thereof, saving the beholding of them with their eyes?

The sleep of a labouring man is sweet, whether he eat little or much: but the abundance of the rich will not suffer him to sleep.

There is a sore evil which I have seen under the sun, namely, riches kept for the owners thereof to their hurt.

But those riches perish by evil travail: and he begetteth a son, and there is nothing in his hand.

As he came forth of his mother's womb, naked shall he return to go as he came, and shall take nothing of his labour, which he may carry away in his hand.

And this also is a sore evil, that in all points as he came, so shall he go: and what profit hath he that hath laboured for the wind?

All his days also he eateth in darkness, and he hath much sorrow and wrath with his sickness.

Behold that which I have seen: it is good and comely for one to eat and to drink, and to enjoy the good of all his labour that he taketh under the sun all the days of his life, which God giveth him: for it is his portion.

Every man also to whom God hath given riches and wealth, and hath given him power to eat thereof, and to take his portion, and to rejoice in his labour; this is the gift of God.

For he shall not much remember the days of his life; because God answered him in the joy of his heart.

Isn't It So?

Few of us recognize our stupidity until the day after.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

A Miser

MY spendthrift fingers lightly
Let all my gold slip through.
The brave coins shine so brightly
Their loss I never rue.

In hidden gold, no glimmers
Of mellow, yellow glint;
But gold in passing shimmers
With many a rainbow tint.

But, ah! In miser fingers
That naught of giving brook,
With touch that loves and lingers
I clasp each treasured book!

At heart I am a miser;
Though fleeting gold may prove,
It frets me not, but, wiser
I hoard what I most love!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Thoughts while strolling: Boys who try to look like John Gilbert. There's an ambition! Coast-to-Coast buses arriving back of the Astor. Baird Leonard of Life. The glorified flunkies of the movie mosques. Berton Braley, a Madison (Wis.) boy, who made good in the city.

Those slim, narrow-hipped girls peeping from under pulled-down hats. All you can see is the brilliant red of their mouths. Cafe waitresses in laced black bodices and flowered skirts. Like Swiss peasants. Those new hotels with searchlights sweeping the skies.

Wonder if anyone ever laughed out loud in the Union League Club? Sam Feldman, the famous little East Side criminal lawyer. A crowd waiting for a policeman to pick up a pistol. Tossed from a taxi in the Chicago manner. A new movie importation. From Europe and heavily veiled. As though I care!

What ever became of the apple-a-day propaganda? The pompadoured playwright, George S. Kaufman. Once a columnist. New fall frocks with big glittering buckles. A tree surgeon's office in the heart of the city. Lenore Hughes and her South American husband. She's growing stout.

Sign: "Airplane Luggage." That's keeping up with things. English tweeds until it hurts. Or perhaps scratches. The clubman who carries a string of polo ponies wherever he goes. Al Jolson certainly married a beautiful girl. Joe Toplitzky, a New York boy who made good in Los Angeles, with a bang.

Leonard Bergman, Erlanger's nephew, who will likely inherit his 50 or so millions. Ida Verdon, a stenographer, who became associate editor of a group of magazines. Made over brown-stone fronts. With flossy French names. A spark of decorative imagination works wonders with musty old rooms.

Beefsteak Charlie. Who caters to hungry race track followers. More cider shops. The artificially tanned ladies. Wish George Ade would write more than he does. Young man to his girl friend: "Let's have a few sets of gin and talk baby talk!" Ralph Barton over from Paris again.

In an ad of an exclusive apartment house in a society periodical one reads: "We'd be proud to have you meet our flunkies socially." Even at that a few could teach some of the Social Register-ites manners. And, en passant, it seems to me it is about as difficult to break into the Social Register lately as it is to break into the city directory in Gallipolis, O.

The growth of the chain drug store is another metropolitan phenomenon. With a drug store on every prominent Manhattan corner, further expansion seemed impossible. Yet within the year a new chain has opened 67 new beautifully outfitted stores. No retail endeavor has made such marked progress as the drug store. In the memory of most of us the drug store was a gloomy, depressing spot filled with pungent odors and window decorations consisted of a red and green bottle or a pyramid of empty corn salve boxes. Now look at 'em!

Three movies lately featured clowns with broken hearts struggling desperately to laugh. The theme has been worn to a frazzle and most of us are completely fed up. There must be a clown somewhere who is not on the verge of splotching his painted face with rivulets of tears. It seems silly to watch a clown cry out loud.

The stogie is finding new favor with smokers. The slim, rat-tailed stogie which flourished in the Chester A. Arthur period used to be manufactured chiefly around Wheeling and Pittsburgh. Young smokers began on them and if they survived worked their way up to a 5-cent El Ropo. Two avenue shops now feature stogies.

Topic of a sermon broadcast over the radio: "Bootlegging in Big Hotels; or Society in Full Dress." And a sophisticated periodical captions an article: "Otto Kahn or the New Opera Season." Here's one I thought up: "A Latvian Holiday or Let's All Play Parchesi!"

"I saw you," writes L. G. B., "in an upper tier box at Will Rogers' show the other evening. Are you bashful? You didn't turn your face toward the audience once."

I know. Five years ago a very beautiful lady faintly praised my profile. And since then I have gone through life sidewise.

IN MEMORIAM

By Herbert Kaufman

DR. FRANK CRANE has dictated his last "Four-Minute Essay." His world tour is finished. Death met him at Nice and took up the ticket.

Few contemporary authors had as many readers. Dozens have been appraised with that stereotyped estimate and doubtless hundreds more will be. But Frank Crane will endure in journalistic annals as the one nationally known writer who waited a half century to pick up the pen.

Society owes the late Dr. Osler some heavy debts—and also a heavy grudge. God alone knows how much splendid possibility has been thwarted by his mischievous dictum that efficiency dies at fifty.

Crane was fifty years old—right on Osler's deadline—when he decided to become a newspaperman. Were Osler right, he was due for the junk heap as he stepped down from the pulpit to the bottom rung of a strange ladder and began his life climb over again.

He was parson-poor, inexperienced, unrecognized. He dies leaving a country-wide reputation—and a sizable fortune to boot.

This isn't an orotund, orthodox eulogy, but just the sort of hand-wave Frank Crane would have asked for. Cant phrases and stuffy solemnities weren't on his typewriter keys. So why drape them on his memory?

He wove his own struggles, his own unquenchable confidence into editorials to enthuse all fellow grayheads with courage and self faith.

He never cowered at the calendar. Tradition couldn't bluff him with old wives' tales; he wasn't daunted by an adverse balance of years; he wouldn't believe that it was ever too late to try another game.

He played for the highest stakes and the highest place and won through, while a host of younger and competing veterans took his dust.

The frost had nipped his temples when he went rainbow chasing—and found the crock of gold amid the snows.

Let's remember him for his pluck, for his bold seizure of opportunity, at a time when most folk are cravenly cocking an eye toward the easy chair and a quitting hour.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

IN Belgrade, Jugoslavia, high school girls are forbidden by a new law, to use rouge, lip stick, face powder, eye-brow pencils, to wear short skirts or cut their hair in masculine fashion.

High school made into planing mill.

A man in Boston got a divorce because his wife smoked a pipe. Nobody ever would give a woman a divorce for that reason, and women have been choked on pipe smoke for yeahs and yeahs.

Maybe it wasn't really the pipe, but there is one thing that is a pipe. If he got such a divorce he got it in Boston where there are still a lot of awfully nice people.

Paris dressmakers are using flocks of blondes for mannequins and a few red-heads. Brunettes are of consequence. Men don't prefer them so they dye. But they can't dye their temperaments or dispositions, which are what men consider. This blonde business is a lot of bologne.

A prominent clubwoman says that Americans are marrying "earlier as a rule." It's true. There are more 3 a. m. weddings than there used to be, and not quite so many at high noon.

Dears always use any excuse to get into rich men's places.

A young woman who has been crippled for 32 years and bedridden for 30 years was burned to death in a fire. The news now comes out that she had been writing poetry for years. Good poetry.

Some of these strong, well, happy people, who are always going to get ready to do something worth while will feel a little bit ashamed when they read about her.

A woman in New City, Rockland, found in her cellar a glass jar of [illegible] brandied cherries, canned 50 years. They haven't been sampled yet, but if that lady never made whoopee in her life before, she's going to when she tastes them.

If everybody knew what I know about cherry bounce, the lady would have to lock up her prize.

The Chinese say one picture is worth 10,000 words.

That's the way the Dumb Doras figure, and so they try to make every move a picture. Smart people, the Chinese!

Peaches says now that she was "induced" to marry Daddy Browning by being told that he was wealthy and then he transferred his holdings just before the wedding. She thinks that was illegal and is suing. Marry a man for money and then have him do that! Terrible, that's what it is.

Of course, if Daddy thought Peaches loved him and she didn't, that didn't make the marriage illegal.

What really was illegal was the way they both crowded everybody off the front page for months and months and months.

"Tearoom girl jailed two days."

"Girl who saved man from chair feared kidnaped."

Newspaper headlines.

Just a nice little group of home girls.

The king of Afghanistan won't allow any women to attend state balls unless they wear skirts to their knees if they are married, and two inches above the knees if they are single.

I'll bet the king likes to make whoopee, even if he doesn't know what it means. There is something about the influence of short skirts that adds materially to the gaiety
